The King's Illness.
Col. Michael Friedsam.
Honor to Michigan.
Important to Parents.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ENGLAND IS alarmed by the King's illness, its seriousness revealed only yesterday.

Diagnosed as bronchitis, it is probably a return of the serious illness from which the King escaped so narrowly two years ago. On that occasion bronchial pneumonia developed epiema and septocemia, that, according to physicians, weaken the system permanently, and minimize the power to resist any later attack.

NEWS OF the death of Col. Michael Friedsam will grieve hundreds of merchants throughout the nation that knew and respected the head of B. Altman & Co., in New York City. Col. Friedsam was a good citizen, active in the improvement of New York, his native city, valuable in public service during the war.

But his greatest public service was his contributing to the most important of modern problems, which is DISTRIBUTION. Many hundreds of millions worth of the world's products reached the consumer through him.

CITIZENS OF Michigan honor their state by refusing, in overwhelming majority, to restore the death penalty in their state.

That penalty, abolished in Michigan 84 years ago, is an imitation by the state of the murderer's tactics. The installation of an electric chair in the state prison at Jackson would have been a blot upon the state, a backward step for a great commonwealth that has not known capital punishment for 100 years.

IT IS IMPORTANT for parents to know that the dreaded polio-myletis, or infantile paralysis, attacks children mainly through the nose. The germ infects water, and can be taken through the nose passages by children swimming in unclean water. So says Dr. Weyer of the Willard Parker laboratories.

The germ is probably introduced into the nose most often by the fingers. Children should be taught from infancy to keep their hands away from mouths and noses. Influenza, "colds," a dozen infections start after being planted on the mucous membrane.

A Chinese proverb forbids you to touch your nose or mouth, "except with your elbow." Children and adults should remember that.

NEW YORK considers altering the building code governing construction of elevators. Builders want to increase speed and operate two cars in one shaft. It should be possible to operate several elevators in one shaft, to save space in high buildings.

Forty years ago in the London financial district one building had an endless chain elevator. Too slow for the United States.

QUAKERS HAVE amended their "rule of discipline" for the first time in 38 years. Quaker girls and women may add "frills" and lace to the plain Quaker garb.

It is decided that mutton-leg sleeves for girls, suits of plain black with no collars or cuffs for men, are not necessary to good morals here or happiness hereafter.

IF THE QUAKER girls wanted to attract attention, which presumably they do not, the old-fashioned plain gray dress would be the best dress.

Many eligible Americans are tired of "frills"—cut off above the knee or below the waist in the back.

MR. KENNETH COLLINS, who knows about buying and selling, and how to promote both, says:

"Buying power is on the upgrade."

An important fact, according to Mr. Collins, is that people are liquidating their instalment debts. The depression of 1929 found them owing about six billions of dollars. They have paid off half.

WALL STREET yesterday continued to look at prosperity through the wrong end of the opera glass. "Big Steel" was not feeling well. Copper was offered at 9½ cents a pound. That copper would be a good investment, if you had room to store it.

MORE MURDERS in Palestine, in connection with Eastertime celebrations by Arabs, Jews and Christians, indicate smoldering hatred on the part of Arabs, resenting the importance of Jewish enterprise in Palestine development.

Two Jewish youths and a Jewish girl were shot dead outside of Haifa. Others were wounded.

JOHN J. RASKOB wants the Democrats, candidates and delegates, to say exactly what they think about prohibition. It turns out that Democratic presidential candidates don't WANT to say what they think. They want to teach "both round and flat," as the young candidate for school teacher said when asked by a fundamentalist school board what he taught children about the earth's shape.

MAYOR KLINE 'STILL VERY SICK MAN'

Close Surveillance Needed, Doctor Says; City Chief Spends Restful Night

The condition of Mayor Charles H. Kline, who is seriously ill in St. Francis Hospital, was reported as "improved" today.

The Mayor spent a restful night, although he is still "a very sick man" and will be kept under close surveillance for four or five days," Dr. William O'Neill Sherman said.

RESTRICTED DIET

The Mayor's menu today was not the menu of a gourmet. For breakfast he had orange juice, dry toast and a substitute for coffee; for lunch, broth and pudding. And if his condition continues to improve, he will have for dinner a baked potato—and only a baked potato.

Dr. Sherman became alarmed at the Mayor's condition following an operation Monday night to remove a malignant carbuncle. At that time his relatives, including Mrs. Kline, were told that his condition was critical.

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh visited the Mayor last night and today Mrs. Kline was in her husband's room for five minutes, but no more visitors will be allowed, Dr. Sherman said.

RESTFUL NIGHT

Although he was reported as being extremely nervous the Mayor was said to have slept most of yesterday, and last night it was stated his condition was improved.

Four physicians have been in attendance since the Mayor was brought to St. Francis from the Hotel Bartlett, at Cambridge Springs, where he had been suffering from a series of boils, followed by laryingitis and bronchitis.

When the carbuncle on the back of his neck developed it was decided to take him to the hospital.

AMELIA FAILS IN AUTOGIRO

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—(INS.)—Amelia Earhart, famous woman flier, failed in her attempt today to break the women's altitude record in an autogiro at Hallowell Field near here. Miss Earhart reached a height of 18,500 feet when she was forced to descend because of lack of fuel.

The noted aviatrix only took a sufficient supply of gasoline for a two-hour flight and believes she could have gone even higher with a larger fuel supply.

The official altitude record is 43,966 feet, held by Lieut. Appolo Soucek, of the United States Navy, while Miss Elinor Smith holds the women's record of 27,418 feet.

Clara Bow Resting At Rex Bell Ranch

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 8.—(INS.)—Recuperating from her strenuous work in the Hollywood studios, Clara Bow, film actress, today was enjoying a vacation on a ranch owned by Rex Bell and Earl Simpson.

Miss Bow said she expected to return to Hollywood in a few days.

Max, Joe Use Ugly Words At Leslie Love Fest

If Joseph N. Mackrell, register of wills, only talked about the things a guest does in his home, this is what he might be saying today:

That Joe Armstrong, the County Commissioner and political boss, exchanged hot words with Max Leslie, the more or less retired political boss, at a dinner in honor of Leslie's sixty-seventh birthday, in the Mackrell home.

Political leaders were there and made informal speeches. Armstrong's turn came. And among other things, Joe asserted that he hadn't entered his son in the field as a candidate for Max's job in the State Senate until Max had assured him he intended to give up the seat and go into business.

Then, so the story goes, Max jumped from his seat and yelled:

"You're a dirty liar and a cheater."

In rebuttal, Armstrong told Leslie pretty much the same thing.

But if this happened in the Mackrell home, the man of that house is silent about it. Said he:

"I never discuss anything a guest does in my home."

Among those guests were reported former Mayor William A. Magee, City Treasurer Roy D Schooley, Coroner W. J. McGregor, Councilman Charles Anderson, State Senator William D. Mansfield, Attorney Fred Mercer and Judge H. Walton Mitchell.

MANAGER BILL 'REVIVED' FOR FINAL VOTE

Measure, Believed Shelved, Reported Out; Will Get Last Reading on Monday

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, April 8.—The Moore city manager bill was "resurrected" today and reported for final action Monday night.

Believed "shelved" as a result of action last week on the motion of Representative James Wettach, of Allegheny, the measure to enable Pittsburgh and third-class cities to adopt the city manager form of government if they desire, came out of the House Elections Committee today for third and final reading. It already had been passed on two readings.

MOORE SAVES BILL

Representative D. Glenn Moore, Pinchot floor leader, the bill's sponsor, had repeatedly declined to bury it by entertaining a motion to postponed action indefinitely.

Several weeks ago numerous delegates supporting the bill appeared before the committee to urge its passage. Despite their appearance, Representative Wettach said he made his motion to table the measure "because there was no general interest in it." He explained, at that time, that neither Senator James J. Coyne nor Mayor Charles H. Kline, of Pittsburgh, had anything to do with his action.

MINOR AMENDMENTS

Minor amendments include one to require petition of 10 instead of 5 per cent of the voters who cast ballots at the last general or municipal election to bring the adoption of the plan to a local referendum vote.

Another amendment would confine balloting on the referendum to general or municipal elections, eliminating consideration at primaries.

The Moore bill includes the proportional representation plan, advocates of which contend it insures representation of all parties and groups on the City Council.

Grundy and Pinchot Confer Over Probe

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—Former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy called upon Gov. Pinchot this morning and it was reported that he discussed the Public Service Commission investigations with the Governor. Senator Grundy was asked after the visit concerning reports that he would again be a candidate for United States senator in 1932. Grundy laughed and said that the election was much too far away to talk about candidacies.

Tough Eggs Roll Away When U. S. Cleans House

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Federal men have deported 1,127 undesirable aliens in last two months. That's rolling tough eggs off the White House lawn.

All the boys leave via New York. The same port which they entered.

When the government gets after you you aren't being chased by an autumn leaf on a windy day.

If you haven't any visible means of support you had better make yourself invisible.

We're spring housecleaning. And the government doesn't do it any less thoroughly than the average housewife when she turns the works upside down

WIFE SPEEDS TO LONGWORTH

AIKEN, S. C., April 8.—(AP.)—Nicholas Longworth, for six years Speaker of the House, lay seriously ill here today from pneumonia. Mrs. Longworth was at his bedside.

The former Alice Roosevelt arrived here to be with her husband, this morning. She was summoned last night after physicians attending Longworth revealed a heavy cold he had had for 10 days developed into pneumonia Monday night.

While saying their patient was seriously ill, Longworth's physicians would not make public details of his illness. Dr. R. H. Wild, of Aiken, said there had been no change in Longworth's condition since late yesterday, but added that the patient had a "good night."

CONFER WITH WIFE

The physician and his associates on the case, Dr. Thomas G. Brooks, of Aiken, and Dr. V. P. Sidenstricker, of Augusta, conferred with Mrs. Longworth soon after her arrival. Although they had said there would be an official bulletin on Longworth's condition after the conference, none was issued immediately. He was here for a vacation when he became ill.

President Watches Longworth Illness

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP.)—President Hoover followed closely today reports of the condition of Speaker Longworth, ill with pneumonia at Aiken, S. C.

He instructed his personal physician, Capt. Joel Boone, to keep in close touch with the Speaker's condition and to keep him advised.

CREIGHTON GIRL BANDIT GIVEN 20-40 YEARS

Sentenced to Eastern Pen With 3 Boy Companions After Pleas of Guilty

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 8.—Confessing to a series of holdups, Mary Kovack, alias Balogh, 18-year-old gun girl of Creighton, Pa., who terrorized this city for a short time last month, was sentenced to from 20 to 40 years in the county prison by Judge Harry S. McDevitt today.

The girl's three male companions, who took part in one or more of her escapades, also pleaded guilty to the highway robbery charges, and were given similar sentences in Eastern Penitentiary.

They are William Jackson, 21, and Robert Jackson, 23, brothers, and Robert Widdows, 29, all of this city.

The Creighton girl was arrested on March 26 shortly after she came to this city from Western Pennsylvania. She said the other defendants were strangers to her when she arrived here. She blamed the men for starting her on the bandit career that led to the heavy prison terms today.

The hearing took place in Quarter Sessions Court consuming only 15 minutes. Detectives who arrested the quartet and their victims all appeared in court, but when the defendants pleaded guilty, the case was concluded.

A woman companion, who was arrested at the time the gun girl was taken into custody, was exonerated, police revealed, and she was discharged a few days ago. She is now reported under treatment in a hospital.

1921 'Miss America' Selected as Juror

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(INS.)—Miss Margaret Gorman, now Mrs. Victor Cahill, wife of a local real estate operator who was crowned "Miss America" at the first beauty pageant in Atlantic City in 1921, was selected today to serve on May's jury panel in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Burke Denied Bond On Murder Charge

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., April 8.—(INS.)—Fred (Killer) Burke, alleged slayer of Patrolman Charles Skelly, and described by police as "the most dangerous gangster in America," was bound over to Circuit Court without bond on first-degree murder charges here this afternoon.

Dreiser, Enraged, Quits Film Colony

LOS ANGELES, April 8.—(AP.)—Theodore Dreiser boarded an air liner today for New York, apparently in high dudgeon over the alleged "vivisection" of his book, "An American Tragedy," by a film study which paid $150,000 for the screen and talkie rights.

EVANS SUMS UP HIS CHARGES

Henry Oliver Evans, accuser of the Department of Public Works, today closed the technical side of his charges of inefficiency in the department with a statement before City Council in which he promised to disclose that fraud had been perpetrated. He said:

"I made two main charges and allegations.

"First: That the system and methods used by the Department of Public Works in preparing for and letting street paving and sewer jobs (and that involves carrying them out) was inefficient and unbusinesslike.

"Second: That they opened the door to fraud on the city.

"You will notice my use of the word 'used;' that is, the past tense, referring to my specifications of 78 jobs in the years 1926, 1927 and 1928. The department has claimed that, beginning with June, 1928, a new method was used and that this new method eliminated the defects I have shown.

ERRORS CONTINUE

"The new method should, theoretically, lessen these errors, but there has been, as yet, no proof that it has actually ended

JOB HOLDER FACES QUIZ BY LANG

Director Demands Aide in Sewer Division Explain Stand With Contractor

Declaring that he intended to pursue his investigation into alleged irregularities in the Department of Public Works, Attorney Henry Oliver Evans today in a prepared statement read to City Council's open hearing, promised to prove that the "door to fraud had been opened" and "someone" walked in.

Other developments were:

1—I. Charles Palmer, engineer in the division of sewers, Department of Public Works, summoned to appear before Director Edward G. Lang to explain his connections with the West Penn Sand and Gravel Company, of which Mike Mannella, who gets many city contracts, is president.

2—Technical testimony in Public Works quiz completed with reading of list of increases in final quantities over the original estimates of city engineers in 22 street paving and sewer projects.

3—Evans calls city inspectors as he announces intention of continuing ivestigation.

4—Newton F. Hopkins, Wilkinsburg engineer, questions propriety of more than doubling Grandview avenue contract and declared that the use of broken stone sub-base and extra excavation was unnecessary.

5—The hearing adjourned at noon until next Monday morning.

BEATTY PROTESTS

Evans was interrupted only once in the presentation of his statement summing up his case against the Public Works Department. Attorney Lee Beatty objected to Evans' statement that the department's answer made in the selection of 14 typical jobs were picked because they were favorable to the department. Beatty said:

"I object to that statement because it is unfair and because we let you pick out the cases."

Evans replied:

"In my opinion you took the cases which you thought were most favorable to the department to be discussed."

Beatty replied that the department's engineers had selected the first 14 of the 78 cases listed by Evans as typical illustrations, to which Evans replied:

"All right strike out that testimony. The glasses are clear now."

Evans had declared in his statement that he assumed that the department "had worn glasses, rosy toward itself" in its selection of typical cases for reply.

COLVIN URGES SPEED

Urging speed, Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin, interrupted the argument with:

"I want to get this investigation ended sometime."

Evans replied to Mr. Colvin:

"You can't end this case yet. The Mayor is in the hospital. I can't prove my case without him. I want to start at the top

Alpine Rescuers See Boys Lose Hold, Go to Death

VIENNA, April 8.—(AP.)—For 20 hours three youths maintained a precarious perch 6,800 feet up on the glassy, slippery slope of Grosseh Buchstein while they shouted to make their voices heard to a rescue crew climbing up to aid them.

Before dawn today, exhausted, they gave up the fight, released their hold and slid to death at the foot of a rock crevasse, many thousand feet below.

The relief crew, which had been nearly up to them, recovered their bodies.

WALL STREET TRYING TO CORNER ELECTION, CHILD WARNS

INTER-PARTY FIGHT SHAM, HE SAYS

Watch Raskob and Shouse, He Tells Nation; Sees Liberal Victory Possible

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy, distinguished author, who is now in Los Angeles, today gave to the Los Angeles Examiner and Universal Service an interview in which he declared that under cover a battle is now going on in which Wall street seeks to capture both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Mr. Child warns the Democrats:

"SAME OLD GAME"

He continued:

"What do you see nationally? First of all, the same old game of special interests trying to control nominations. Why wouldn't they? If I want anything in the way of a stranglehold on government, what do I care who is elected provided I can nominate both men?

"You can vote then until you have penman's cramp. You are voting for my man anyhow.

"The real contest is not an election. That is why elections have begun to seem like sham battles conducted with shoo-fly oratory and pop-gun propaganda. The real battles are going on now—under cover—the battles to capture control of both parties.

"For example, keep your eye on Raskob and Shouse. Supposed to be impartial leaders of Democracy's opportunity. Are they carving out a wide-vision economic plan for a United States? In spite of a heralded engineer in the White House, and a Morrow and a Young whose wisdom, however respected, is broadcast from the microphone of a befuddled Wall street, we are still in the woods. And they say Raskob and Shouse are busy with getting what downtown New York calls 'a sound' candidate. The cards are stacked to make the prohibition question a sideshow, to keep the voters from seeing the performance in the big tent.

"The big tent today is the place to put on a sincere, independent, economic prosperity-saving general plan. Clowning with a feather duster of mere emergency measures will not get by.

"If Hoover cannot get the country behind him by a convincing system of education, cannot learn to control what we call in politics 'the boys,' and if the Democratic Party gets to be all Raskob fingers and Shouse thumbs and drops a chance to present a wide, clear economic program with more foresight than the present sweet-tongued university degreed Wall street has shown, even in its own balling up of its own business, there never was a better opening for the nuisance of a third party.

LIBERAL PROGRAM NEEDED

"As I see it, any organized liberal party would have to have in its basket a simple paraphernalia but one hard to get. Economic protection by insurance and not doles.

"First: Leadership. Political leadership is not a business nor a science. It is almost an art. This recalls Coolidge.

"Second, a concentration on keeping the United States out of this tom-foolery of poking a long nose either into the trap of a United States of Europe and League of Nations springfalls or into the impossible program of allowing Piffle, the reformer, to pervert government from its normal function of expressing social will.

"No coughs or sneezes from the Wickersham commission have even touched the ridicule heaped upon us from abroad on the crime crop and snoop-and-blackmail era which prohibition, whatever we may think of the wisdom of abstinence or temperance, has brought to us.

"We may have no use here for either Fascism or Communism. But we must be blind if we think old-fashioned so-called self-government with its tendency to split into organized minorities, many parties and confusion, or else to sheep-herd the voters to choose between Jones and Smith, both of whom have been nominated by rich man Robinson, is the last word in government possibility."

ASK GUARDIANS FOR CALVERT

The wife and two brothers of Attorney George H. Calvert, once one of Pittsburgh's most prominent attorneys, today asked Judge Sylvester J. Snee to appoint a committee to handle his affairs, because of his mental condition.

Calvert, against whom disbarment proceedings have been brought for alleged mishandling of the $3,500,000 estate of Mrs. Eleanor Davidson, has been suffering a mental condition for 18 months, Mrs. Virginia Calvert and Harry C. Calvert and J. Edward Calvert assert in the petition.

The petition says that Calvert owns property valued at $250,000, but that encumbrances totaling $175,000 are against it.

Judge Snee set April 28 as the date for hearing. If he signs the petition, his action probably will mean an end to the so-called Calvert disbarment proceedings.

Former Judge Henry G. Wasson, who also was charged with mismanagement of the Davidson estate, is disbarred from every court in Pennsylvania.

'Secret Six' Best Gang Story

"The Secret Six" was all that stood between a criminal monster and a great city. A sinister, ruthless and avaricious beast that typifies lawless gangdom, Scorpio, product of the stockyard slaughter house, is lured to the leadership of the criminal underworld by a dream of wealth and power. He makes lawlessness a business that pays fat dividends. Gangdom is in the ascendancy! Where is it headed? Where will it stop? This inside story of drama and romance, and of a newspaper's fight for justice is the most important revelation of the year.

"The Secret Six" begins in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow. It is the one story of the year that busts gangland wide open.

CANAL BACKERS PLAN CAMPAIGN

A conference with Gov. Pinchot Friday or Saturday to discuss a campaign for a recommendation to the next Congress from Army engineers and the River and Harbors Commission for No. 1 route to Ashtabula, will be sought by the Pittsburgh-Lake Erie Canal state commission. This agreement was reached at a meeting yesterday of the Chamber of Commerce contact committee, four members of which are members of the newly appointed state committee.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern told the committee that recently he had a conference with the Governor, and believed that no time should be lost in getting the work of the commission under way.

Women Petition Repeal Of Finland's Dry Law

HELSINGFORS, Finland, April 8.—(AP.)—A petition signed by over 100,000 women of Finland, asking speedy repeal of the country's prohibition law is to be presented to the president of the republic during the next few days.

Declaring themselves to be "advocates of true temperance" the women, in their petition, express an anxiety over the fate of future generations because of what they alleged to be a continuous spread of drunkeness under the present dry statute. The petition declares:

"We feel ourselves powerless, while prohibition, with its destructive moral consequences, instead of a sensible law for controlling consumption of alcohol, to begin truly effective temperance work."

The women who initiated the petition maintain that the prohibition law in Finland has resulted an increase of smuggling, in crime and drunkenness.

Prohibition in Finland, the petition said, is supported only by "fanatics and bootleggers."

CERMAK READY TO TAKE REINS IN CHICAGO

Democrat Beats 'Big Bill' By 191,916; Thompson Will Leave on Cruise

International News Service.

CHICAGO, April 8.—While his record-breaking victory over Mayor William Hale Thompson is being canvassed officially today, Anton J. Cermak, Democrat, is preparing to take office late tomorrow or Friday morning as the fifty-seventh mayor of Chicago.

Cermak, familiarly known as "Tony," emerged yesterday from one of the bitterest elections ever fought here with the added honor of being chosen to serve during the 1933 World's Fair.

He was elected by a majority of 191,916 votes in an election in which 1,143,142 votes were cast for a new city election record.

Mayor Thompson, who accepted his defeat cheerfully, retires today. He will leave the city for a 10-day cruise with a party of friends down the Mississippi river.

CARRIES 45 WARDS

Cermak, a native of Bohemia, who rose from a coal miner to become one of Chicago's great political figures, won in 45 of the city's 50 wards, even carrying Mayor Thompson's home ward by a substantial majority.

Upon taking the reins of the city government, Cermak will resign as president of the Board of County Commissioners, an office in which he was starting his third term.

The record-breaking majority that swept Cermak into office broke the 1915 mark established by Thompson at the time of his first election.

Although Thompson waged what was virtually a lone-handed fight, he polled 475,613 votes in his attempt to win a fifth term.

The result yesterday was not surprising in view of the fact that Cermak, an anti-dry politician, is probably one of the most resourceful leaders of the Democratic party. His win recalls the record-breaking vote recently garnered by Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, for the United States senatorship.

Although disappointed that he could not be World's Fair Mayor, "Bill Bill," as the Mayor is affectionately called, took his defeat with a smile. He said he abided cheerfully by the people's decision and added he would devote his future time toward the two projects closest to his heart—flood control and completion of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway.

N. Y. INQUIRY BOARD MEETS

ALBANY, N. Y., April 8.—(AP.)—The legislative committee which will investigate the affairs of the city of New York held its first meeting today. Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, of New York, was elected chairman of the committee, which formally designated Samuel Seabury as chief counsel.

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—Thomas C. T. Crain, Manhattan's silver-haired district attorney, took the stand today to fight charges of inefficiency on which the City Club demands his removal. He began immediately to answer questions about his investigations of racketeering.

Commissioner Samuel Seabury, hearing the charges for Gov. Roosevelt, prefaced the proceedings with a statement that the accusations "do not in any respect call into question the honesty and integrity of the district attorney."

CITY OPPOSES NEW TAXICAB CONCERN

Files Protest With P. S. C., Upholding Monopoly Here, Praising Parmalee Group

The city today, through its law department, stood in the way of another attempt to break up the taxicab monopoly in Pittsburgh by opposing issuance of a certificate of public convenience to the Peoples Blue Taxicab Company which proposes to put in operation 400 new limousine type cabs.

A protest, citing four reasons, and drawn by City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and Charles P. Lang, special assistant, has been sent to the Public Service Commission.

The principal reason in the petition calls the commission's attention to its own ruling in refusing a former application of the company made about a year ago in which the present service given by the Parmalee Transportation Company through its Yellow and Green taxicabs is termed "reasonably safe."

The city protested the application of the Highland Taxicab Company about a year ago at a Public Service Commission hearing. Better Traffic Committee representatives appeared before the commission.

Other reasons given in the latest city protest brand the proposed Peoples' cab service as a "menace to the lives, limbs and property of the inhabitants of the city." It is contended that the new cabs would increase traffic congestion, particularly in the downtown area. The proposed service also is termed unnecessary to the "convenience of the public."

Another reason cited by the city solicitors places the official approval on Parmalee service, terming it adequate to the needs of the public.

WIFE SPEEDS TO LONGWORTH

Oxygen was used in treating him yesterday but the physicians said it was used solely as a precaution.

Longworth, a Republican, began his service in Congress in 1903. He has since continuously represented the first Ohio district.

CAPITAL SPECULATES

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP.)—The illness of Nicholas Longworth emphasized speculation here today on what might happen in the next Congress.

A comfortable Republican majority last session put Longworth back in the speaker's chair he had occupied for four years. In the Seventy-second Congress, however, Republicans will have only one or two more votes than Democrats. A few defections from either party could switch control.

The day the last Congress adjourned sine die and he became technically plain "Representative Longworth (Rep.), Ohio," the Speaker told the assembled legislators that something higher than they would have a hand in the establishment of the new House. He said:

"Perhaps this is the last time I will address you from this rostrum. It is only an all-wise Providence who is going to determine which of the two major parties will organize the next House.

"With whatever that Providence may decree, I am abundantly satisfied."

Iron Worker Injured In Fall Down Steps

Hugh Davis, 48, of 107 East Montgomery avenue, a structural iron worker, was in Mercy Hospital today with a possible skull fracture suffered last night when he fell down a flight of steps in the Structural Iron Workers' Hall, at 7 Marion street, according to detectives. Davis was ascending the stairs to attend a meeting when he fell.

Sweep Winners Facing Threat of Confiscation

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 8.—(AP.)—Members of the family of Clayton C. Woods, who won approximately $860,000 in the recent Grand National Steeplechase sweepstakes, today were awaiting anxiously the opinion of the city corporation counsel as to whether they could collect their money and continue to live in Buffalo.

John J. Aeschbach, city director of welfare, yesterday asked the corporation counsel for an opinion on a section of the law providing that the proceeds of lotteries shall be forfeited "to the use of the poor."

He also asked for an opinion on three sections of the state penal code which appeared to make it his duty to bring legal action to recover from the Woods family the amount of their prize money, and to use it for poor in this city.

Clayton Woods and his wife were in Canada today on a vacation. Others of the family who shared in the prize declined to discuss the matter.

It has been pointed out that the Woods family might evade the law by transferring their legal residence to Ireland, where the money is to be paid the latter part of this week.

MARY ARRESTED FOR HYMIE VISIT

CLEVELAND, April 8.—(INS.)—"Akron Mary" Outland Woodfield, chestnut-haired sweetheart of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, convicted slayer of former Councilman William E. Potter, was arrested in county jail here this afternoon when she sought to pay Martin a visit in his cell.

The arrest was made by Detective Bernard Wolf on orders of Detective Inspector Cornelius Cody. Wolf was the arresting officers of Martin in Pittsburgh last February 12.

Inspector Cody, it was learned, had ordered her arrest if she ever came to see Martin again. The detective issued the order after "Akron Mary" spent more than an hour with her sweetheart at county jail last Saturday, a day after Martin was found guilty of the murder.

Cody declared after the arrest that an agreement to stay away from Martin was one of the conditions for her release after she testified in Martin's trial last week.

WILL PROVE FRAUD SAYS EVANS

and hit the bottom. I've asked for him five times."

When Evans finished reading his statement he called for City Inspectors G. A. Barnes, F. P. MacEwan and A. E. Bean and an argument ensued as to the methods of procedure. Evans declaring that he intended to call between 40 and 50 city inspectors before he concluded his case. A short recess was called while Attorney Beatty, Attorney Colvin and Mr. Evans conferred.

PALMER CALLED

Palmer, it is alleged, is a director of the West Penn Sand and Gravel Company, of which Mannella, who has been awarded hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of city sewer improvements, is president.

Director Lang disclaiming any knowledge of Palmer's alleged "outside connections" said that he has sent a long letter to Palmer summoning him to his office to explain the charge when he has sufficiently recovered from an illness which confines him to his home in North Lang avenue. Paul D. Palmer, a son of the division engineer, is listed as a salesmen for the West Penn Sand and Gravel Company.

Mannella is also president of the Mike Mannella Contracting Company which has done considerable work for the Department of Public Works.

When the hearing opened Attorney Evans, accuser of the department, began reading into the records increases of final quantities over the original engineers' estimates in 22 street paving and sewer jobs.

READS CRITICISMS

Evans also read with each item comments made by Hopkins, Evans' expert witness. Hopkins questioned the propriety of more than doubling the Grandview avenue contract in order to change the grade.

Hopkins said a separate contract should have been let to care for the increase. President John S. Herron interrupted Evans to say that the extension of the contract had been authorized by Council on request of citizens of the district.

He said that the contractor was already on the job when it was decided to make the change, and that it would have been difficult to put another on the work at the same time.

Continuing, Hopkins said that it was unfortunate that the increases were nearly always in higher priced items. He asserted that the use of broken stone subbase and the consequent extra excavation was unnecessary.

TESTIMONY HALTED

Just before Attorney Evans called for the testimony of the three city inspectors he recalled J. B. Love to the stand. Love testified 10 days ago relative to alleged favoritism in the awarding of city contracts. Evans said:

"These gentlemen here have the idea that you talked with Mr. Tom Reed in 1929."

Love replied:

"Well, I have the record of the date here now."

Before he could continue, Attorney Colvin, apparently under the impression that Love was going to change his previous testimony, asked that it be held up until a transcript of his statements can be obtained from the stenographers.

The hearing was then adjourned until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Ignorance of their work and stupidity of the city's witnesses were blamed for delays in the city improvement program today by Attorney Evans in answer to repeated assertions of Director Lang that the investigation was holding up the spring work of his department. Evans said it was one more proof of the incompetence of the departmental heads.

National Tax Cut Far Off, Coolidge Declares

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 8.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

It will do no harm to have a reminder that when the Congress passes laws requiring the expenditure of money the people will have to pay it. When a deficit exists it must be met. Temporary borrowing by the Treasury may take care of it for the present, but finally the taxpayers will come to a day of reckoning.

Mr. Coolidge

Raising tax rates does not now seem popular. Imposing a new levy on small incomes is anathema to those who vote large appropriations. Some legislators even boast of supporting all appropriation bills and opposing all tax bills. But people with small incomes will pay indirectly in all they buy or use even if they pay no direct tax. They are the ones who suffer most from government extravagance.

The present high rate of taxes, especially state and local assessments, is one of the main reasons small concerns are closing up and their business is going to chain stores and other large corporations. The overhead of taxes is so large that a small business is at a serious disadvantage. From present appearances it will be a long time before the country will get the encouragement of national tax reduction.

1,000 ATTEND BRILLIANT CEREMONY

Bride Receives Gifts, Jewels Worth Many Thousands; Vatican Clash Ironed Out

PALERMO, Sicily, April 8.—(AP.)—Prince Henri, Count of Paris, and Princess Isabelle of Orleans and Braganee, both descendants of the last King of France, were married here this forenoon in a ceremony witnessed by many of the highest aristocracy and nobility of Europe.

The ceremony was performed by Cardinal Lavitrano, archbishop of Palmero, who at first had withdrawn from the wedding arrangements in a protest of the Holy See against attendance of two editors considered inimical to the church.

The Vatican withdrew its objections to the Cardinal's participation yesterday when, it is believed, it was pointed out that the excommunicated editors, Leon Daudet and Charles Maurras, would be present only as journalists and not as guests.

1,000 GUESTS PRESENT

The wedding took place in the Cathedral, near the Villa d'Aumale, property of the Duke of Guise, father of Prince Henri and pretender to the French throne—the site of the Louis Philippe's exile at the time of Napoleon's abdication.

More than 1,000 guests were present. They included representatives of most of the royal houses of Europe, both those still ruling and those deposed, and of almost every other noble and aristocratic house of the Continent.

The bride, who is 18, was given away by her father, Prince Pierre or Orleans and Bragance. After the ceremony bride and bridegroom and guests attended a wedding luncheon in five giant pavilions. The prince is 23.

GIFTS WORTH THOUSANDS

Princess Isabelle wore a gown of rich satin embroidered in silver palm leaves, woven especially for her and presented by the Royalist Ladies of Lyons, France. Her veil was of Brussels lace, held in place by a bandeau of diamonds. She also wore two necklaces and pearl earrings, but carried a missal instead of a bridal bouquet.

Prince Henri's gifts to his bride were two pearl necklaces, two diamond diadems, a pair of pearl earrings, a pair of diamond and pearl earrings and a diamond brooch.

Other bridal gifts included silver, tapestries and vases valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

INSURANCE MAY ADD $100,000

Heavy Stock Market Losses Cut Deeply Into Estate; Valuation Not Positive

International News Service.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 8.—The will of Knute A. Rockne, famous coach of Notre Dame, was filed today with the county clerk. Mrs. Rockne and the American Trust Company were named executors.

While no valuation has been made of Rockne's property, it was said his holdings probably will not total more than $50,000. The widow and three sons and a daughter will receive this sum, in addition to about $100,000 insurance. There is a possibility the insurance may be increased because of a double indemnity clause.

Intimates said Rockne lost heavily in the stock market and made other unprofitable investments.

CRASH LAID TO SLEET

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP.)—The weather has official blame for the airplane crash that killed Coach Knute Rockne and seven others at Bazaar, Kan., March 31.

After saying unofficially that ice broke the plane propeller, the Commerce Department asserted yesterday that a coating of sleet on the wings of the plane apparently was responsible for the mishap.

In formal findings, the department said its aeronautics inspector found evidence which indicated weather was the "primary cause of the accident."

BOYS RETURN TO SCHOOL

KANSAS CITY, April 8.—(AP.)—Knute Rockne, Jr., and Billie Rockne returned today to their studies at Pembroke School for Boys after attending the funeral of their father, the football genius of Notre Dame, one of eight killed in an airplane crash at Bazaar, Kan.

NEW YORK, April 8.—(INS.)—A solemn memorial mass was held in St. Patrick's Cathedral, on Fifth avenue, today, for Knute Rockne. Most of those who attended were graduates of Notre Dame. Mayor James J. Walker and a friend, also, attended the mass.

CUNARD LINER GOES AGROUND

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 8.—(AP.)—The giant Cunard liner Berengaria was anchored in a dense fog off Nab Tower, at the entrance of the Spithead today, after spending several hours aground nearby.

Astray in a heavy fog, the liner went aground early in the evening as it proceeded from Cherbourg.

Four tugs went out from Southampton, but their efforts also were futile until reinforced by two others and a rising tide at 3 a. m. today.

All but 75 of the liner's passengers were removed by tender shortly after the accident and were taken to Southampton. The 75 preferred to spend the night on the ship rather than risk the trip by small boat into port.

Actress Gets $11,950 For Broken Contract

NEW YORK, April 8.—(INS.)—Betty Starbuck, musical comedy actress, was $11,950 richer today. She received an award of that amount from the American Arbitration Association as the balance due under a contract she held with Charles Dillingham, New York producer.

The actress said she was promised roles in two plays, which the producer later decided he would not stage.

Cigaret Price Up As Warfare Ends

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—The cigaret price war, started two years ago, is over.

Officials of two leading retail chain stores said that, effective Saturday, the price of popular brand cigarets would be raised to 15 cents or two for 27 cents. They have been retailing at 13 cents or two for a quarter.

MINERS AGREE ON PEACE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 8.—(INS.)—Peace returned today to the anthracite field.

By acclamation, the general grievance committee representing 22,000 miners of the Glen Alden Coal Company this afternoon adopted a resolution to return to work.

Their action came after the general committee had received and adopted a report of its special sub-committee which reached an agreement with the operators and district union officials on settlement of grievances.

9th Victim of Fire In Log Cabin Dying

GALLIPOLIS, O., April 8.—(AP.)—The remains of a father and his seven children who perished in flames were placed in one casket for burial today at the nearby Mercerville Cemetery, while the sole surviving son was believed dying.

The victims were James White, 59, and seven of his eight children, ranging from 3 to 20, burned to death when fire destroyed their two-room log cabin on the banks of the Ohio River at Swan Creek yesterday.

Bullet 'Kills' Man After Fatal Fall

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 8.—(AP.)—Death was dealt doubly to Benjamin Rogers, 54, special agent for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, last night.

Rogers fell through the hatch of a refrigerator car. His neck was broken and the force of the fall caused his gun to explode, the bullet passing through his body.

Weather Conditions.

The skies are clear this morning over much the greater portion of the country and the only cloudy area, worthy of note, being over the Rocky Mountain section. The only rain areas are along the Atlantic Coast, where the disturbance that was centered off the New Jersey Coast yesterday morning, influenced the weather during yesterday and last night and over the Rocky Mountain states where low pressure prevailed. The western low pressure is now converged into one center over Eastern Saskatchewan and extends southward over the plains states. The only noticeable effect on the weather over the plains states is the rising temperature condition there. Temperature of 80 degrees and higher occurred over that section yesterday afternoon.

BANKER GUILTY, GETS 210 YEARS

WEST POINT, Neb., April 8.—(AP.)—Paul Wupper, who embezzled a million dollars from his bank, at Beemer, pleaded guilty today to 20 counts of forgery, in District Court. He was sentenced to a total of 210 years in prison, and was fined $500 on each count. He was arrested in Philadelphia, a few days ago, for bigamy.

District Judge Clinton Chase sentenced the former mayor and bank president, on his plea of guilty, to 20 years in prison on the first forgery charge and 10 years on each of the other 19 charges. The sentences are to run consecutively. The charges involved forgeries totaling $35,000.

Wupper, who is 54, also was charged with tse embezzlement of $67,000 from the bank, which failed in September, 1928, but this count was not pressed. When asked by the district judge if he had anything to say, Wupper mumbled:

"I'm sorry."

Children Get Estate Of Air Crash Victim

WHEELING, W. Va., April 8.—(AP.)—The will of C. A. Robrecht, of Wheeling, who was killed in the same airplane accident as Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's football coach, was filed for probate yesterday. The entire estate, valued at more than $100,000, will go to his several children.

French Rail Men Coming for Survey

A three-day survey of Pennsylvania Railroad operations in the Pittsburgh district will be made by 11 officials of the French State Railways and the Northern Railways of France, who will arrive here April 15. They will be accompanied from Altoona by J. B. Fisher, assistant to the general manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Peaches' Former Manager Bankrupt

NEW YORK, April 8.—(AP.)—Edgar Allen, theatrical representative, who said he once was worth a quarter of a million dollars, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities or assets were not listed. Allen managed Frances "Peaches" Browning, among others.

JOBLESS DUPED, SUSPECT HELD

Alleged to have victimized several score of unemployed men and women in the Pittsburgh district, Harry C. Lake, 48, of Indiana, Pa., was turned over to city detectives today by Postoffice Inspector George V. Craighead.

Offering employment to 100 men and women through an advertisement, Lake received scores of replies, police said. In reply he is alleged to have offered them membership in the "Mutual Aid Society" for a fee of $1 and guaranteed employment to its members, police say. Complaints of alleged victims led to an investigation by postal authorities and he was arrested in the Pittsburgh Postoffice while calling for his mail.

GEORGE V. GAINS IN ILLNESS

WINDSOR, Eng., April 8.—(AP.)—The British public, which had been awaiting anxiously for news from the sick-room of their monarch, was heartened this forenoon by an official statement that there was a slight improvement in the condition of King George.

His Majesty had been suffering since last Sunday from a chest cold, which yesterday was designated in an official bulletin as an attack of sub-acute bronchitis.

In view of yesterday's announcement that his progress, while satisfactory had been slow, today's statement from his castle residence that there had been an improvement was regarded as favorable.

Authoritative quarters pointed out, however, that a condition of the kind must take some time to clear up—at least several days.

His Majesty, it was learned, still is up and about his room.

SHORT WEIGHT CHECK SPREADS

A general checkup of weights in all commodities sold in the produce yeards here was announced today by James P. Bailey, chief inspector of the city Bureau of Weights and Measures, following complaints of short weights in five carloads of Idaho potatoes. Bailey declared:

"This is just a beginning. I will check all commodities received at the produce yards and within a week we will prosecute any dealer who sells underweight to retail merchants or consumers."

The shipment of Idaho potatoes consisted of bags supposed to weigh 15 pounds each. Produce dealers receiving the lot maintained there was a shrinkage, due to the potatoes drying in transit. A city ban placed on the shipment was partially lifted today when the shortages were corrected. Bailey, placing blame for the shortage, said:

"We're not going to let Idaho flood the city with short weight sacks of potatoes. I think the produce dealers should make arrangements with the shippers to keep these bags up to the required 15 pounds."

JURY PROTESTS, ROOMS CLEANED

Complaining to Presiding Judge George V. Moore that jury sleeping quarters in the county jail were unfit for human occupancy and unsanitary, a jury of six men and six women in the trial of Emil Schoen, of Bellevue, charged with murder, won a court order directing the walls of the dormitory be washed today.

Judge Moore, inspecting the quarters, admitted the place was not of "inviting" appearance, but denied it was unclean. He said the walls had been plastered recently, but had not been repainted.

Sums Up City Works Charges

or even lessened these errors. If any such proof is available, the department, in justice to itself, should produce it.

"For instance, the department should procure and place in the record a tabulation from the Controller's office, beginning with and showing (1) contract number, (2) name of street, (3) basis of award, (4) final estimate on all jobs from June, 1928, to April 1, 1931.

"This tabulation would tend to show to what extent, if at all, the new system has successfully lowered the spread between contract awards and final payment, which, in 1926, 1927 and 1928, was $1,100,000.

"I have used four main lines of attack:

"(1) That there was gross under-estimation of quantities;

"(2) That there was inadequate preliminary investigation and study;

"(3) That there was faulty design;

"(4) That the whole viewpoint of the department towards bid prices was contrary to that used in private business.

"The department started out to combat the first line, but abandoned this attempt and now admits, by direct testimony and emphasis on the new method of June, 1928, that there was gross under-estimation of quantities.

"Of course, I knew before I began, that there were occasional happenings which could not be foreseen, which would increase quantities, but my argument was then and still is, that 428 instances of gross increases in 77 jobs, average increases ranging from 100 per cent to 4,245 per cent, occurring in more than 10 per cent of all contracts in 1926, 1927 and 1928, and totaling $1,100,000, could not be explained away on the ground of 'contingencies which could not be foreseen.'

FAULTS REVEALED

"As to the second line of attack, inadequate investigation and study, we have introduced several examples: butter clay, lumber, cuts and fills, slope facing, use of expensive lumnite concrete, extra concrete, switching from sandstone curb reset to concrete curb, extra work greater than original contract, etc.

"As nearly as I can arrive at the department's attitude on this criticism, it is that it is not allowed by Council sufficient time for planning. I do not know enough about the pros and cons and facts of this answer, but if the answer is well founded in fact, my reply is that the department is lacking in courage and backbone when it does not energetically and plainly fight any attempt to hurry it.

"The third ground of criticism, faulty design, is illustrated by the broken stone sub-base item, and others mentioned in referring to the second ground.

"The fourth ground of criticism, divergence from private business practice, is, in my mind, the most important of all the grounds.

"Director Lang states that his department, in five years, has carried through more than 1,300 jobs, totaling more than $10,000,000, in which the increase of the final cost over the contract cost has been considerably over $1,100,000, and in which there have been tremendous increases in quantities and yet, in only six cases, has any attempt been made to secure unit price reductions, and in no case, so far as I can find, has the $10,000,000 been reduced by so much as one cent.

"To state the facts, which are not denied, is to demonstrate the enormous divergence from ordinary private business practice. Concededly, the most bizarre anomalies in bid prices have brought forth nothing but a smile—but no attempt to ascertain the reasons, if any, behind them.

FEW BIDS REJECTED

"In only two or three cases were bids ever rejected—an unheard-of-thing in private business.

"There are many possibilities as a result of such a system; the most obvious of which are:

"(1) Cases where the city loses no money, but the actual low bidder is not the selected bidder; in other words, unfairness as between contractors. Actual results in the Supplies Department show that this defect drives out competent, honest bidders and leaves the field to bidders less to be desired. As one contractor said to me, 'You never saw our name as a bidder for city jobs, did you?'

"(2) Where the city loses money, but there may be no graft. For example, on the Boulevard of the Allies, east of Brady street job, the loss was $5,613.89; in Mt. Washington roadway to west line of property of Allegheny County the loss was $642.84. These are the only cases I have tabulated. I am sure there are others among the 78.

"(3) Where the city loses money and there is graft.

RESULTS SHOWN

"Mr. Shoecraft gave us a prime example of the operation of a better system; $1,800,000 of sewer work, 66 jobs, done at 3.6 per cent below, not 50 per cent above, contract cost.

"Mr. Hopkins has shown us better results in adjoining territory, where conditions are similar to our own.

"So much for the technical side of the investigation, the first charge. The department has selected 14 street, sewer and bridge jobs which it considers typical. I assume, of course, that the department has worn glasses, rosy towards itself, in this selection, but make no complaint on that score. The department needs salve for the healing of the hard knocks I have been forced to give it.

"My second charge was that the system opened the door to fraud. Our work would be only partly done if it were not shown who walked through the door marked 'Fraud,' and what they did after they were 'on the inside.' When the department has finished with its presentation of its side of the technical questions, we will be ready to go forward with this worthwhile aspect of the investigation—and we will get results."

"Know Your Own Home Town"

WIN YOUR SHARE OF $1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES

CONTEST PICTURE No. 4

WHAT CITY OR TOWN DOES THIS PICTURE REPRESENT?

The answer to the above cartoon is among these names: Monessen, Scottdale, Bedford, California, Berlin, Uniontown, Washington, Punxsutawney, Meadville, Tyrone, Altoona, Carnegie, Castle Shannon, Beaver Falls, Johnstown, Wilkinsburg, East Liberty, Oakland, Allegheny or Butler, Pa.; Wheeling or Morgantown, W. Va.; Canton, Mansfield or Sebring, Ohio. Do not submit the answers to the cartoons until the end of the contest.

Read These Simple Rules:

(1) Under the title, "Know Your Own Home Town," the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph will publish a series of cartoons to run consecutively for 40 days, starting Sunday, April 5th. All of these cartoons will represent a city, town or borough in the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph and prizes will be awarded to readers who submit the neatest and most nearly correct set of answers.

(2) A total of $1,000.00 in cash prizes will be awarded, divided as indicated in another part of this announcement.

(3) This offer is open to all except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and their families. You pay nothing. Files of the Sun-Telegraph are available at the Public Library or at the office of the Sun-Telegraph and you may make tracings of the cartoons if you desire.

(4) Answers to the contest are not to be submitted until the entire set of 40 has been printed. After the last (No. 40) cartoon has appeared, entrants will be allowed 15 days to submit their sets of answers. They are to be addressed to the "Know Your Own Home Town" Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

(5) All answers submitted become the property of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and none will be returned. The judges will be appointed by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and their decision will be final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

POOR APPEALS SET RECORD

More appeals from the poor, the sick and unemployed are being received by the Pittsburgh Improvement of the Poor now than at any time in the 55 years of its existence, it was disclosed today.

Each month this association, according to its records, cares for more than 400 families, dispenses more than 600 grocery orders, 150 pairs of shoes, 1,000 articles of wearing apparel. In the last year 9,000 visits were made to needy families, and fuel and furniture provided. Last year work was secured for more than 35,000 men. During the winter 8,000 bushels of coal were supplied.

While the employment department is seeking jobs for unemployed men, they do temporary work in the various renovating departments of the institution, reclaiming clothes, household articles and furniture.

The third and fourth floors of the building on Duquesne way consist of dormitories. The association has a newly established branch on Webster avenue.

THOUSANDS ARE PAYING TRIBUTE

No Wonder Seven Million Bottles of Konjola Were Used in 2 Years.

There is gratitude in every word expressed by Mr. Charles H. Jessup, 1908 E. 69th street, Cleveland, Ohio. He says of Konjola: "I was so ill that I could not breathe when lying down and was forced to sit in a chair. From December to March I could do no work whatever. I took eight bottles of Konjola and today I am as sound as a dollar. I rest well, have regained my lost weight and feel better than I have in years."

Mr. Charles H. Jessup

Equally grateful is the expression of Mrs. E. Dawson, 2036 West 31st street, Cleveland, Ohio. She has this to say: "I was run down and unable to sleep because of nervousness. I was constipated and suffered misery after meals. Neuritis attacked my arms and shoulders. Headaches and backaches were fearful. Today, after taking Konjola, I am relieved of all these miseries and feel better than I have in a long time."

Mrs. E. Dawson

Konjola contains no alcohol or harmful drugs.

WIDER UTILITY QUIZ ASKED

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, April 8.—A deeper investigation into the public utilities, by both Senate and House, with a view of seeking a federal and state remedy for securities regulation, will be suggested today before the House investigating committee.

The committee will be shown a plan by Representative Louis Hagmaier, of Aspinwall, a member of the group. His idea is that they go before the Senate requesting a joint hearing with the House. At this hearing members of the Moore committee will give their individual reports on the investigation to date, its finding and their deductions.

Hagmaier will go further and ask a joint Senate and House committee to function after the Legislature adjourns. Its object would be to go into utility securities, and present to the federal government a plan for regulation that would control interstate traffic in them.

The House committee resumed its inquiries late today.

King Names Gas Tax Arbitration Board

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(INS.)—Dr. Clyde L. King, secretary of revenue, today named a special board of three members to which will be referred all controversial questions in connection with payment of gasoline taxes. Those named were A. P. Delahunt, Lloyd S. Persun and Clyde E. Smith, all attaches of the department.

The new board will sit each Tuesday and Wednesday to hear appeals in gasoline tax cases. Requests for hearings may be filed with Delahunt, the chairman, who

Pinchot Still Scans 'Borrowing' Bill

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today said that the question of increasing Philadelphia's emergency borrowing capacity from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000 is still under consideration.

Recently the Governor announced that his approval of an increase was dependent on his decision as to whether it would result in an increase in the tax rate in Philadelphia next year.

Cuts Her Arm in Fall on Cups at Church Dinner

Aiding a woman who stumbled while serving dinner in East Liberty Presbyterian Church last night Mrs. Margaret Ulrich, 25, of 623 North Negley avenue, fell on broken cups and severed an artery on her arm. She was taken to West Penn Hospital in serious condition.

The dinner was a testimonial to Mrs. Westanna M. Pardee, of 5802 Rippey street, teacher of a class of 70 or more women for the last 16 years. Mrs. Ulrich was chairwoman of the banquet.

MANAGER BILL RESURRECTED

The latter body would appoint the city manager and fix his salary.

A second bill sponsored by Representative Moore, which would enable Philadelphia to adopt the plan, is still in the hands of the elections committee. A public hearing on this measure will be held here next Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Chairman Moore also announced that the administration election code bill had been referred to a sub-committee, the members of which are Representative Sterling, Philadelphia; Carmany, Venango, and Cauffiel, Cambria.

Job Insurance Bills Upheld at Hearing

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—Enactment of unemployment insurance legislation in Pennsylvania was urged upon the House Committee on Pensions and Gratuities at a public hearing yesterday.

P. J. McGrath, Pittsburgh, representing 75 trade union and other organizations, urged enactment of insurance legislation, as did Helen Hall, head of the University Settlement of Philadelphia.

Bill Proposes Ban On Death Penalty

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—Capital punishment would be made illegal in Pennsylvania under the terms of a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Leroy Chapman, Warren.

ANNEXATION PLAN OPPOSED

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—The Brandt annexation bill was criticized as hamstringing cities and praised as preventing the crippling of townships at a hearing yesterday before a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on New Counties and County Seats.

Representatives of the State Association of Boroughs, the League of Third Class Cities, the State Planning Association and third class cities officials appeared as opponents to the measure, while Senator Herman P. Brandt, Allegheny, sponsor of the bill, was the only proponent speaker.

The bill provides for an entire borough or township voting on the question of annexation to a borough or city instead of leaving the matter in the hands of the taxpayers in the section of the borough or township which a city or borough desires to annex.

PINCHOT ROADS BILL SPEEDED

HARRISBURG, April 8.—The administration's bill to take over 20,000 miles of township roads will come up in the House April 20 at 10 o'clock under special order of business. It had been on the calendar today for final action.

Representative Turner, of Delaware, made the motion to make the bill a special order of business. Yesterday Turner unsuccessfully endeavored to have the bill sent back to committee.

"he Delaware member has sought to obtain from the Highway Department the cost of improving and maintaining this added highway mileage.

State Income Tax Measure Reported

HARRISBURG, April 8.—An amendment to the state constitution to permit a state income tax and to allow the inheritance tax to be graded so as to impose higher levies on large estates than small ones was reported to the Senate today for action by the Senate Committee on Judiciary General. It is sponsored by Senator George Woodward, Philadelphia.

MUSMANNO BILL DELAYED

HARRISBURG, April 8.—Action on the Musmanno coal and iron police bill was deferred until next week at least by the Senate Judiciary General Committee which met today. The meeting was brief and a committee member said:

"We have a whole stack of bills left over for next week."

State Bonus Bill Adopted by Senate

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—The Senate yesterday passed the Harris proposed constitutional amendment to enable the state to make soldiers' bonus, old age pension and mothers' assistance payments. The vote was 41 to 4.

If approved by the House and the Governor it must be approved by the 1933 Legislature and by the electorate.

House Votes Double Compensation Bill

HARRISBURG, April 8.—Among bills passed finally by the House yesterday were those of Senator Mansfield, Allegheny, and Representative Fitzgerald, Erie. The former provides for double compensation for minors injured or killed while illegally employed. The other makes the city treasurer of third class cities the collector of all city and school taxes.

BLUE LAW FOES MAP ATTACK

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(INS.)—Advocates of "blue law" modification today began a series of informal conferences to lay plans for a mass attack on the Sunday observance law of 1794 in the Lower House of the Legislature next Tuesday.

Proponents of liberal legislation were heartened by their success in having the Schwartz bill made a special order of business in the House at 2 o'clock on that day.

Meanwhile the House Committee on Elections today voted 13 to 12 to postpone indefinitely action on the Denning County local option bill. The Denning bill was the only blue law measure not referred to the Law and Order Committee, which several weeks ago tabled all bills affecting the law of 1794, except the Schwartz bill.

At the same time the House Committee on Law and Order killed a group of bills designed to modify the Sunday blue laws and also postponed action indefinitely on the Beyer resolution for an investigation of "alleged mal-administration of the state prohibition enforcement act.

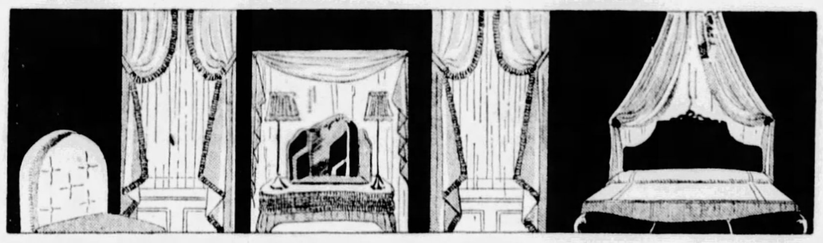
CELANESE Decorative Fabrics



You can easily carry out the ideas you glean from the exhibit of Celanese Fabrics, for the materials are quite inexpensive and thoroughly practical.

Several varieties of this silk-like fabric—all of them color-fast, washable, and unharmed by rain or fog—are being displayed as draperies, curtains, and decorative pieces.

Celanese Voile and Ninon for glass curtains, $1.00 to $1.75 yard.

Celanese Taffeta is a typical taffeta with the added merits of not splitting or cracking from use or wear—for window draperies, bedspreads, vanity, canopy drapery, and for covering bedroom chairs. $1.00 yard.

Celanese Permanent Moire is used for over-draperies because the moire marking is not destroyed by fog, rain, or air. $2.50 yard.

Celanese Faille, a heavy ribbed material, is also used for draperies where an extra weight is desired. $2.50 yard.

Special! Made-to-Order Slip-Covers, $29.50

Let this be the month to re-make your living room by having cheerful slip-covers made for your sofa and chair. You may choose from more than twenty patterns in sunfast, washable cretonne that sells for 75c a yard. The slip-covers will be tailored with French seams, in our very best Horne manner. All this will cost but $29.50 . . . if you order during April. Slight additional charge for out-of-town orders.

We've Marked About 100 Better Suits to $38.50

Some of them are copies of imported models—in some instances there is just one fine suit of a kind. Strictly tailored, semi-dressy, and formal suits are included, widely varied as to fashion, fabric, and coloring . . . Models with the many youthful types of jackets which have made the suit vogue so strong this spring, and some with long coats. Of the new, uneven-surfaced fabrics, in blues, other dark colors, black, bright, and light shades, and of many weaves in tweed.

Most of the suits are unfurred, of course, although some fur-trimmed ones are in the group.

AMEN CORNER GUESTS LISTED

Dr. W. Warren Giles, scholar and lecturer, of New Jersey, will head the list of speakers for the annual Amen Corner dinner Saturday night in the William Penn Hotel, Eugene L. Connelly, chairman of the program committee, announced today.

Other speakers will be John B. Kennedy, editor of Collier's, the National Weekly; W. H. Keller, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, Jim MacWilliams, radio entertainer and vaudeville headliner, and Dr. Wepil Fer Thenews, who will discuss "The Old World's Ills."

Dr. C. Wallace Petty will be toastmaster, while Dr. Homer A. Flint, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pittsburgh, will ask the invocation. Benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. Lawrence A. O'Connell, of Epiphany Catholic Church. A musical feature will complete the program.

Seats for the dinner may be secured by addressing Fred E. Obley, secretary at William Penn Hotel.

1,000 Aliens in Net, Wait Deportation

NEW YORK, April 8.—(INS.)—More than 1,000 undesirable aliens rounded up here in a drive of police and federal authorities today awaited deportation proceedings. Officials said all would be deported before May 1. A majority of the aliens entered the country illegally through Canada and Mexico.

Mayor's Car Hits Boy, 15, at Play

BETHLEHEM, Pa., April 8.—(AP.)—While driving his car near his home, Mayor Robert Pfeifle struck Joseph Bennick, 15, who was playing ball in the street. The boy suffered a concussion of the brain, but his condition was reported in a hospital as not serious.

That's the time of a year we always hate. The smart man sleeps in the garage with the flivver.

But it's lonesome. In the old days you could sleep in the barn with the hosses and cows and have company.

In about two weeks the furniture will be on its legs again and the wife will welcome you back into the house, provided you can pass the literacy test.

Diplomats and peace advocates are still laying keels for new battleships.

Indicating the steps toward peace are still well soaped.

We are running way in arrears on our pacifism. If you talk it during a war you're a slacker and subject to all the emoluments thereof.

If you chatter pacifism during piping times of peace it's like filling hour glasses in the Sahara Desert. There's so much of it nobody pays any attention to you.

The pacifists have accumulated one glorious victory. The British admiralty wants to limit war skiffs to 20,000 tons. That's a lot of poundage. A 200-pound man can get an idea of this tremendous displacement by leaping on and off a hay scales 400,000 times.

These smaller war vessels will mean a saving to the public of $15,000,000 on every boat sunk.

England also wants big guns limited to 12 inches. This will reduce sniping to a minimum.

While the boats will be smaller the wars will be much closer together and there will be more of them. The first real step for universal peace would be to put spies on half-rations.

And while England apparently desires peace we do not think she wants it too quiet.

When a fleet of 20,000 battleships sails down the Thames nobody is going to convince us that it is only Oxford racing Cambridge.

And when the Arizona steams out loaded to the gunnels with powder and shells you know the captain ain't going canoeing.

This disarmament business is a temporary phase of national economy. And economy means trying to save some of the money you haven't borrowed yet. We keep our books balanced by carrying over some of last year's debts for next year's budget.

That's the reason we claim Andy Mellon has the toughest job in the clinic. He's got to raise the money by shearing the sheep, tempering the wind, for the shorn lamb, and show his teeth every five minutes to show there is no wool in them.

Planes Aid Fight On Forest Fires

MISSOULA, Mont., April 8.—(AP.)—Fire-fighting supplies may be rushed to sometimes inaccessible forests by airplanes this summer. The Forest Service has asked for bids on the transportation of 60,000 pounds of supplies by air to Big Prairie, northeast of Missoula, to serve 400,000 acres of land now reached only after a four-day hike by pack train. Air transportation may prove cheaper than the old method. Similar movement of supplies is planned for the Selway Forest, in Idaho.

SLEUTHS SHOOT STILL RAIDER

CLAYTON, N. C., April 8.—(AP.)—A federal prohibition agent was seriously wounded when seven county officers mistook eight Federal agents raiding a still near here for moonshiners and fired upon them.

G. W. Mallard, 25, the wounded man, was taken to a hospital at Wilson. Physicians said he had a chance of recovery.

The county officers raided the still but retired under the gunfire of the moonshiners and waited for another chance to swoop down upon the liquor plant. Unaware that the county officers were watching the still, the federal officers shortly afterward raided the plant.

While they were demolishing the outfit, the county officers opened fire, the federal officers said.

New Navy Planes Finish Hop to Cuba

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(AP.)—Two new Navy flying boats yesterday completed a flight of nearly 1,500 miles from Washington to Cuba.

The flight was made to deliver the ships to the scouting force in Cuban waters. It began here on April 3, and was completed with the arrival of the planes at Media Luna Cay, Cuba.

RULE IN STEEL BONUS DELAYED

NEWARK, N. J., April 8.—(AP.)—Vice Chancellor Backes reserved decision after hearing arguments on a motion to enjoin proposed ratification of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's bonus system at a stockholders' meeting in Newark last Tuesday.

Robert H. McCarter, representing minority stockholders, argued the question of ratification should not be taken up at the approaching meeting because the voters have not been fully informed as to all the arguments for and against the bonus system.

John H. Hardin, of defense counsel, contended settlement of the question at the coming meeting would not prevent prosecution of a pending suit by stockholders against payment of bonuses to directors and officials of the company. These bonuses are declared to have totalled $36,493,668 since 1911.

MORE EVIDENCE OF REAL MERIT

Read the Grateful Words of These Happy People Who Found Relief in Konjola

Konjola is designed to relieve ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness. Thousands who have found relief are eager to relate their experience.

Here is the statement of Mr. Daniel C. Foley, 1513 Gibson street, Scranton, Pa. He says:

Mr. Daniel C. Foley

"I had no appetite and was losing weight steadily. I did not sleep well and realized that I needed a general tonic. Friends urged me to try Konjola and in just four weeks I was eating, sleeping and feeling better than in a long time. I am gaining back my lost weight and I can, and do, recommend Konjola."

Mrs. Jennie Burnett, 1096 North Main avenue, Scranton, Pa., is another Konjola enthusiast. Read her statement:

Mrs. Jennie Burnett

"I was very nervous, did not sleep, and had neuritis pains all through my body. I had little appetite and was troubled with constipation. About a month ago I began using Konjola and have used four bottles. Today my nerves have become calm and the pains of neuritis have disappeared, I sleep well and am feeling better each day."

Just as eager in her praise of this great medicine is Mrs. Theresa Foster, 69 Carlisle street, Wilkes-Barre:

Mrs. Theresa Foster

"I suffered from stomach trouble, constipation and nervousness for three years and more. Sick headaches worried me and I did not know what it was to go a day without suffering. I took many medicines and treatments without help. Within five weeks after I began the Konjola treatment I found relief. I am not subject to headaches, I am no longer nervous and my stomach gives me no more trouble. Konjola gave me real relief."

Konjola is free from alcohol or harmful drugs. Demand Konjola and get it; don't be switched to a substitute.

Konjola is sold by all Dow, Liggett and Mayflower drug stores and by all leading druggists in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

56 Cases Reported For City Quarantine

The City Department of Health today reports these new cases in quarantine: Scarlet fever, 8; whooping cough, 5; measles, 23; chickenpox, 7; mumps, 2; pneumonia, 9, and erysipelas, 2.

SCORES COUNTY WRECKING PLAN

County Commissioners have promised "to look into" a request by Guy Miller, wrecking contractor, to have the county award contracts for removal of buildings obstructing road improvements, instead of the existing system permitting general contractors to sub-let the work.

Miller declared the general contractors award the wrecking work to "out-of-town one-horse wreckers" that have been unable to complete their work. He cited a case in which an out-of-town party bid $22,500 lower than the next bidder, a local man, and "went broke" on the job.

W. H. R. Kreiling, assistant director of the County Department of Public Works, said the county gave all the work to the general contractor because it was preferred to have one responsible head on the job.

Real Estate

An addition of six classrooms to Etna High School is being planned, according to Dr. G. A. Spear, secretary of the borough's school board. The architect is Press C. Dowler. Bids for the work are now being received.

Measures to relieve unemployment will be discussed at the sixty-fourth annual convention of the American Institute of Architects which opens Tuesday in San Antonio, Tex., and continues four days. Problems of housing, public works, real estate development and construction will be prominently featured in the program. The future of the architect and the progress of the building industry are other topics to be considered by delegates from the institute's 66 chapters, according to Robert D. Kohn, president. Co-operation of architects, builders, bankers and labor will be stressed as essential to the return of prosperity and to stable conditions in the construction field. Allied organizations, including the Producers' Council, whose members represent manufacturers of building materials, will also hold sessions during the convention.

A new idea contest, designed to bring out practical suggestions which will prove of benefit to real estate brokers, will be one of the features of the spring convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to be held in Baltimore, May 27 to 30. The Real Estate Board of Baltimore will present an award to the board whose member makes the best presentation of a new idea to increasing the efficiency and productivity of a real estate business. Several timely topics appear on the tentative program for the affair. These topics cover suburban development, organization, selling, construction and advertising. The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board is now forming a list of members who will attend the convention.

NEWEST GLIDERS

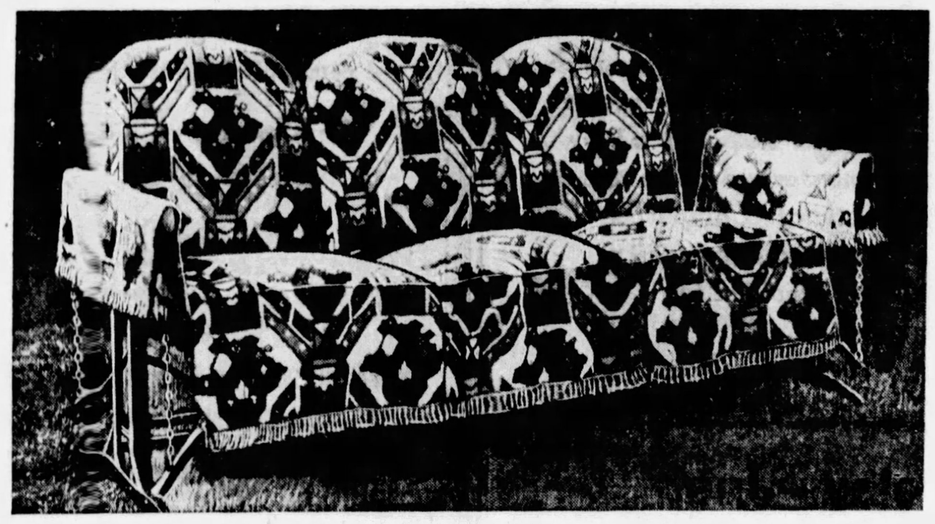
Showing 1931 Features of Construction in Smart, Unusual New Models

Demonstrating...

This offering of McCreery Gliders is combined with a special educational display to prove that McCreery Gliders are different from ordinary gliders because of the latest refinements of construction that have been incorporated in every model to assure comfort and faithful service.

First Pittsburgh Showing...

McCreery's are first to present: 1—The All-Weather Glider and the All-Weather Glider Chair to ensemble with the glider. 2—The Game Glider . . . the cushion tops of which are patterned after checkers, backgammon and other popular games. 3—The All-American Glider. The pattern of its cover is made up of the pennants of all universities and colleges.



As a Special Feature!

These New Six-Cushion GLIDERS

Last Year's Price for Similar Quality, $39.50

As a special feature for this exhibition we will sell a limited quantity of beautiful new Gliders, single and six-cushion styles (illustrated above), with link fabric springs and full ball-bearing suspensions. Upholstered in brightly colored printed duck of the heavier grade. Stationary or gliding arms.

We Will Hold These for Future Delivery
Convenient Terms of Payment May Be Easily Arranged

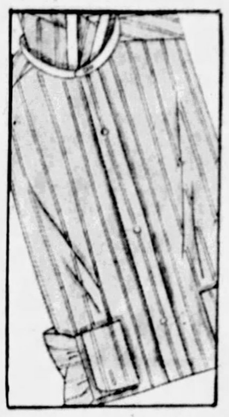
Pittsburgh Men Know McCreery Values Like These!

These four items are indicative of the many values that can ALWAYS be found in McCreery's Men's Shop . . . and Pittsburgh men know that their value is not judged by price alone, but by their superior quality, style and fine workmanship.

(Men's Shop—Street Floor)

Woven Madras SHIRTS



$1.95

You haven't seen a shirt like this at this price, for many a day. (Last year's price for shirts of similar quality was $3.00). In a wide variety of neat striped patterns on light and dark grounds, or in plain shades with self-jacquard figure. Two smartly styled laundered collars to match. Sizes 14 to 17.

(Men's Shop—Street Floor)

Men's All-Wool Slipover Sweaters

$3.95

Plain color sweaters whose quality unmistakably shows that prices are much lower than ever before. Finely knitted and carefully tailored for long service and correct fit. V or U-neck styles in blue, black, tan, green, and rust. Some have stripes at neck, cuffs and bottom of sweater. Sizes 36 to 44.

(Men's Shop—Street Floor)

Men's Plain-Color Flannel Robes

WESTINGHOUSE ORDERS GAIN

Stockholders of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, meeting today, re-elected directors whose terms had expired. They were E. M. Herr, vice chairman, and L. A. Osborne, vice president of the Westinghouse Company; H. B. Rust, president of the Koppers Company, and Samuel M. Vauclain, chairman of the board of Baldwin Locomotive Works.

President F. A. Merrick, in a statement to stockholders, said:

"At the present time the outlook is somewhat encouraging due to a slight increase in our orders.

"Your company is in good liquid condition. Current assets as of last December 31 were $115,104,125 or seven and a half times current liabilities of $15,186,858."

Regarding present earnings, Merrick said operations during January and February resulted in a deficit.

Theater Party Will Benefit Zoar Home

The Zoar Home for Babies will receive the benefits of a theater party to be held Monday night in the Pitt Theater. The general chairman, Mrs. S. F. Gordon, is being assisted by Mrs. Harry Turner, Mrs. H. P. Schoenman and Mrs. B. H. Seip.

Bank of England's Head Meets Stimson

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(INS.)—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, accompanied by George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank in New York, conferred with Secretary of State Stimson for nearly an hour today.

Men Get Control Of City From Women

YELLVILLE, Ark., April 8.—(AP)—After a year of government by women Yellville was under the rule of men again—if they stick together.

Mrs. V. L. Walton, former mayor, and three of her alderwomen retired yesterday, but three other women members of Council ran again and were re-elected.

Unless Mayor T. B. Russell can force a full attendance of his three aldermen at Council meetings the men will still be unable to control city affairs.

'MIKADO' TO BE GIVEN TONIGHT

"The Mikado," Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, will be presented tonight in the Perry High School auditorium, under auspices of the North End Methodist Episcopal Church. In the cast will be the Rev. James Allen Kestle, George Bradel, Charles P. Grim, Harold Mullaugh, Henry Schwan, Dorothy Phillips, Della Henderson, Doris Deitrich, Nita Kegg Schwan and Wade Phillips. Special scenery has been loaned by the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Through an error it was announced yesterday that the play was to be given last night.

Dr. Karlfeldt, Poet, Dies in Stockholm

STOCKHOLM, April 8.—(INS.)—Dr. Erik Axel Karlfeldt, one of the foremost poets of Europe, died at his home here today.

ARREST DOCTOR AT LECTURE

A lecture on dieting was interrupted in the Fort Pitt Hotel last night when the principal speaker was arrested, charged with misdemeanor. He is accused of practicing medicine without a state license.

Dr. Charles R. Cox, a resident of the hotel, was addressing a gathering of women in the Tudor Room, when he was approached by Constable Hymen Cohen who arrested him on charges made by W. J. Hawes, of Greenville, investigator of the state medical board.

Dr. Cox spent last night in the county jail and was released today on $1,000 bond for his appearance before Alderman Thomas D. Jones, Carson street, tomorrow afternoon.

7 Race Horses Die As Stables Burn

CHICAGO, April 8.—(INS.)—Trapped in their blazing stalls, seven valuable race horses were killed by suffocation today in the stables of Mrs. Anna Dean, widow of the well-known horseman, Charles Dean, at Palatine, Ill., a suburb. More than 50 other horses escaped serious injury.

The horses were formerly owned by ex-Congressman Stanley Kunz.

Cambria Slayers Granted Respite

HARRISBURG, April 8.—(AP.)—Respites staying the executions of Joseph Parze and Frank Powell, both of Cambria County, from the week beginning April 20, to May 11, were granted today by Gov. Pinchot. The respites were necessitated by postponement of the meeting of the Board of Pardons from April 15 to April 22.

SELF-DEFENSE SLAYER'S PLEA

The fatal shooting of Walter A. Thompson, 31, in the home of Adolph Giger in Jacks Run road, Ross Township, was not only accidental but was in self-defense, Attorney Edward G. Coll, counsel for the defendant, Emil Schoen, 35, of Bellevue, contended today after the prosecution had rested.

Coll told of Thompson coming to the Giger home with six men and quarreling with Giger. Schoen was holding the sawed-off shotgun when the men set upon him, and in the scuffle Thompson was shot, Coll contended.

Movie Producers Elect Mayer Head

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 8.—(AP.)—Louis B. Mayer was elected president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., at the annual meeting of the organization. He will succeed Cecil B. DeMille, who had served three years.

Fred W. Beetson was elected executive vice president and secretary-treasurer; Jack L. Warner, first vice president, and Joseph I. Schnitzer, second vice president.

For little stomachs with too much acid

Children are especially subject to the ills of excess acid. Sour stomach, biliousness, lack of spirits, etc., are usually the result. Quickly corrected by pleasant tasting

BRIOSCHI
(Pronounced Bree-osky)

All children like its fizzy just sweet enough taste. Quickly neutralizes the acid condition and is gently laxative, cleansing the delicate system of impurities. Give your children Brioschi. They'll like it and the results of too much acid will never trouble them.

VET BONUS ROW LANDS 3 IN JAIL

Edward Manning's World War bonus got him and two friends—one a sub-patrolman attached to Central Station—into trouble today. They were fined on disorderly conduct charges at a hearing before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg; and Joseph Tatko, 2112 Jane street, the patrolman, was suspended for a hearing before the police trial board.

Manning, who gave his address as 10 Market street, received $163 yesterday, according to testimony. He and Joseph Reese, also of Market street, quarreled at the Grand Hotel, Third avenue. J. C. Paul, cashier, called police. They were locked up.

Tatko, in civilian clothes, went to Central Police Station where he accused Cell Sergt. George Hook of taking Manning's money. Hook locked up Tatko.

Rothenberg fined Manning $10 or 10 days in the workhouse; Reese was fined $50 or 60 days, and Tatko was fined $5 or 10 days. Police said Tatko had been drinking with his friends before their arrest.

INFANT FOUND ON PORCH

Hearing a cry on the back porch of his home, Patrick Gilmore, 506 Western avenue, East Pittsburgh, left his breakfast table this morning to investigate, and found a basket containing a baby girl, about two days old. The waif, clad in newspapers, was turned over to Mrs. John Elliott, of 305 Bessemer avenue, a neighbor. Gilmore, a bachelor, is East Pittsburgh's Public Works superintendent.

NEWS OF HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM LIFE; LOCAL AMUSEMENT EVENTS

Irene Dunn Now Treading Well-Blazed Trail to Boss' Heart

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 8.

What with all these pictures about office romances, a business man's virility soon will be under suspicion if he doesn't make love to his secretary.

Irene Dunne, who went pioneering in "Cimarron," takes her notebook in hand and treads the blazed path to the Boss' heart in "The Law of the Night," an original story by Samuel Ornitz and Lester Cohen.

Irene Dunne

Paul Sloane is to direct the picture for R-K-O. He expects to start in about a week when the star returns from a vacation to New York. As soon as she finishes "The Law of the Night," Miss Dunne will go to Spain to co-star with Richard Dix in "Marcheta."

It will be right in the summer and that hot.

SAYS IT'S THE TRUTH

Robert Woolsey has been making the rounds of the auctioneers to learn how to play one in his picture, "Going, Going, Gone." Last week he was getting quite a kick out of listening to one clever lad boost the prices on cheap articles. Finally, a teakwood table, worth about $15, was put up. The bidding started briskly until at last a woman cried "Seventy-five dollars!"

Choking down a horse-laugh, the comedian turned around.

It was his wife.

LATEST GOSSIP

Several bets have been made in Hollywood as to whether Jack Gilbert will play the lead opposite Greta Garbo in "The Fall and Rise of Susan Lennox." Some say Garbo refused, others declare it was Jack and still others have it that they both balked. Rumor has put Neil Hamilton in the part. The truth of the matter is, the mysterious Swede has consented and Gilbert is eager to do the role. During the period of uncertainty, the script has been written, however, and now it remains to discover whether the role is strong enough for Jack. They were examining it over the week-end . . . The breach is said to be widening between Gloria Swanson and Samuel Goldwyn over the subject of "Rockabye." It is very likely now that she will make the picture at some other studio . . . Is it significant I wonder, that First National is seeking a new title for "Upper Underworld" that will suggest neither gangsters nor the underworld? . . . Eddie Nugent, who is jack-of-all-movie-trades but principally an actor, has been signed for the juvenile lead in "Night Nurse." Since leaving M-G-M, he hasn't missed a day's work and is making four times his contract salary . . . Chic Sale has bought a house in Beverly Hills, and has opened an advertising agency in Hollywood. He makes a specialty of writing copy for insurance ads . . . The Mayfair Club, composed of filmdom's elite, is discussing a mid-summer dance to be held at Malibu Beach. If the project goes through, a dance-floor will be erected and covered with a tent. The affair will be informal, preceded by a barbecue . . . From Siam, Douglas Fairbanks cabled last week ordering flowers to be sent to Mary Pickford on their wedding anniversary. It took four men to carry the bouquet to Pickfair.

ABANDONS HOBBY

The picturesque toy-room which Joan Crawford had built into her house is being denuded of its occupants.

Deciding she could turn her hobby to a better use, Joan is giving her collection of 2,000 dolls to Los Angeles orphans. The collection was one of the finest in the world. Fans, learning of Joan's fancy, have sent her hundreds of dolls. Through all his worries in Africa, W. S. Van Dyke remembered to get some native playthings to bring home to Joan.

"I just happened to think how much happiness I could give a lot of kids," explains the star.

She means it, too. Joan Crawford is one of the most real people in Hollywood.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Little Trader Horn," cub lion who is a namesake of "Trader Horn," motion picture of adventure and romance in Africa, showing in the Nixon, was petted by quite a number of Pittsburgh women in the theater lobby. That was just practice for him, however, since he is on his way to be petted by an expert, Edwina Booth, who is featured in the film. He is a gift to the little gal from an African chief, uncle of the native who plays the gun-bearer in the picture. Milk is his food now, but we are assured his taste in victuals will change. Class in nature study dismissed!

* * *

Seats will be available at the Alvin box office tomorrow for Jane Cowl's appearance there next week in "Twelfth Night." After her Pittsburgh engagement Miss Cowl will head for the well-known West, where men are men and cowboys are actors, playwrights and painters of pictures. She will keep going until she is headed off by the Pacific, when she will return to wind up her tour in Boston in September. By that time she will have a fairly definite idea as to the popularity of Mr. Shakespeare, one of Stratford's most promising bards.

* * *

Arthur Harlowe is a new name in the roster of the George Sharp organization, which next week is to repeat "Death Takes a Holiday," with Paul McGrath as Prince Sirki and Anne Forrest as Grazia, the same roles they played a few weeks ago. But the name is the only thing that is new, the man who claims it having been in the company previously. Then he answered the roll-call as Arthur Sprenkle. He retained the first name solely in the interest of Art.

Truth

One night I said to you: "Remember this—
If something comes to sever us apart;
A youthful spat—a silly wayward kiss—
My vagrant ways—or sudden change of heart;
If these should come—I want you now to know
That always you will matter more to me
Than anyone—and be we friend or foe
In later years—this is sincerity?"

Well, we are through—I pass you on the street
And go my way with not a backward glance;
While you have found that other lures are sweet,
And doubtless never think of the romance

That prompted me to make the boyish vow,
That has not changed a whit from then to now!
—Don Wahn.

His Error

At Dinty Moore's the other night this one made them laugh loud. It deals with a fearless Italian, imported from the old country by Chicago gangsters to do the actual job of killing people.

They set him up in the fruit-stand business, which was a "blind." At nights they paid him $200 apiece to kill enemies. He always demanded and received the $200 in advance.

The other night he got his $200 and the "mob" pointed out a chap they wanted murdered. He proceeded with the job. Then he went to sleep.

A few hours later they aroused him.

"You dope," they growled, "you knocked off the wrong guy and we paid you the $200!"

"So aw right," he indifferently replied, as he stifled a yawn, "Da next one is on me!"

Observation

And a lotta guys on Broadway who are "carrying the torch" oughta be carrying pianos.

Add Hick Towns

Lindy's new restaurant near the Hollywood Theater on Broadway, Saturday after-theater time drew excited mobs. The pavement in the front of the place was so thick with people, pedestrian and vehicle traffic was retarded. One wondered why the police had not arrived on the scene.

A fight? A stick-up? A Broadway murder? A man caught by his wife with another woman?

No! Merely Wallace Beery, the movie menace, eating a sandwich at a window table.

Add Sillies

Tid-Bits brings up the Scotch joke subject again with this one:

Best Man (seeking bridegroom after ceremony): "Where's MacAngus?"

Guest: "He's at the back of the car trying on the old shoes."

Quiteso, Quiteso

Among the interesting ciggie advertisements is that one in which Ripley is photo'd with several New York detectives taking the blindfold test. The headline on the ad reads: "New York Detectives Solve 'Black Mask' Mystery."

Which prompts Wid Matthews, sports editor for the Wilkes-Barre Sunday Telegram, to write us: "I think this is the first mystery solved by New York detectives in more than two years."

Novelette

It happened, they say, about 20 years ago when she was a salesgirl in a women's wearing apparel shop. The boss quarreled with her over something and lost his temper. He threw a coat hanger at her which struck her in the eye. As a result she still is blind in one orb.

Friends urged her to sue the man for damages. She refused. He was so grateful he elevated her to the job of buyer. An ambitious girl she was—and in no time revealed great business acumen. So much of it, as a matter of record, they had to make her a partner.

Today the store is a famous one on 5th Ave.—where she still may be seen with one good eye—her price for Opportunity and Success.

Add Inconstant Readers

The N. Y. American's theater pages include the story offered by Robert Gross of 25 W. 45th Street, who seeks a play for a girl "glorified by Ziegfeld, tutored by Belasco, enthused about by Katharine Cornell, who looks like Tallulah Bankhead, has the voice and emotional qualities of

One-Act Play Night By I. K. S. Players

Louis Isaacs, with his I. K. S. Players, is keeping a large technical staff occupied with plans for coming productions. The next effort of this active group is an evening of one-act plays to be presented Sunday evening, April 26, in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Auditorium.

These plays will be presented as a complimentary opening of the Drama League's Seventh Annual Play Contest in the Settlement Theater the same week. Under the guidance of John L. Taylor and Mrs. Helen Garber the Green Room of the I. K. S. Players is approaching completion and will be ready for dedication some time next month.

Burton Holmes' screen journey, "The Grand Tour of Europe," is to be presented in Carnegie Music Hall at 8:15 tonight. London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Budapest and other points of interest will be viewed and described.

Take-a-Chance-Week Coming to Stanley

Friday the Stanley will present a "Take-A-Chance-Week" show, and not one feature on the program is being advertised! John H. Harris, zone manager for the Warner Brothers Theaters in Pittsburgh, spent an entire week in New York getting talent for the program. "If you take a chance in the Stanley next week, you won't be disappointed," Mr. Harris said upon his return.

Dietrich," and, adds the tale, "has never been mentioned by Winchell" . . . Her name is Ruth Fallows.

Musta been two other Fallows.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for Mr. Wilstach's Simile Dictionary: J. E. Fraley's: As late as a drummer accompanying an acrobatic dance, and W. Geraghty's: As coldly critical as a baby's stare.

Shudder

She lives in Brooklyn and her initials are M. M. She asks that her name be omitted. Her letter says in part: "I suppose you'll think I'm either drunk or crazy, but I'm not. I once read or heard of someone doing what I want to do, but now I can't get information about it.

"I thought perhaps you could arrange it or help me find out about it. You see, I need $100 so badly so soon, and I don't know anyone I could borrow it from, and anyway I don't want to ask anyone for it. And until I can earn it and live in the meantime, it will be too late.

"Here's the idea. Have you ever heard of a medical college or hospital that buys bodies? I have no one. After I die no one will care what happens to my body, so I thought perhaps I could sell it now, signing some sort of a paper, of course, so they could collect after leath. I simply have to get the money right away, so please answer."

No Wonder

That trio of colored youngsters who dance on the pavement in front of theaters at intermission for thrown coins are violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. They shoo away another trio of white boys who recently tried to crash their racket. The white kids run when they see the sepias approaching, so afraid of them are they.

The brownskins, however, have gone into "business" on a big-time scale. They now have a manager. He is white. He is about 9 years old. His duties include watching for the approach of policemen and picking up the money. His bit is 15 per cent of the gross.

His name is Goldberg.

QUAKE IN NICARAGUA FEATURES CURRENT NEWS REEL

Hearst Metrotone News has received the first sound motion pictures of the earthquake disaster in Nicaragua, which cost over 2,000 lives with other thousands injured and homeless. The pictures are now being shown in leading theaters throughout the country.

When word of the disaster reached Mexico City, a Hearst Metrotone News sound unit was in the Mexican capital. Charles Herbert, in charge of the unit, placed the equipment aboard an airplane and flew to stricken Managua by way of Vera Cruz. He was the first sound newsreel cameraman to reach Nicaragua, and, after making his pictures, he started the flight north, flying the entire distance with the precious negative to New York.

The pictures show the actual falling of the ruins; the terrific destruction wrought by the earthquake and fire; the feeding of the refugees by the Marines and the Red Cross; Col. Fred Dadman, of the Marines, and Matthew Hanna, the American minister, directing the work of rescue, while President Moncada is seen and heard thanking the American minister for the aid extended to the stricken republic by the American government.

INGRAM SHOW APRIL 16-17

The annual presentation of the Ingram Volunteer Firemen, to be known as "The Vanities of 1931," will be staged in the Ingram school auditorium the nights of April 16 and 17. Members of the younger set of the borough comprise the chorus. The production is under the direction of William H. Siegfried.

Baby Rose Marie, who recently played for the legislators in Harrisburg, and William Moorehouse, radio artist, will be among the many features of the show. Other soloists will be Beatrice Kent, Eloise Rutter, Charles Hemma, Lois Rex, Ruth Malcolm, Joseph Wilson, Alex Craig, John McClelland and Albert Jessup. There will be numerous dance numbers, including one by Miss Nancy Arnold, who appeared in last year's production. Mrs. Dale N. Woods is the accompanist.

Dr. Kolmer to Speak At Hospital Dinner

Dr. John A. Kolmer, professor of pathology and bacteriology, Graduate School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, will speak on "The Present Status of Vaccine and Non-Specific Foreign Protein Therapy" at a dinner tonight in the Concordia Club, University place, under the auspices of the board of trustees and the medical board of Montefiore Hospital.

TROLLEY FARE INCREASE OPPOSED

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SOUTHWARD-BOUND,
April 8.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Brisbane ought to be along to write about progress in a regular passenger plane on regular daily run. Big three-motored Fords with American pilots. Flying over tropical Mexico, we stopped at Guatemala City, beautiful old city. We are now flying over its big coffee plantations. I hand this to the radio operator on board. He radios to the nearest telegraph office. They send it to New York and they in turn wire it out to your paper. And the whole thing was done before we were due to land in the little country of Salvador. Left Los Angeles Sunday morning. (This was written Tuesday evening.) Would have only been to Chicago by train. These farmers seem to be looking for their own relief. They farm clear up to the top of these mountains.

Yours, WILL.

WALL CRACKS ALONG COUNTY ROADWAY

New Mishap Develops as Officials Await Report On 'Blunder' in Bridge

While enigineers were preparing a report for the County Commissioners on the "blunder" charged by Commissioner C. C. McGovern in connection with the Shades' Run Bridge on the Allegheny River boulevard, another mishap was discovered today in a wall along the roadway above Sandy Creek.

A filled-in side of the highway, on which a stone wall had been built, settled, causing the wall to crack and a hillside drain to break away and sink.

Cracks several inches wide were visible in the wall and in its foundation, where the ground had slipped. At the bridge, near Nadine, cracks appeared in the sides, and the rails were found to be crooked and to contain dips, after the scafolding was removed.

Foch Found British Unwilling to Supply Reserve Divisions

In yesterday's instalment, Marshal Foch described his efforts to solidify the Allied defense in Belgium, despite the fact that he had no written authority to command beyond his own post with the French Army. Lack of munitions and war material hampered the Allied operations, and with the diversified fighting forces it became more and more apparent to Foch that a unity of command was desirable. But this was not destined to be realized until the spring of 1918, when the great German offensive made such a step imperative. In today's instalment, Marshal Foch tells of the crisis the Allies faced in March, 1918.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

CHAPTER XI.

The German artillery suddenly opened a violent bombardment along the whole of the front between the valleys of the Scarpe and the Oise at 4 a. m. on March 21, 1918. At 9 o'clock, under cover of a thick fog, the enemy's infantry reached the positions which the British armies had occupied since the spring of 1917—namely, on the north, the 3rd Army (Gen. Byng), between Arras and the region of Le Catelet, and on the south, the 5th Army (Gen. Gough), from the Le Catelet region to Barisis-aux-Bois.

The 3rd Army, covering a front of 25 miles, had 10 divisions in the front line and six in reserve. The 5th Army, on a front of 37 miles, had 11 divisions in the front line, with three infantry and three cavalry divisions in reserve.

Opposing these, the German attacking forces were grouped in three armies. On the north, in the Arras region, was the 17th Army (Otto von Buelow), and in the center between Cambrai and Le Catelet, the 2nd Army (von der Marwitz). Both belonged to the group of armies of the Crown Prince of Bavaria. To the south, resting on the valley of the Oise, was the 18th Army (Von Hutier), forming part of the group of armies of the German Crown Prince.

At the time these armies made their assault on the British positions, the Allies were unaware of their exact strength, but they had an approximate idea. A study made three months previously, at French General Headquarters, had shown that the Germans, now relieved of all menace from Russia, would have available on March 1, 1918, for the western front, some 200 divisions.

These could furnish an offensive mass of 80 divisions with 1,000 heavy batteries. It was to be presumed that at least 50 of these divisions would be employed for the initial actions, thus giving the Germans in the zone chosen for attack a numerical superiority of two to one.

The ability of the generals who would direct these operations was equally well known, for it had been fully tested.

The tool which Hindenburg and Ludendorff wielded in the spring of 1918 seemed, both from the viewpoint of material and of troop training, to be of a condition and temper that left nothing to be desired.

Every German soldier was convinced that he was about to win the great campaign which would bring peace. Confident in this excellent instrument, the German supreme command proceeded to employ it against a strategic objective from which it hoped to obtain results not only swift but decisive.

To this end, the Germans selected one of the most sensitive parts of the Allied front, namely the junction between the British and French Armies. By aiming a well prepared and vigorously executed blow in the direction of Amiens, it might be possible to separate these armies.

Then by exploiting the initial success and widening the breach, the British would be thrown back on the sea, the French on Paris; the two principal adversaries would thus be put out of action and the coalition broken before the American Army could effectively intervene. Such were the possibilities which presented themselves to the German high command.

In the north of France, moreover, special facilities for this maneuver were already at hand due to the existence there of a dense and conveniently oriented railway net that led toward Amiens, one

CIVIC BODIES FIGHT PLAN FOR RAISE

Railways Official Replies To Charges of 'Milking' By Duquesne Light Co.

The Allied Boards of Trade and its component civic organizations today were planning means of forestalling the threatened increase in fares and reduction of service by the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

The announcement of the possibility of a fare raise or service reduction was made to County Commissioners yesterday by T. J. Fitzgerald, vice president and general manager of the company, when he announced it faced a deficit that made it unable to pay its license charges and paving obligations for the last three months of 1930. A similar announcement was made to the city on Monday.

POWER RATES UPHELD

Answering charges that the Duquesne Light Company is "milking" the Railways Company with excessive rates for power, W. H. Boyce, commercial manager of the street car lines, last night declared the rates in this city compare favorably with those paid by street railways in other cities.

This followed a declaration made yesterday by W. G. Negley, attorney for the Allied Boards of Trade, that the present difficulties of the Pittsburgh Railways Company may be attributable to the constant drain on its earnings of fees paid to affiliated organizations in the Philadelphia Company group.

Harry Bastow, president of the allied boards, said:

"I charge that the figures for power furnished the traction company look suspicious. The matter should be inquired into at once. The light company is prospering and the railways company is not."

City Council has given Bastow and Negley permission to direct the law department to investigate

Missing Boy Found Asleep In Uncle's Machine

While McKees Rocks police were searching for him, Robert Kolinsky, 5, of McKees Rocks, was asleep in his uncle's automobile, parked in a downtown garage last night.

The uncle, Nicholas Kolinsky, unaware that he had a passenger, drove to a movie. Garage attendants found the lad. Police learned his identity through the license number on the car.

Robert went to sleep in the automobile yesterday afternoon.

Council Approves Jobs To Assist Unemployed

Approval of additional public improvements with work to be done by needy men paid by the Allegheny County Emergency Association has been given by City Council's committee on finance.

Council, by an emergency ordinance passed finally this week, provided $100,000 for materials, supplies and equipment.

Among the projects to be undertaken, under supervision of the Department of Public Works, are: Laying of concrete steps, $10,000; erection of the West Carson street retaining wall, $3,000; Shaler street abuttment, $1,200; concrete curb guards throughout the city, $5,000; miscellaneous playground improvements, $10,000; retaining walls, $5,000; Sheraden playground improvements, $15,000; Lewis playground, $5,000; Magee playground, $8,500; Charles street playground, $5,000; improvement of street intersections, $10,000; West End park wall, $8,000, and quenching of Somers street mine fire, approximately $14,000.

Pair Heavily Fined After Liquor Is Uncovered In Building; Loss Slight

Police today were investigating a mysterious fire which did $500 damage to a three-story building at 730 East Ohio street early today and resulted in the seizure by police of six barrels of beer, whisky and slot machines. Three men and a woman were arrested.

John Bittner, 35, of 824 Chestnut street, alleged proprietor of a fruit store on the first floor of the building, was fined $100 or 30 days in jail following a hearing on charges of being a suspicious person and keeping a disorderly house. Harry Bandy, 49, of 925 James street, alleged bartender of a club on the second floor, was given a similar fine. Louis Thalhofer, 40, of 1009 East Ohio street, and Mrs. Margaret Schmitt, 32, of 1900 Manhattan street, arrested on suspicious person charges, are being held for further investigation together with Bittner and Bandy.

WOMEN ADOPT HOLLYWOOD METHODS

Cosmetician Discloses Secrets of Screen Stars; 2 Free Lectures Daily

Women are learning how to do for themselves what Hollywood beauties do to make themselves beautiful.

V. E. Meadows, who has been consulting cosmetician to the leading Hollywood studios and motion picture stars, is teaching them the trick.

He is conducting a series of lectures, under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph, in which he reveals the beauty secrets of the famous screen stars. He tells Pittsburgh women how they can have lovely, naturally wavy hair. How they can have a rose-leaf complexion. How they can lose age-betraying wrinkles and myriad other beauty hints.

His lectures are free and open to the public. Every afternoon at 2:30 in Pirate Hall, William Penn Hotel and every evening at 8, in the Gold Room, Fort Pitt Hotel. The lectures end with the Friday afternoon session.

the figures and embody them in a report as soon as possible.

Declaring the railways company is not a "vital corporation to Pittsburgh," Negley, who led the Allied Boards of Trade's unsuccessful fight for lower bus fares here some time ago, said there were many other forms of transportation more up to date and which should be used.

In a statement Negley declared he was broadcasting a warning to the taxpayers to prevent the company's evasion of payments of assessments to the city on a technicality in the city's agreement of 1921.

The agreement provides, he declared, that in the event of a deficit the contributions shall be canceled.

Fitzgerald told Council the company has no intention of evading payment and hopes to meet the assessment when business conditions improve.

Council President John S. Herron said he hoped fares could be kept down. Answering a suggestion that the city should operate the trolleys, Councilman Robert Garland said it would require at least another 1½ mills on the tax rate to do so.

Soost to Discuss Traffic Problems

Magistrate William J. Soost, of Traffic Court, was to talk on "Pittsburgh Traffic Problems" at noon today at the monthly meeting of the Business Men's Association of the East North Side in the dining room of St. Paul's Evangelical Church, 712 East street, North Side. The association will hold its annual party and reception April 29 in the Moose Home, North avenue.

Acid, Gas Pain For 3 Years. Stops it Quick!

"I had a mean case of acid indigestion for the past three years," writes Miss Adeline Beljean, Brooklyn, N. Y. "Tried everything with little if any results. Then heard about ACIDINE and got some. It is wonderful. I can eat everything without gas of pain. Sleep fine."

ACIDINE is entirely different from other known remedies. Contains the marvelous digestant, Japtase. In the laboratory experiments Japtase has been tested on certain starchy foods which cause so much stomach distress. It digested 800 times its weight of such foods in only 30 minutes! Five other scientific ingredients stop burning acid, soothe irritated stomach linings, stop gas and headache from acidity. No other known remedy contains this combination to end acid stomach pain.

Don't run chances of dangerous, painful troubles from acidity. Get ACIDINE today and note quick relief from sourness, pain and belching. You can eat, drink and smoke all you like. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

Colds deserve no mercy, VAPEX shows them none

This war-time discovery routs a cold with just a few deep breaths

Every cold is treacherous. You never know when it is going to tear down your resistance and leave you a prey to serious ills.

No cold—even a slight one—should be neglected. For today it is both simple and pleasant to relieve colds. All you have to do is put a drop of Vapex on your handkerchief or at each end of your pillow and breathe the pleasant vapor. Vapex swiftly relieves a cold.

This delightful inhalant was discovered during a war-time epidemic of influenza in England. Since then it has become the accepted relief for colds everywhere.

Vapex is very inexpensive. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications—an average of only 2c apiece. Millions of bottles are sold yearly. It is approved by Good Housekeeping because it is safe for every one—even little children.

Ask your druggist for V-A-P-E-X—the original inhalant discovered during the war.

Remove carefully the Humidor Pack from a package of Camels and fill it with water. If you have not injured the seal at the corner you will note that it holds the water perfectly without leaking.

Now make the same test with the ordinary Cellophane or glassine wrapping found on other brands. See how quickly the water seeps through and escapes.

Cigarettes in prime condition have a moisture content of about 10%. It will be seen by the Chart that cigarettes in the ordinary wrapped package lose more than half of their total moisture in thirty days and that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

All is not moisture-proof Cellophane that glitters

DO NOT be misled by a mere shiny wrapper. The Camel Humidor Pack should never be confused with either the glassine or the ordinary Cellophane wrapping sometimes found on other cigarettes.

Our Humidor Pack is made of moisture-proof Cellophane, which costs nearly twice as much as ordinary Cellophane and is air-sealed at every point.

It is not put there merely to catch the eye but to perform a real service to the Camel smoker.

Because it is both air-sealed and moisture-proof, it keeps Camels always in mild, factory prime condition. It also guards the cigarettes within from contamination by dust or dangerous germs.

As you light a Camel fresh from the Humidor Pack, note how mild and cool and easy it is to your throat. Compare its fragrant mildness with the bite and burn that comes from the smoke of a stale or dried out cigarette.

Everywhere today people are talking about the new delight they have found in this blend of choicest Turkish and mellowest Domestic tobaccos.

Remember, Camels are the only cigarettes in the true Humidor Pack.

Switch to Camels for just one day, then quit them tomorrow if you can.

COUNCIL TOLD CITY WHARF LEASING ILLEGAL

EXPLOITATION BARRED BY STATE LAW

Benner Finds No Sanction For Private Operation of Landings as Parking Lots

The city is not empowered to lease the wharves on the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers for private individuals to exploit as parking stands, according to an opinion from the law department, received by Council.

Prepared by Thomas M. Benner, assistant city solicitor, the opinion cites state laws passed in 1851 and 1858, making the wharves public property and landings.

STATE LAWS CITED

The legislation, Benner declared, gives Council the right to regulate the activities on the wharves, but provides that the regulation shall not be "inconsistent." The opinion said:

"The city has no right whatsoever to lease the wharves or any portion of them to private individuals or corporations for private useage. The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has upheld the legislation."

Whether the opinion applies to the Bennett Brothers Company, which leases part of the city's wharves for private use, was not stated.

Council sought the opinion after the Hamilton Company, of Pittsburgh, informed President John S. Herron, it had a client willing to lease the wharves at $50,000 annually for 20 years.

PROTESTS MADE

Several protests have been received. Council has set April 22 for a public hearing.

At yesterday's committee meeting, it was suggested that policemen on duty at the parking sites be relieved in favor of unemployed men.

Councilman Harry Little declared the stations needed only "an honest clerk and a cash register." Councilman Robert Garland suggested a turnstile method.

GRANT ARRIVES TO ADDRESS VETERANS

General's Grandson Honor Guest at McKeesport; Goes on Tour of City

Col. U. S. Grant III arrived in McKeesport today to tell the six remaining Civil War veterans of the McKeesport district about his famous grandfather, President Grant. Tonight he will speak at a dinner in the Penn-McKee Hotel celebrating the sixty-sixth anniversary of the surrender of Lee at Appomattox.

Col. Grant, who is director of public buildings and parks at Washington, was met by McKeesport officials, A. J. Richards, W. V. Campbell, C. Z. Southers, Leslie M. Wise and J. B. Hershey.

With Congressman Clyde Kelly they went on a tour of the city and were guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon, after Kelly and Grant had spoken to pupils at McKeesport Technical High School.

Veterans who will welcome the grandson of their famous leader are Thomas B. Burr, commander of the McKeesport Post, G. A. R.; Sam Gressley, William Hite, O. M. J Hutchison, Johnston Moon, all of McKeesport, and James Speakman, of Versailles.

COYNE'S GARAGE SWEPT BY FIRE

A two-story stable, used as a garage, in the rear of the the home of Senator James J. Coyne, 236 McKee place, was destroyed by fire early today. A neighbor, Max Fishman, of 204 Coltart Square, told police he saw several boys running from Coyne's garage. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Senator Coyne is in Harrisburg. Members of his family were awakened by reflection of the flames in their bedroom. Two alarms were sounded when it was feared the fire would spread to nearby buildings.

It is natural... it lasts!

You can Train your own hair into an alluring wave that actually deepens in dampness

IS YOUR hair "straight as a string?" Is it hard for you to keep a wave in? Never mind! Now, you can have a deep, natural, lasting wave of your very own!

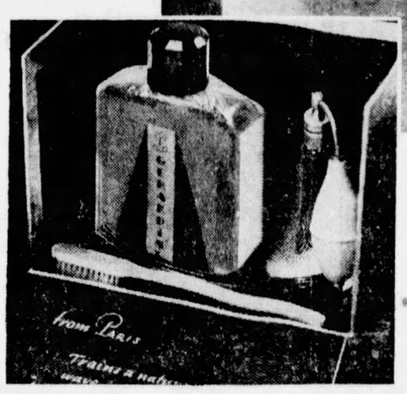
For ten years, in Paris, the marvelous lotion, La Gerardine, has been cultivating lustrous waves in heads that formerly had straight hair. Then La Gerardine was brought to this country, and now 75,000 women have become enthusiastic users of it!

They have learned that a Gerardine wave actually deepens after a hot bath, a shampoo, a swim, and in rain.

During a short period of simple treatments, you can now train a deep, alluring wave in your own hair at home. Or your hairdresser can do it for you. More than 3,000 leading beauty shops are already endorsing and using La Gerardine for their patrons.

La Gerardine is absolutely harmless even to a baby's delicate hair. There is no alcohol, glycerine or oil in La Gerardine, nor anything sticky or drying. It is made from rare herbs, beneficial to the hair and scalp. For a "permanent," La Gerardine is an ideal setting lotion, as it benefits the hair and adds life and beauty to the wave. It does not affect the color of white, dyed or bleached hair.

Start today to develop your natural wave! La Gerardine is sold at leading department and drug stores everywhere at $2.00 the bottle.



From the very first treatment, La Gerardine makes the hair shafts more pliable and elastic . . . until your wave actually grows in!

The FOG is LIFTING

. . . as the Standard Rating Scale eliminates guesswork in making this lifetime decision . . . .

Now, for the first time, with the help of the Standard Rating Scale, you can determine value in electric refrigeration just as surely as you can in such merchandise as food—shoes—furniture.

Apply to Kelvinator every test the Scale imposes. Look through the fog of single unimportant "features" that have confused buyers in the past. The more carefully you weigh all the facts the more clearly you will understand why Kelvinator, the oldest electric refrigeration, is recognized as the greatest value as well. We will put every facility at your disposal to make the test thoroughly. Try it!

• STANDARD RATING SCALE for Electric Refrigeration

- Is the refrigerator manufactured by a reliable company with proper experience in the electric refrigeration field?
- Has it plenty of food and shelf space?
- Is the cabinet itself well designed, sturdily built and properly insulated?
- Is there provision for the freezing of an adequate supply of ice cubes? (Quantity of ice rather than number of cubes, which may be of large or small size, should be taken into consideration).
- Will the refrigerator constantly maintain a proper temperature for the preservation of foods?
- Can the freezing of ice cubes and desserts be speeded up when the need arises?
- Can this extra freezing speed for ice cubes be had without affecting the temperature on the food shelves? (Too low a temperature on the shelves will, of course, injure food).
- Is there a place to keep ice cream, meat, fish, game, "quick frosted" foods or extra ice cubes indefinitely at a below freezing temperature?
- Are these various temperatures (a. extra fast freezing; b. fast freezing; c. below freezing for storage; and d. normal food preservation temperature) automatically maintained without any attention from the owner?
- Does the refrigerating unit operate often or infrequently? (The fewer "stops" and "starts" the longer the unit will last and the less it costs to run).
- How long will the cooling unit continue to cool the refrigerator even though the current is shut off? (Refrigeration should continue for 10 or 12 hours).
- Can the back parts of all shelves, even the lowest, be reached without kneeling or sitting down?
- Has provision been made for keeping vegetables fresh and crisp?
- Can the refrigerator top be used to "set things down for a moment" while the contents of the cabinet are being re-arranged?
- Will the refrigerator add to the attractiveness of the kitchen?
- Has the experience of users over a long period of years proved the refrigerator long-lived and dependable?

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Milligan Wedding June 27

We are always living in anticipation of the next delightful season in the social world; so now that Easter is over we are all looking forward to that romantic month, June. This year June is going to have more enchantment than ever, I'm sure, for there are going to be some notably important weddings then, and of course some charming garden parties for buds to be presented during the "little season."

One of the most socially important weddings of the month of June will be that of Marguerite Singer Milligan, or Peggy, as she's better known, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Milligan, of the North Side and Sewickley, whose engagement to Myron H. Wilson, Jr., son of Myron H. Wilson, of South Park boulevard, Cleveland, was announced in mid-March. She has named June 27 as the date of the ceremony.

A bride of early June will be Peggy Lynn Stevenson, daughter of the Alan Cooper Stevensons, of St. James street, who has named June 11 as the date for her marriage to John F. Clagett, son of the J. Lee D. Clagetts, of Marlboro, Md.

Before I chat about Stage and Play's production of John Kirkpatrick's comedy, "Charm," I want to remind you that Elinor Duncan Munroe, daughter of the James Duncan Munroes, is being married this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Munroe home to Gaynor Keeler, son of the William H. Keelers, of Albany, N. Y.

Munroe Wedding

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding are the father and mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Edward McCall, the William R. Maloneys and Mrs. Hartley H. Ramsay, all of New York.

* * *

Featured in the cast of the Stage and Play production last night in the Twentieth Century Club were La Salle Dorrance, debutante of the past winter, and Priscilla Barnes, who made their debut last night with this amateur dramatic group.

Among the many folks in the audience last night were Mrs. Stephen Stone in blue lace; Mrs. H. Allen Machesney, in black net and rhinestones, and Mrs. Mortimer Miller in black velvet; Mrs. George S. Baton in blue, and her daughter, Mrs. Edward Sheetz, in yellow crepe with a sash of brown velvet.

See Stage And Play

Barbara Ewing was charming in powder blue georgette, and Mrs. Mason Reed in black. Mrs. W. L. Mellon, Jr., chose a crepe gown in her favorite color, red, with which she wore a finger tip jacket of white fur.

Others chatting in the foyer between acts were Mrs. Samuel West in white net and rhinestones; Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, in black lace, and Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., in chartreuse green. Louise Evans looked distinctive in ivory satin; Neil Stewart Zang in black lace; Betty Childs in black and white satin; Louise Bausman in green chiffon, and Marjorie Kimball in black velvet.

-:- CLUB NOTES -:-

Harry C. Gilchrist, Wilkinsburg historian, discussed the early life of the community in the talk he gave last night before the Wilkinsburg Business and Professional Women's Association. Mr. Gilchrist took his hearers back to the time of Dunning McNair, who owned nearly all the property in that locality and who built "Dumpling Hall," a home of cobblestones in what is now the center of the town. Miss Laila Kilchenstein, editor of the State B. P. W. publication, The Key, also spoke. Miss Kilchenstein is spending a week with Mrs. Janet Snyder, Wilkinsburg president, and was guest of honor at an Easter tea in Mrs. Snyder's home.

Members of the Pittsburgh, Wilkinsburg, Greensburg, Morgantown and Waynesburg Business and Professional Women's Clubs will go to Uniontown this evening for the international relations dinner which the Uniontown club is having. Miss Ella King Vogel, of the Pittsburgh club, is the speaker and will have "The European Business and Professional Women" as her subject.

* * *

Mrs. John Howard Phillips will discuss the Oberammergau Passion Play before Allegheny Chapter No. 106, Order of the Eastern Star, at a meeting in Allegheny High School Friday evening. Mrs. Phillips will illustrate her talk with the motion pictures which she and her husband took last summer. Mrs. Laura Berberich is chairman in charge and will be assisted by the officers of the chapter.

* * *

The State Federation of Pennsylvania Women will present a one-act play by Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, during its broadcast tomorrow over KDKA at 2:15. The play is a "Guest for Dinner," and in the cast are Miss Helen V. Irwin, Mrs. L. A. Hubach and Mrs. Robert J. Gibson.

The entire official staff of the Crafton Juniors, headed by Miss Mary Florence Taylor, was unanimously re-elected at the meeting last night for which Miss Brace and Miss Elizabeth Hershberger were hostesses at their home in Emily street. Mrs. Nellis Wolfe, Mrs. Crosby Dally and Miss Mildred Simpson were assistant hostesses. William C. Lehew, husband of one of the members, gave an informative and interesting address on life insurance, describing its various forms.

Tea to Honor Winner of Contest

In honor of the local winner and contestants in the annual essay contest conducted by the National Council of Jewish Women, Mrs. Leo Half, president of the Pittsburgh Section, will give a tea in the Y. M. and W. H. A. next Wednesday afternoon.

For the last five years the national organization has conducted this contest among the foreign-born women attending the adult English classes in the various cities, but Pittsburgh Section has participated in only three of these. In that time the local contestants have increased in number from four to 30. The 1930 winner is Miss Mary Huy, German-born, who chose for the title of her theme "A Part of My Life."

Invitations have been issued to Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, to Dr. Colt R. Hoechst, the principals and teachers of the adult English classes and to members of the department of service for the foreign-born.

Mrs. Leo Ruslander and Mrs. J. Zeidman have charge of a musicale and program of folk dancing to be presented, and Mrs. Lester Aaron is chairman of the reception committee.

* * *

Mrs. S. F. Gordon is general chairman for the benefit theater party which the Zoar Home Auxiliary will hold Monday night, April 13, at the Pitt Theater. The play is "Death Takes a Holiday," which was presented by the Sharp Players earlier in the season.

PRINTED FABRICS OPPOSED BY MONOTONES IN NEW MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 8. — If it is your ultimate desire to get into print, you will be able to fulfil your wish, although there will not be such a variety of mediums available. For prints are not being shown here at all in proportion to the number offered in past seasons. At present, monotones seem to be in possession of the field, with a print sprinkled here and there. As the season waxes, there should be a concerted demand for prints which will of course be met forthwith. But many houses having an uncanny way of prognosticating our sartorial demands and desires and no doubt knowing better than we ourselves do, place less stress on prints, assuming that we have become just a little weary of being put into print. Even the very variety of prints became monotonous, we found, and with the splendid range of colors available this season, we can get plenty of life and gaiety into our clothes.

* * *

SO THAT YOU may judge for yourselves the respective merits of monotone versus print, we have made for you a sketch of two models, one in each medium. The plain frock—plain in material we mean—is of bright blue crepe de chine and is by Yteb. Scalloped edges outline the wide revers, the sleeve trimming, the side fastening of the skirt, and the hemline. The skirt is set onto the deep yoke in a series of side pleats, which, however, are not pressed in and so have more the effect of godets.

* * *

THE PRINTED FROCK is by Chanel and is of crepe de chine in brown on a beige background and uses a simple little design. White linen makes the collar and undercuffs. The cape seen in back is attached along the shoulder line and down the sleeve to the elbow. Both cape and tunic are scallopsed along the edge and set-in pieces in the skirt at the front give width to its narrow lines.

A board meeting, the annual musicale-tea and a sale of articles made by the blind are all slated for tomorrow by the Housekeepers' Club. On the program will appear Miss Edna Smith, soprano, who will be accompanied by Mrs. George Herwig; Miss Marie Douglas, contralto, whose accompanist is to be Mrs. Bertram H. Kensey; Mrs. William Sutherland, who also will sing, with Mrs. Harry Best at the piano; Mrs. J. H. Dickson, reader; Mrs. Ben G. Graham, violinist, and Mrs. H. P. McKown, who will accompany Mrs. Graham and also present piano solos.

Triple Event

Mrs. William Konold will be chairman of the sale, and will have as her assistants the members of the committee for the blind. During the tea hour Mrs. R. G. Himmelrich, the president, and Mrs. M. E. Fellowes will pour.

LONGER LIFE FOR SILK HOSE

To find a way to make silk hose and undergarments wear longer means money in women's pockets. A New York fashion expert has discovered the secret.

She found that washing with soap and water alone did not remove the body excretions which rot silks. So she adds a tablespoonful of Energine to every quart of lukewarm, soapy water. Then she washes and rinses the articles—as usual. The result is a new cleanliness—a pleasing freshness—revived colors—all with practically no rubbing.

But the most amazing result is the longer life it gives to silks—an economy every woman will appreciate.

Try this method the next time you wash silks. You'll be delighted. Remember, too, that millions of women save money by using Energine for removal of spots from suits, hats, dresses, gloves, shoes, etc. Large can 35 cents at any drug store.

RUTH CHATTERTON, FRITZI SCHEFF, GRAY'S BAND ON AIR TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Tonight's radio ramble takes you into near and far-away places . . . Vienna with Fritzi Scheff, Hollywood with charming Ruth Chatterton, the prairies of Oklahoma with Otto Gray and his Cowboy Band, a foolish round of golf with Clarence Budington Kelland, the footlights with Nan Halperin and the concert hall with Jeanette Vreeland, soprano.

* * *

A LITTLE HORSEPLAY

We remember the day Otto Gray's Cowboys stirred a commotion in the William Penn lobby on their way to broadcast for the first time over KDKA. The boys and "Mother" Gray straggled along in chaps, gaudy blouses, leather vests, bandannas 'n' everything.

Otto, by far the tallest, was leading the procession with "Rex" his pet police hound.

A lady of leisure looked on in dignified horror, lorgnette poised like a dagger. A winsome child—about seven—tugged at her skirt:

"Oh, look, there's Tom Mix, but gee, Mom, duzn't he hab a small horse?"

And "Mom," suddenly forgetting her dignity, hurried the child into an elevator while the crowd giggled merrily.

* * *

WHOA!

While hoofing through this same lobby yesterday we met Jimmie Joy, orchestra leader, and Orville Andrews, banjoist. More about horses . . . it seems that Orville got his inspiration to compose the number "There Goes a Horse" after he had been trampled by a horse on his uncle's farm in Nebraska.

Later while the orchestra was playing in Oklahoma City, a runaway horse came galloping down the street and the boys cried:

"Look, there goes a horse!"

And the song was born.

For something funny, tune WTIC (1060) at 7:30 and hear Hank Keene's Hillbillies do "Giddy-ap Napoleon" . . . and later at 9, Jesse Crawford, the organist, in something more serious . . .

Ted Husing is the "Voice of Time" on WJAS Friday nights.

The best imitator of Bert Williams in the "carpet city"—Ed Harvey—does comic Negro monologue, KDKA at 9:15 . . .

EXTRA: "Harbor Lights," WJZ, WGAR at 8; Lew Conrad, Welcome Lewis, WEAF, WTAM at 8:15; "Wayside Inn," WJZ, WGAR at 9; Kremlin Art Quintet, WJZ at 11:30; Wayne King's Orchestra, WJZ, WGAR, WJR at 12:30 a. m. . . .

Friday night, May 1, the "Theater of the Air" is to originate on the roof of the Empire State Building (1,000 feet high) at 10:45 o'clock . . . WCAE in Pittsburgh . . .

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, April 8.—The caliphs of the microphone are not content with the statements of Washington radio observers that there are 6,000,000 fewer listeners in summer than in the other months of the year.

They have set research men to work, experts in preparing surveys of industry and commerce, with a view to ascertaining the truth. There will be no reckless juggling of figures. The sweet-and-lowdown of summertime radio in the republic will be determined. Indeed, it already has been. And Washington can now be told.

* * *

From John J. Karol, of the Columbia System, we have received an imposing folder of facts compiled by Herman S. Hettinger and Richard R. Mead, of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania, and therein as plan as a politician's necktie, we learn that 48,000 listeners in 28 states were interviewed over a period of several months in the spring, summer and fall of 1930.

The interviews revealed, my ear-cuppers, that the summer radio audience was less than 10 per cent smaller than that of the spring and fall.

* * *

It had been assumed by careless commentators that the automobile, the brassie, the traditional two weeks' vacation period, the decline of the appeal of the rocking chair in summer time had greatly diminished the radio public during the months of July and August. The researchers dispute this.

* * *

They claim that the improvement in programs, their extension to cover all phases of sports, the betterment of network service, the tendency to group listening at summer resorts, roadside stands, tea rooms, dance pavilions, the inability of the rural population—it is more than 40 per cent of the whole population of the country—to go far afield from its labors during the summer, and the fact that among the laboring classes there often is no vacation period except week-ends, have resulted in no material decrease in the radio audience in July and August.

* * *

And they bring forward other ammunition to clinch their argument. They point, if you must know—and you probably would never have guessed it—to the midget set. The popularity of the midget set is fast revolutionizing the radio industry.

The Wharton School surveyors have discovered that countless individuals who go away for periods of any great length either take midget sets with them or else have had them installed in their cottages. The compactness of these receivers makes them easy of transport, and their low price makes ownership of two sets a relatively simple matter.

Since the introduction of the midget set, 1,130,400 have been produced, it is learned. Moreover, during 1930 approximately 30 per cent of all radio sets manufactured were in his class.

* * *

Painstaking people these researchers. They even pounce upon the facts of environment and psychology as having special bearing upon summer listening habits. They find that the need of summertime relaxation can best be satisfied by entertainment of a type which requires the least possible amount of physical or mental effort. And what type, my pupils, could that be? Why, of course, of course—radio.

AH! Pain Stops

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

High Blood Pressure Shortens Life

Relief for high blood pressure and other health-destroying ailments that have kept thousands of sufferers in misery and doubt for years—is now seen in the modern discovery — BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUM.

The importance of this discovery cannot be denied when the life insurance companies refuse to issue policies to applicants with high blood pressure because it tends to shorten the span of life.

High blood pressure gives little warning, and until certain symptoms appear you are not aware of it. You may have head pains, hot flashes, flushed face, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, nervousness and palpitation of the heart. Remember that HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE is a symptom and not a disease in itself—IT IS NATURE'S WARNING TO TAKE NOTICE.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Young Daughter Defends Working Mother

This column has been cluttered plenty lately with Working Wives.

And folks out for their scalps.

Mammas who work have been blamed for everything from cyclones to bolll weevils.

"Look what they do to the kids!" shouted the Anvil Chorus, warming to its work. "How can you expect young ones to be happy or grow up decent when their mothers leave them to shift for themselves—or to be taken care of by some callous hireling while they go out and grab off jobs and money that other women—single women—and men need?"

Family Needed Money

And up to now we haven't heard anything from the kids themselves. But now here's Betty, putting her "two cents" into the fracas.

Is she unhappy because mamma took a job? Does she feel neglected and abused? Has she "gone wild" because mamma didn't "look after her?" And how about her five kid brothers and sisters? Are they on the road to ruin?

Here's the whole story. Read it and see.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I've been a constant reader of your column for a long time, even if I am only a youngster. Tonight I read the article about working wives, and I thought maybe you'd let me put my 2 cents into the argument, and tell what happened to our family.

"There are six of us, besides my mother and dad. I'm the oldest . . . I'm just 18. Well, to get to my story, three years ago we got to the point where we were getting to be absolutely on the rocks. You see, we were all getting bigger and eating more and wearing more, I guess. My dad and mother wanted us to be educated so we'd be able to get along when we were grown up. And there just wasn't enough money to do all that.

Proud of Mother

"My dad was doing the best he could, but there wasn't enough money coming in. So my mother went out and got herself a job. And I'm sure that dad wasn't ashamed of her for doing it, or didn't feel that she was robbing him or us. And we didn't either.

"When she was working, and away from us, it just made us realize how much she had really been doing for us all these years. And how much she was doing by going out and working so we could have better things. Honestly, Sally, we loved her more than ever for it.

"It had been almost 20 years since she had married dad and given up her job as a stenographer. But she brushed up, and we'd still another one at $35 a week. And she kept it after I finished business college without two and a half years, and went to work myself.

"She has always had to work awfully hard at home. I guess we never realized that until we had to take care of things ourselves and I honestly think she looks younger now for being away from home for a change.

"And how did we kids get along without her? Well, we did. And we didn't get into a lot of mischief either. Mother was so sweet, and she had taught us so many things, even my smallest brother and sister, that we knew better than to be so silly.

"We were all proud of Mother—too proud of her to let her down by being mean or getting into trouble.

"Of course I'll admit we were glad to have her home with us again when I went to work and she quit. But that was just because we're so fond of her we like to have her around.

Hardships Avoided

"These people who say that mothers want to work just for money to buy fancy clothes make me tired. Mine worked because if she hadn't, we kids and dad would have been pretty badly off.

"If we had raised a fuss and insisted on her staying home, or, if there had been a law like some of the people who write to this column seem to think there should be, I'm sure we'd all be living in a tent somewhere by now and using what nature gave us for transportation instead of having our nice home saved and having a good second-hand car. And I know that I never would have been able to finish school and have the good job that schooling makes me able to hold. And the rest of the kids wouldn't have any chance to finish school, either.

"So when it comes to 'working' wives and mothers, I'm for them. And if I ever find myself in the same place my mother did, I'll go out and work, too, just as she did.

"I hope you'll pass this on, so folks can see that here's one kid who doesn't feel abused and hasn't gone to the dogs because mother worked.

"BETTY."

You bet I'll pass it on, little sister.

And now how about you, Dottie and Bobby and Trix and Sam? What happened to you when Mom went to work?

Did it give you a better chance—or a worse one?

We're waiting. Let's hear your side.

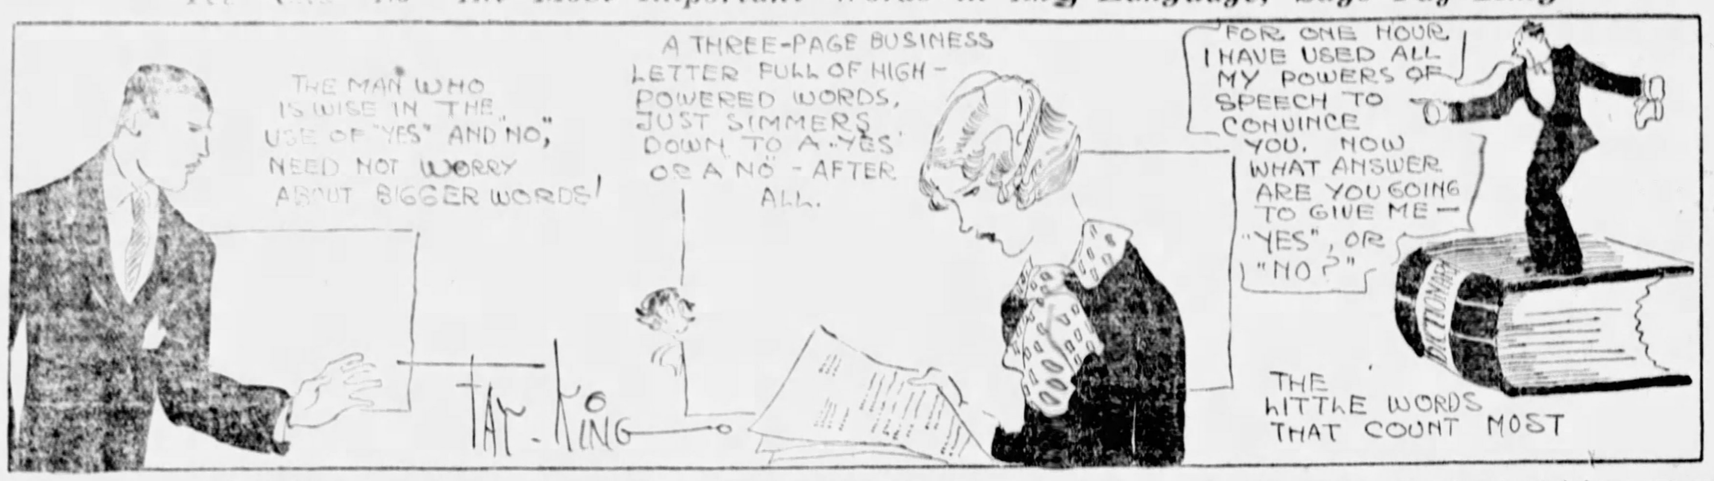
'Yes' and 'No' Are Most Important Words in Any Language, Says Fay King



THE MAN WHO IS WISE IN THE USE OF "YES" AND "NO", NEED NOT WORRY ABOUT BIGGER WORDS!
A THREE-PAGE BUSINESS LETTER FULL OF HIGH-POWERED WORDS, JUST SIMMERS DOWN TO A "YES" OR A "NO" - AFTER ALL.
FOR ONE HOUR I HAVE USED ALL MY POWERS OF SPEECH TO CONVINCE YOU. NOW WHAT ANSWER ARE YOU GOING TO GIVE ME— "YES", OR "NO?"
THE WITTLE WORDS THAT COUNT MOST FAY-KING

By FAY KING

The two shortest and most important words in any language are "Yes" and "No."

They are easy to spell. They are easy to pronounce. Every man, woman and child knows their meaning.

There are no antonyms or synonyms for them, and no grammatical gymnastics to modify their meaning.

"Yes" means yes. "No" means no. And the one whose common sense guides him in the proper use of these two words needs fear no master of unabridged dictionaries.

For all flowery forms of speech and oratorical mazes are merely the means of confusing the listener and successfully avoiding the decisive "yes" or "no."

A man of few words usually keeps his word, and you will notice he is prompt with "yes" or "no!"

Mary Confesses She Didn't Intend to Consult Noel

Mary's face was a cross-section of emotions as I asked her if she did not intend to include Noel in the list of her "people" whom she meant to consult before deciding upon Colin Cameron's offer. Chagrin, reluctance and obstinacy were mirrored there, and I wondered, not for the first time, if Mary were not too much the "artiste" ever to find peace or happiness in marriage or domesticity.

"No, Auntie Madge," she said honestly at last. "I hadn't thought of telling Noel until I actually began the work—that is, if you approved of my doing it. In the first place, you know, he is opposed to my doing anything in the theatrical line at all. Of course, he was terribly thrilled at that prospect of mine with his father, but since that's gone by the board he's acted as if anything else would be sort of sacrilege. Veritzen tradition, I suppose—strong in death—or war."

Her voice was bitter as she finished, and I could not blame her, although I felt that, like many other temperamental people, she was working herself up to a justification of her own doubtful course by dwelling upon the injustice which had been done her. But I was distinctly displeased with her, not because she was flattered at the talkie star's singling her out, nor because she was anxious to accept his offer—anyone could see that—but because she had allowed her vanity and her anxiety to cloud her judgment. She had been uneasy, even as we were, over Philip Veritzen's introduction of the young, handsome talkie star into our festivities, she had wondered about the great producer's motive, she knew the enmity he cherished against her, and yet she was playing directly into his hands.

All this was upon my lips, but a look at her face, already beginning to be shadowed by my implied disapproval, sealed them. I had determined that this party should be a red letter in her life, and I would not spoil it if I could possibly avoid it.

"I think you are wise not to upset him until you have decided what you are going to do," I said smoothly. "But I want you not to do anything rashly. How much time did Mr. Cameron give you for decision?"

"He didn't want to give me any," Mary replied slowly, and I seemed to see Philip Veritzen leaning over young Mr. Cameron and giving him instructions. "But when I told him that I must consult you and Uncle Dicky he said he would wait until tomorrow or the next day."

"We'll make it the next day," I said briskly. "You mustn't let anything spoil this party and tomorrow we'll all be too sleepy until night to decide anything. Tomorrow night, however, we'll talk it all over. Will that do?"

Mary threw her arms around me impetuously.

"You know it will do, you marvelous Auntie Madge. Did ever a girl have an auntie like you? This has been the most wonderful party! I never had so good a time in all my life. I shall remember every second of it when I'm an old, old woman."

"Thank you, dearest," I answered, returning her kiss. "And now we mustn't keep you any longer from the dancing."

"I'll get it out of my system while Noel's upstairs," she said, "for when he comes back I'm going to sit out some dances with him and look after him generally."

"You don't need to do that," I said a bit sharply, for I knew Mary's propensity to martyrdom, and besides I did not want to have her annoy Philip Veritzen with too pronounced an exhibition of devotion to Noel. "Just give him his share of attention, that's all. I don't think he'd relish having people think he wasn't strong enough to dance. As it is now, nobody but ourselves realize that he's not on the floor. So come on back to the dance floor. We've kept the belle of the ball away too long as it is."

"I want to give Jerry an edge," Lillian interposed, and I saw that she, as well as I had succumbed to the wide grin and mischievous eyes of harum-scarum Jerry, whom we knew was one of Ronald's nearest friends. "Madge, you're hostess, suppose you wander out there and tell Jerry he's wanted back here. Then he probably can dance at least a minute before somebody cuts in on him. If you could corral young Cameron into a corner it might help some."

"I'll do my best," I said, but when I went back into the ballroom I found that my task was an unexpectedly easy one. Jerry was not dancing, and he started for the back room with alacrity when I whispered my message to him. And then, to my great surprise, Mr. Cameron came over to me and asked me to dance.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Find Underlying Cause in Chronic Arthritis

Stubborn inflammation of the joints of the body is a common disease. This trouble is usually spoken of as "chronic arthritis."

Dr. Copeland

In this condition certain changes take place. They may be in the lining of the joint, in the bones of the joint, or in the structure around the joint. These disturbances may be traced to an old infection somewhere in the body.

For many years, arthritis was looked upon as an ailment associated with gout and rheumatism. Indeed, it was considered by some as one of the forms of chronic rheumatism.

The theory of "focal infection" has helped greatly to make clear our knowledge of this condition. These words are used to describe a localized infection which may be located anywhere in the body. It may be in the teeth, tonsils, gallbladder, or some other point quite distant, perhaps, from the seat of pain or joint disturbance.

It is now believed that many cases of inflamed and deformed joints may be explained by this theory. It has thrown new light on arthritis.

If you are suffering with a swollen and painful knee, and the X-ray gives clear evidence of inflammation, it is pretty certain you have arthritis. For a permanent cure it is not enough merely to treat the knee itself. It is important to go to the root of the trouble by treating the focus of infection.

The possible sources are many. But infections located in the mouth and throat probably take first place. The tonsils, as I have said, are among the common seats of focal infection.

Besides the sources I have mentioned are infections of the nose, nasal sinuses and middle ear. Distant troubles like arthritis may follow bronchitis and other centers of infection.

It is most important to remove the offending focus, but other measures will aid the cure. For instance, it is well to consider the diet.

In acute arthritis most of the authorities recommend a reduction in red meats and sweets. In the chronic form the diet must not be too greatly restricted. Water should be taken freely.

Baths and massages are useful. Your doctor will tell you about this and advise about the medicine.

Answers to Health Queries

A. R. Q.—Is the presence of sugar in the kidney elimination always indicative of diabetes? Is there a cure?

2.—What can be done for a sharp pain in the abdomen, also gases?

A.—Yes. Proper diet and general care will often bring about improvement. The patient should follow the advice and judgment of the doctor who is familiar with the case.

2.—These symptoms are probably due to hyperacidity. The diet and elimination would be factors in this case.

MRS. L. V. Q.—I have been troubled with a roaring in the ears, impairing my hearing. There is also pain and swelling. I have been using steam and then application of heat to give relief. What would you suggest?

2—I am also troubled with intestinal disturbances; there seems to be a sort of lump in the stomach and this is very tender and sensitive. I have to massage the stomach in order to be comfortable. I cannot take coffee, meat or apples. What would you advise?

A.—This is probably due to some underlying catarrhal condition. See an ear specialist about the pain and swelling.

2—You are troubled with indigestion and acidity. Correct your diet and be sure that the intestinal tract is kept regularly clear.

J. P. Q.—In a case of osteomyelitis of the leg, can one be subject to it for the third time after having had two operations eight years previous?

A.—Yes. Place yourself under the care of the doctor who is familiar with your case and be guided by his direction.

* * *

R. M. D. Q.—What can be done for pimples? I am a boy of 18 and greatly embarrassed by having these blemishes.

A.—Proper diet, lots of exercise and regular elimination should be helpful in this case.

Household Hints

An excellent method to prevent drying out in the roasting of a small chicken is to butter the breast well, place a piece of buttered brown paper over it and fasten it with skewers. The paper should be removed a short while before the chicken is done.

If the windows of the new house are very dirty, clean them with a rag wet with kerosene. Let the oil remain on them for about half-hour and then wipe off with a dry cloth and polish. It will mean much less effort than cleaning them with soap and water.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, April 9

An uncertain and precarious state of affairs is the augury based upon the adverse position of important planets ruling this day. Employment is under sinister sway, new projects are perilous. The Jupiter position in opposition with Luna hints of extravagance, excessive indulgence and a disposition to gamble or speculate which would be disastrous. The personal relations may be pleasant and lively.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which there may be perilous and precarious events, with employment and new undertakings in jeopardy.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be restless, nervous and unsettled, and inclined to gambling, speculation, extravagance and personal prodigality.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The girl who suffers from blisters on her heels whenever she starts to wear a new pair of shoes can overcome the trouble by having pads put in the rear soles of her shoes which lift up the heel so it will be above and beyond the point of irritation. Women with thin heels are inclined to raise blisters. Not enough adipose upholstery.

An intolerable itching of the skin after the warm bath will abate if there is a quick rub-down with cocoanut oil. Only takes a minute and eases the irritation. Experiment with soaps; one kind may prove to be more agreeable than another. Powdering with equal portions of boric acid and talcum will subdue the epidermis that goes into skin rages.

You can't run a steam engine without fuel and you can't have vitality, energy and health without nourishing food. The scrawny lassie doesn't feed herself properly. She needs a balanced diet which includes meat, eggs, cereals, green salads, milk, and fruit juices. Extreme thinness is out of the beauty picture, as is excess weight. Skinny slimps should top off every meal with a glass of milk and cream half and half.

Too tight brassieres are a danger. Close confinement of the breast tissues is not good for them. Brassieres should be fitted as carefully as foundation garments are fitted, without unnecessary compression and yet so cut and designed as to offer support.

The scalp should be kept clean and healthy by applications of hot oil, with a rousing shampoo next morning, not only for the sake of cleanliness and the well-being of the glory-halo, but because the elements of perspiration are irritants, and dead scalp cells create dandruff which in turn attracts germs that produce diseases of the scalp.

While an oily skin maddens the female of the species, it is more amiable than dry skin which, when its disposition is ruffled, takes on the texture of an old bathmat. Wind and sunlight can't make much inroad on an epidermis that is well lubricated, the oil acting as a protective covering, but they raise the dickens with the cuticle that is naturally inclined to flake and fluff. All of which is offered as a slim morsel of consolation to the girl with the beaming complexion.

Correct Manners

"Mr. and Mrs." Form Correct For Greeting Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you kindly advise me which is correct in the matter of personal Christmas cards? To have cards printed "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith" to send to all friends and acquaintances, or to have three kinds, one as above for mutual friends only, another printed John Smith for husband's business acquaintances and personal friends, and another, Mary Smith, for the wife's personal friends?

2. When eating a thick restaurant sandwich is it proper to use the knife and fork provided, or to break it in small sections and convey these to the mouth with the fingers?

3. When a married woman is signing a business letter should she not use just Mary Smith? I find when I do this that replies come addressed to "Miss" Mary Smith. As checks would be made out by Mary Smith, isn't this the correct signatures? How can I avoid the "Miss"?

B. P.

1. All of the Christmas cards of a married couple should be engraved in the Mr. and Mrs. form. This is very important, for a married couple should send Mr. and Mrs. cards always.

2. The very best form is to eat such a sandwich—indeed, to eat all kinds of sandwiches, whenever possible—with a knife and fork.

3. You should indicate in your signature that the reply to your letter should come addressed to Mrs.

This is the correct form for your business letters:

Very truly yours,
Mary Brown Smith
(or Mary Smith)
(Mrs. Arthur Smith.)

For Decorative Purposes Only.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine and myself have been arguing a long time as to eating lamb chops, pork chops, leg of chicken, and so forth. The last time he visited he brought this picture, explaining that the fancy paper at the end of the chop can be purchased and enables you to pick the chop up in your fingers. I claim that no meat can be picked up with your fingers and eaten in polite society.

If I am wrong I shall gladly take my medicine, and if he is wrong, I will show him your answer. READER.

Goody! . . . you're right, distinctly right, and the "medicine" is for him. The little paper collars that one sees sometimes on the ends of chops are for decorative purposes, and also to keep the very tip of the chop from becoming black as the chop is being broiled.

These paper collars have nothing to do with making convenient the eating of the chop in the fingers. We should never, unless it is really necessary, take in our fingers any kind of food that is moist, any kind of food that will make our fingers messy. Lamb chops, pork chops, legs of chicken . . . never, never, should we take them in our fingers to eat them, at least never when we are with people. When we are alone . . . well, perhaps . . . although obviously when we are alone we should keep our manners as fine and upstanding as possible, so that we will not slip when we are with people.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

VET CONTINUES REMARKABLE CAREER

ONE OF THE most remarkable careers in baseball will enter upon a new chapter when the 1931 season gets under way next Tuesday. It is that of Urban Faber, veteran pitcher of the Chicago White Sox. Faber is the only hurler to rival Jack Quinn for the major league age and durability honors. He will be 43 next September 6, and the approaching season will be his eighteenth in the big show, yet he is still being counted upon for much mound service by the same club for which he started pitching back in the spring of 1914.

Urban Faber

When Quinn shifted over to the National League as a member of the Brooklyn firing squad two distinctions passed to Faber. The latter is not only the oldest pitcher now in the American League, but also the oldest player appearing in any position unless two or three pinch-hitting roles in a season may be said to qualify Eddie Collins for that ranking, and in addition he is the last surviving spitballer in that circuit. All of the three other remaining damp-fling specialists—Quinn, Burleigh Grimes and Clarence Mitchell—are on National League rosters.

FABER BOASTS ONE of the greatest pitching records in major league history. His career has been as brilliant as it has been long. In his 17 campaigns he has won 237 games against 181 defeats, a percentage of .567, and an average within a slight fraction of 14 victories per season. In a total of 547 games he has pitched 3,710 innings, struck out 1,378 batsmen and given only 1,090 basses on balls.

Four times Faber has won more than 20 games in a season—24 in 1915, his second year with the Sox; 23 in 1920, 25 in 1921 and 21 in 1922. In three successive seasons he piled up 69 decisions. He was one of the few pitchers to win three games in a world series, accomplishing that feat at the expense of the Giants in 1917. He did not get a chance to pitch in the world series of 1919, in which some of the White Sox turned black.

BUT FOR A TURN of baseball fate, Faber would have been pitching for the Pirates instead of for the White Sox during all these years. The Pittsburgh club discovered the pitcher at Dubuque in the Three-I League in 1909, took him on the spring trip in 1910 and sent him back to Dubuque for another year of seasoning.

The hurler was recalled for 1911 and again taken on the spring trip by the Pirates. Manager Fred Clarke had a large slab squad that spring, including Deacon Phillippe, Lefty Leifield, Howard Camnitz, Babe Adams, Kirb White, Jack Ferry, Elmer Steel, Sherrod Smith, Hank Robinson, Walter Nagle and others. There was room for only one more right-hander, and it happened that one of the other youngsters being tried out at the time was Claude Hendrix. Clarke picked Hendrix and Faber was shipped back to the minors.

OLD JACK QUINN shows no sign of dropping out and allowing Faber to become the pitching dean of both leagues. This 46-year-old marvel, completing his twenty-ninth spring training grind in professional ball, has made a surprisingly good showing in Brooklyn's practice games. He steps about as briskly as the youngest, his pitching is as impressive as ever in its precision, free action and smartness, and for the first half of the season, at least, the Robins expect him to be one of their regular moundsmen.

Cy Morgan

ONE OF BASEBALL'S colorful figures of two decades ago passed yesterday in the death of Harry B. (Cy) Morgan, former major league pitcher. He attained his greatest prominence as a member of the Athletics' slab staff from 1909 to 1912. He pitched on two of Connie Mack's pennant winners in 1910 and 1911, but failed to break into the world series either year.

Morgan, a native of Pomeroy, Pa., started pitching in 1901 at Martins Ferry, O., where he resided at the time, and when that club disbanded he transferred the scene of his activities to Ilion, N. Y. He pitched for Charleston, W. Va., in 1902, for Fall River in 1903, for the St. Louis Browns in 1904, for Minneapolis in 1905, went back to the Browns for the next two years, was shifted to the Boston Red Sox for 1908 and was traded to the A's for 1909.

MORGAN WAS ONE of the early spitballers and might have made a great record but for lack of control. Frequently he would hold an opposing club helpless for six or seven innings and then lose his game through wildness. After he had won only three games against eight defeats in 1912, the A's dropped him.

Cy was given a National League trial later, but could not regain his grip. Subsequently he turned to umpiring. During the off-season in his big league days he was a vaudeville performer.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL clubs evidently look for a boom in business this year. In Brooklyn the double-deck grandstand is being extended through left and center fields, and at the Polo Grounds in New York the Giant owners have increased the seating capacity to 58,000, a jump of 6,000, by moving the home plate eight feet nearer to the center of the field and putting in new rows of box seats from one foul line to the other in front of the stands. The old press box, where reporters worked for more than 40 years, has been eliminated and new quarters for the scribes will be provided under the front of the upper tier. One gratifying result of the moving of the home plate is that the foul lines will be swung into deeper territory and made longer, cutting down home run possibilities. Until now the left and right field lines at the Polo Grounds have been the shortest in either of the major leagues, measuring only 258 and 279 feet respectively.

THE BASKETBALL PLAYERS of St. John's College in Brooklyn, having been accused of professionalism, are trying to prove they are worthy of the classification. They are now playing together openly as a pro team and meeting all comers in the salaried ranks. Even a three-game series with the famous Visitations is proposed.

It is planned to take an even more pronounced pro step next season. Max Kinsbruner, spokesman for the team, says that the quintet will perform intact next winter, and that if the efforts of their backers are successful the former St. John's stars will enter the American Professional League.

The decision of Jack Dempsey to go into absolute retirement from public life for at least two months on the order of his physicians means among other things that Pittsburgh boxing fans will be deprived of a chance to see the ex-champion in the role of referee.

Hunk Anderson

Manager John L. Hernon, of Motor Square Garden, had a second talk by phone only a few days ago with Leonard Sacks, Dempsey's booking agent, and obtained a promise that Dempsey would appear here as third man in the ring the latter part of April, but the Pittsburgh engagement is now canceled, along with 94 others.

IN THE STORIES that are being related in connection with the life of Knute Rockne some of the football historians appear to have wandered away from the facts in one case. It has been published repeatedly that on that last Saturday in November of 1926, when Carnegie Tech defeated Notre Dame here while Rockne was watching the Army-Navy game in Chicago the Irish were directed in the Forbes Field encounter by Heartley (Hunk) Anderson, assistant coach at South Bend in recent years, and possibly head coach for 1931. Notre Dame men point out that this is just a bit off in one trifling detail, inasmuch as it was Tommy Mills, not Anderson, who had charge of the South Bend gridders in Pittsburgh that day and that Anderson at the time was helping Maurice Smith coach the Gonzaga team out in Spokane.

JACK THROUGH AS FIGHTER, HE SAYS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Three o'clock in the morning. The Union Station practically deserted. Two haggard-looking souls in one corner of the massive terminal cussing an absent taxi driver and watching a slow-moving clock upon the wall.

"Three o'clock—damn that taxi driver!" quoth one.

"And an hour to go—damn that taxi driver!" quoth the other.

Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, the idol of the nation's millions of fight fans unto this day, took a look at the clock and muttered something that sounded like a well-deserved cuss in the ears of the patient Leonard Sacks, his man of affairs. It wasn't many years ago that Dempsey would have had the escort of a president—with a milling, boisterous crowd to greet him, bands playing, and all that sort of thing—if he'd have stopped over in Pittsburgh for 15 minutes at 4 o'clock in the morning. But Jack was almost incognito during the hour he fooled and fidgeted in our Pennsy station during the wee hours this morning.

JACK LOOKS TIRED

Worn from hard work, the lines drawn on his face and a tired look in his eye, even a good growth of beard, Dempsey wanted to hit the pillow—and he wanted to hit it bad.

Last night Jack refereed the main bouts of a show at Wheeling. His work in the West Virginia town finished, and the last train gone, Dempsey and Sacks engaged a cab to drive them to the Union Station in this city to catch a train that headed for Chicago around 12:30. It was just 11 o'clock when they set out—and, sad to tell, after many detours, because the driver apparently only thought he knew his roads, they arrived safely at their destination—at shortly before 3 a. m. A solid hour's wait for two tired, sleepy, restless men faced them before they could continue their journey.

We came upon them, huddled about their luggage, in the lobby of the restaurant. The usually good-natured Jack was riled at the circumstances he was confronted with—but he was in a mood to talk Pittsburgh.

PRAISES BURKE

"Say, I sure was glad to see old Jack Burke tonight," says Jack—Burke having greeted him at Wheeling. "There was one of the funniest birds I ever knew. He had everything that would go to make a fighter, but he was lacking in something—and what that something was I never knew.

"I remember out in Shelby when I was training for Tommy Gibbons—that was back in 1923—I had Burke as a sparring partner. The first time up, he socks me with his left, and I was out cold for a good hour, and I don't mean maybe. So, I thought I'd watch his left the next day. I did—but that bird put me away with his right—yes, sir! he fooled me completely. After that I started putting him away—a person can't take a chance with a tough hombre like him at any time. Pittsburgh should have had a champion in Burke—but he sure lacked something, and it wasn't the punch."

GREB WAS BEST

"The greatest fighter who ever came out of this city, in my opinion," continued Jack, "was Harry Greb. Boy, how that lad could fight! I've always admired him. What ever happened to that sweet little girl of his—I've always wondered?"

Dempsey, you know, is on his way out West for a long-deserved rest, following the advice of his physician at the Mayo Brothers' Clinic. He says he is through as a boxer and will not consider a proposed match with Primo Carnera.

CHICAGO LOSES TITLE BOUT

CHICAGO, April 8.—The Mex Schmeling-Young Stribling championship fight is lost to Chicago. It will be staged in Cleveland in the new Municipal Stadium on July 3. Official announcement of this will come a week from today out of South Bend, Ind., where William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, will meet with Sheldon Clark and a group of Chicago newspapermen.

SHARKEY VS. CARNERA

NEW YORK, April 8.—With a bout between Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera here this summer for the "American heavyweight championship" assured today by the announcement of the New York State Athletic Commission that it is prepared to reinstate Carnera, all that remained to be settled was the $400,000 detail of "who will promote the bout." Jimmy Johnston, the unofficial right bower of the commission, who will promote shows at the Brooklyn baseball park this summer, apparently has the inside track.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: CHICK DAVIES—FRESHMAN COACH OF VARSITY BASKETBALL—In 1924, when Bill Campbell left Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, for another coaching position, Charles Robson (Chick) Davies, a brilliant basketball star in independent and pro circles, was given the coaching position. Since that time he has coached the Red and Blue quintets, and last fall he registered for college study in the class of 1934. CLARENCE CHILDS BEATS DAN BROUTHERS BY 1-10,000 OF A POINT—Although Clarence Childs and Dan Brouthers sometimes are listed jointly as the batting champions of the National League in 1892, Childs actually averaged one ten-thousandth of a point better than Brouthers. Childs, with a record of 185 hits in 552 times at bat, averaged .3351, while Brouthers' 197 hits in 588 times at bat gave him only .3350.

BRAME TO HURL KANSAS CITY BATTLE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 8.—Kansas City shone in the setting of a perfect spring day as the Pirates and the Detroit Tigers crossed bats at the big home of the Blues this afternoon. The big leaguers went to the ball orchard about noon or just about the time the Kansas City club was finishing its practice licks for the day.

The American Association stars stepped aside in deference to the major league performers. The members of the Pittsburgh and the Detroit clubs were glad of the opportunity to frolic after spending three nights and two days on their special, which landed them here this morning.

Late tonight, the Buccos and the Bengals will fold their tents and steal away into Illinois where tomorrow they will clash in the town of Decatur. The big leaguers' itinerary then calls for a jump to Detroit, where the excitement will be resumed through three days.

MEET SUSCE, TIERNEY

Among the friends of the Buccos who greeted them today were George Susce and James (Cotton) Tierney. Susce, who learned the A B C's of baseball around Oakland, and at Schenley High School, is one of Dutch Zwilling's catchers. Cotton Tierney, a colorful member of the Pirate outfit of 10 years ago, is assistant manager of the Blues.

Skipper Ens intends to go through with his previously announced pitching plans. Ervin Brame and Larry French will face the Jungaleers. The Tigers are likely to swing into action behind Victor Sorrell.

Manager Ens rejoices over the health of his squad. One year ago the team was beset with serious injuries. At the present time the regulars are in such a state of condition that all can go to their positions.

Paul Waner's leg is almost back to normal, according to a statement made by Dr. William L. Marks. Brother Lloyd could stand a few more pounds of strength, but the little fellow is O. K. for the big stuff.

GRANTHAM BOTHERED

Ens is somewhat concerned over the form of George Grantham.

The veteran infielder has been bothered with his legs, although he has been able to take part in most of the games. It was a bit unfortunate for the Pittsburgh pilot and for Bill Regan that the Pittsburgher sprained an ankle while the club was in Paso Robles. It took much time in healing, but Bill appears to be just about ready.

Regan gave Ens and other Buccos a thrill by his cleverness around second in a couple of games at the Seals Stadium in San Francisco. Moreover, he socked the ball like a real hitter. In the event that Grantham falters, Regan will be eager and ready to swing into action. And when he does, Pirate fans will be watching a heads-up smart performer, judging from the form he has shown recently.

The Pirates enjoyed a visit of almost an hour yesterday at Denver. When Jewel Ens and his players stepped out of their train, they were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Chick) Fraser. The former Pirate scout was on his way to Peoria, Ill., where he will manage the Peoria club, of the Three-Eye League. Also at the Denver station was Coburn Jones, the young infielder, who spent some time with the Pirates.

HAWKINS BOWS IN FINAL GO

BOSTON, April 8.—(AP.)—The Boston boxing team won six of the eight championships last night in the final round of the National Junior A. A. U. glove tourney. The other two belts, emblematic of the 135 and 160-pound titles, went to New York and Chicago.

Henry Surette, of Boston, the heaviest slugger uncovered, added the junior heavyweight title to his collection by battering George Hawkins, of Uniontown, Pa., to the canvas five times before he took the full count in the opening round.

Hawkins defeated Paul James, Chicago, by decision in the heavyweight semi-final. The new champions:

112-pound class—Joe Ricci, Boston, defeated Joe Geno, Boston.
118-pound class—Floyd Beronis, Boston, defeated Joe Ferrante, Boston.
126-pound class—Joe Pacino, Boston, knocked out Dan Tarquino, Boston, two rounds.
135-pound class—William Hogan, New York, defeated Billy Marrone, Detroit.
147-pound class—Joe Delmont, Boston, defeated Tommy Sullivan, Montreal.
160-pound class—Haywood Stone, Chicago, defeated Mack Hough, New York.
175-pound class—Dick Madden, Boston, knocked out Solly Angelo, New York, two rounds.
Heavyweight class—Henry Surette, Boston, knocked out George Hawkins, Uniontown, Pa., one round.

State Senate Passes 15-Round Glove Bill

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 8.—The Senate yesterday passed the Jaffe bill allowing 15-round bouts in Pennsylvania.

If Gov. Pinchot signs the measure Pennsylvania will be in a position to compete with New York for championship battles.

PIN TOURNEYS OPEN

A delayed start will be made today in the annual tenpin tournament on the Votel alleys, East Pittsburgh. The event was to get under way on Monday. The third annual bowling tournament of the Philadelphia Company and subsidiary companies gets under way on the Auditorium Alleys, East End, tonight.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Maxie Rosenbloom received only $1,500 for losing to Billy Jones in their non-title bout at Motor Square Garden Monday night, and, if he doesn't watch his condition better, he'll be dropping the championship for even less to some palooka one of these nights . . . Coming on the heels of the terrible Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Datto battle of the week before, which disgusted many of the fans, the Rosenbloom affair grossed only around $4,500, and Maxie's percentage privilege didn't come up to his guarantee . . . Jones fought for 15 per cent and the chance to grab a win over a champion, and made good in storybook fashion, turning in this feat in his first appearance before the fans of his former home town.

The reason a picture of Mike Mauser, Youngstown bowler, who won the all-events championship in the A. B. C. tenpin tournament just concluded at Buffalo, does not grace this column today is because there is none available in Youngstown, and, being a modest man, Mauser refuses to pose for one, despite all manner of persuasion brought to bear upon him so far. . . . A community banquet to celebrate Scott High School's copping of the state scholastic basketball title is being plotted in North Braddock. . . . And the Y. M. H. A., is planning a dinner to celebrate the successful season of its basketball team. . . . Wonder if the Scott High boys didn't eat out of the same ice cream cans as Dr. Carlson's Pitt passers? . . . Ferguson and Halligan, two of the stars of the Scott High team, sold peanuts and pop at the Meyers Bowl boxing arena in North Braddock last summer and Ferguson has been commissioned to renumber the seats at the Bowl beginning next week. . . . Two diving events are scheduled in Pittsburgh Wednesday night of next week. . . One is the A. M. A., A. A. U., senior lowboard diving championship contest, in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement pool, and the other the first wrestling revival program to be held in Motor Square Garden.

Cy Morgan, the old Philadelphia Athletics' pitcher, who died yesterday, was a wild and woolly heaver in his time . . . When he blew up on the mound he resembled a flock of toy balloons taking the air, and it was all Connie Mack could do to get a relief man warmed up and on the job in time to keep Cyrano from walking a half-dozen batters and the ball game across the plate . . . He was a contemporary of Eddie Plank, Chief Bender, Jack Coombs and Jimmy Dygert, and on his good days belonged to this select group . . . But, like the little girl with the curl, when he was bad, he was very, very horrid out there on the pitching knoll.

Speaking of candor, a news report quotes Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, as saying that everything will be fixed for the Schmeling-Stribling fight at a conference to be held in South Bend . . . Jack Dempsey was officiating for the third time as referee of a bout in which Johnny Farr was a principal when he halted the latter's battle with Bushy Graham at Columbus Monday night in the eighth round to save Farr from further punishment, following a series of knockdowns.—HARRY KECK.

HOOVER AT OPENER

WASHINGTON, April 8.—(INS.)—President Hoover will attend the opening baseball game here next Tuesday, when the Washington team meets the Philadelphia Athletics, it was announced today.

REFEREES FLAY NEW SYSTEM

By JESS CARVER

The well-known bull was taken by the well-known horns as Cal Bolster addressed the annual banquet of the Western Pennsylvania Basketball Officials' Association at Green Castle Inn last night.

President Bolster, who, by the way, was presented a pip of an electric clock by the association, in recognition of his faithful and trying services during the past year, went into the matter of the appointing of officials by a commissioner in no uncertain fashion. He explained the system that has been in vogue during the past five years. He said that the coaches and graduate managers of the various colleges in the district had sent in lists of select officials and that he, as head of the local organization, had appointed arbiters for the majority of games, following those approved lists as closely as possible.

The sum and substance of President Bolster's remarks were that the W. P. B. O. A. intends to carry on as it has done in the past, its members officiating its games in a manner as fearless and efficient as is humanly possible, and that it will oppose any attempts to break up the organization to the last and final ditch.

The gathering was very well attended. It was in charge of Red Byers, Dave Fawcett and Rody Ruttenbush. This trio put on a swell party. The speakers included Judge John P. Egan, who was ranked at the top of the football officials' list during the past fall; Henry Blum, member of the national basketball rules committee; Dr. L. C. Bienhauer, president of the S. S. Catholic Lyceum League, and C. W. Cassler, chairman of the basketball committee of the W. P. I. A. L.

Leo Meadville McGlincny served in the capacity of toastmaster.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 8.—The Pacific Coast League opened its season yesterday and they're welcome. In this sector of the country we wear our raccoon coats except in months containing the letter R. And when we hit Boston in April weather we always wear our Mackinaws for vests.

Nick Altrock

This season all American League teams must wear numbers on uniforms when playing out of town. The National League should adopt that rule except to make visiting players wear bull's-eyes at the Brooklyn Park. It would save a lot of wild pitches for those Flatbush fans.

Chattanooga's lady pitcher said yesterday she's only playing pro ball to earn her way through college. Well, the Southern League batters would certainly rather have her striking them out than asking for magazine subscriptions.

REID IS REAPPOINTED COACH OF JACKETS

Windsor Six Captures International Hockey League Championship

ROY SCHOOLEY PAYS TRIBUTE TO MENTOR

By CARL W. SHATTO

Roy D. Schooley, owner of the Pittsburgh entry in the International Hockey League, better known as the Yellow Jackets, has announced that Charley Reid has been reappointed as coach for next season.

Schooley, praising Reid for his splendid effort in bringing the Yellow Jackets from the bottom of the standings to the title playoff series, paid the coach high tribute.

It was also learned that, because Reid enforced rigid disciplinary methods to the discomfiture of several of the players last season, several new faces may be seen on the squad next year.

"Any player who does not care to adhere to the rules as laid down by Reid will be shipped elsewhere—and the discipline next season will be more rigid than it was this season," Schooley declared.

"Although a majority of our players behaved excellently," he continued, "there were others who broke training. When they did start to properly observe training it was too late to do the club any good. There will be no hitch in the matter next season."

RICH SUCCEEDS RAY PICKLES

By TOM BIRKS

Ray Pickles, who with Bill Hite piloted the Fintex nine to the Central League championship, has announced he has severed connections with Fintex and that Fintex has appointed Red Rich as booking manager.

If any wide-awake club is looking for a manager with plenty of experience, Pickles is available.

Much sandlot news is going the rounds at this time. It is apparent Bimmy Steele will not be with the Homewood club this season, but will be on the firing line for Book Shoe.

The J. L. Thomas club will hold its annual dance this evening at McDougal's, and sandlotters in the district and their friends are invited to attend.

SPORT SHORTS

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP.)—A new field house may rise on Notre Dame's campus as a tribute to Knute Rockne. Members of the Rockne memorial committee at their meeting last night were unanimously in favor of building a much-needed field house in his memory instead of remaking the new football stadium as "Rockne Stadium."

COLUMBUS, O.—(AP.)—Boxers and other creditors interested in the fight show here Monday night still were looking for their pay today. Creditors said the receipts for the bouts, sponsored for the benefit of disabled war veterans, totaled $5,200. Of this amount $1,500 went to Jack Dempsey and $200 to two of the fighters. The unpaid fighters included Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., and Johnny Farr, Cleveland, who were promised $1,000 each for the main bout, which Dempsey refereed.

Grid Equipment Scarce In Rockne's Early Days As Coach at Notre Dame

ROCKNE'S LIFE STORY—SEVENTH INSTALMENT.

By WARREN BROWN

(Copyright, 1931, Chicago Herald and Examiner. Distributed by Universal Service.)

Rockne's first year as head coach at Notre Dame was not without its complications.

To begin with, football equipment was limited, and the available supply of shoes, uniforms, headgear and the like was used from year to year, until it had outlived even the limits of Notre Dame usefulness, which was the ne plus ultra of limits, in those days.

Indeed, there is a story that the jersey of Red Salmon, one of the Notre Dame heroes at the turn of the century, had been handed down, from season to season, and was still in use by one of Rockne's first teams, in 1918.

While making no attempt to verify this tradition, its mere recital will give a general idea of the equipment problem.

Rockne, in distributing suits and shoes for football purposes, was a different person from the Rockne of the football field, or in his other daily contacts with the players.

As a freshman, Harry Mehre, now Georgia coach, had ambitions to play on a Notre Dame team.

"I started for the gym," Mehre says, "and got fairly close to it, when I heard Rock's voice raised in caution to someone who had the temerity to ask him for a uniform.

"I went away from there, with a sad heart.

COURAGE TESTED

"The next day I got up my courage again, and started for the gym. I got a little closer, but again I heard Rock barking at someone, and I retired, in good order.

"I guess it was 10 days before I was able to get inside the gym, and actually ask for a suit.

"I was rewarded with one that was featured by a jersey with a lace-woolen effect. I know there are Notre Dame men of my time who claim they wore Red Salmon's jersey. The one that Rock tossed at me was undoubtedly that which Frank Hering wore before Salmon got out of high school.

"It had one advantage. If you were in a hurry, you could get in and out of it through your choice of holes."

The shower problem was also acute.

There was one shower that was reasonably effective, but Joe Brandy, who had fireman's tactics, was invariably out of his uniform, and first under the shower.

Athletes are in the habit of easing their way under the water, at first, and by the time they approached the one effective shower, Brandy was already sloshing about in it, scattering water for yards around. None of the others had the nerve to dash under, and were forced to have recourse to another shower, where, runs the testimony of Barry, of Mehre, of Mohardt, of Wynne and of Kiley, one tiny stream of water poured straight down, another slanted off, almost at right angles, and another veered off to the left.

TAPE TREASURED

Tape was another of Rockne's treasures.

"I sprained my ankle," says Mehre, "and I was very touched at the way Rock carried on about it. That is, I was, until I found out he felt so badly, not because of my ankle, but because of the amount of tape that had to be used to wrap it."

The tape problem hadn't been solved, as late as 1922, which was the freshman year of the quartet who were to become famous, two years later, as the "Four Horsemen."

The story is told that Elmer Layden, one of the "Horsemen," sprained his ankle, during his freshman year, some time after another freshman had been thoroughly taped because of a rib injury.

The tape necessary for Layden's first aid was stripped from the side of the other freshman.

Two years later, and the freshman at Notre Dame would have considered that an honor, but it is reported that at the time the incident occurred the freshman was quite sore about it.

Another of the equipment problems had to do with shoes.

Kiley came up with a pair whose cleats had worn through the soles, so that each step pained exceedingly.

He stood it as long as he could, and finally limped into Rockne's presence and prepared to dare the consequences by asking for another pair.

He never did make the plea.

"In my day," began Rockne, "Notre Dame men were inured to hardships. They took what came their way and they thrived on it. We're getting nothing around here now but a lot of sissies, who whine and cry over their troubles. What's the matter with you?"

"Nothing," said Kiley, who went on his way.

ROCKNE POOR TRAINER

Rockne, in addition to his coaching duties, was also trainer. The training equipment consisted of the precious tape, a pail of water, and a bottle of iodine.

The Rockne formula was always the same, for bruises and cuts.

The water and the iodine were applied, the patient was given a slap on the back.

"You probably won't sleep tonight," said Rockne, "and you might not sleep tomorrow night. But the third night you'll be sure to sleep, and rest is the best thing for you."

Notre Dame has come a long way from those days of struggle when Rockne and Jesse Harper and later Rockne alone guided its football destinies.

It has come a long way, indeed, since Buck Pennes first appeared as trainer, and some new showers were installed, causing the members of the football squad to feel that they were being pampered.

However, the lessons that Rockne learned in conservation of equipment were never forgotten.

HERRON HILL TITLIST

Herron Hill defeated Latimer, 15-3, 15-6 to cop the finals of the junior high school volley-ball championship race for Section II. Latimer tripped Somers, 15-8, 15-9, in the locker bracket. Allegheny and Oliver also got to Herron Hill. Latimer reached the final match by downing Allegheny Vocational and Somers.

When Midget Wolgast, flyweight championship claimant, defeated Willie Davies, of Charleroi, in Motor Square Garden recently, Jimmy Kelly, of New York, his manager, wanted to bring him back immediately for another fight.

Matchmaker Jules Beck suggested that he be paired with Archie Bell, veteran bantamweight, of New York, who also had beaten Davies in the Garden ring, as well as Jackie Rodgers when the latter was going at his best.

Davies in the Garden ring as well as Jackie Rodgers when the latter was going at his best.

"Sure thing," chirped Kelly. "Any time."

"But why don't you put on that one in New York?" someone asked.

"It wouldn't draw half as well there as it will here," Kelly replied. "Bell is an old story with the New York fans, and so is Wolgast, more or less. Both are cards in Pittsburgh now. This is the spot."

TO MEET AT 120 POUNDS

And that, ladies and gents (and we hope we aren't boring you with the details), is why the pair are boxing at the Garden next Monday night one of the most promising battles of the local season.

The weight is set at 120 pounds. Wolgast is expected to come in at about 116½, while Bell should hop on the scales at between 118 and 120.

Frisco Grande, Filipino bantamweight, of Buffalo, will box Mose Butch, local southpaw, in the eight-round semi-final. Tommy Ryan, former star bantam, of Duquesne, will handle Grande.

Between Rounds

Promoter Apples Meyers, of the Moose Temple, has completed his card for Friday night by signing Carl Montebano, of Braddock, to box Carl Cesko, of Uniontown, former amateur middleweight star, for the opening number. Ray Riser, of Oklahoma, meets Eddie Brannon, Negro, of the Hill, in the 10-round main go, with Howard Mitchell, of Cincinnati, boxing Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, in the six-round semi-final, and Ace Hebe, of Cincinnati, tangling with Tony Marino, of Duquesne, in the second bout.

McKeesport is without a boxing show for its second straight week. Promoter Jim McGirr is waiting for Jimmy Belmont to announce he is ready to box Tiger Joe Randall and hopes to put on the bout next week.

Ray Eberle, announcer-promoter, will stage an amateur card of eight bouts and a razzberry game in the Rialto Theater, Aliquippa, Saturday night. Aliquippa boxers will be pitted against mittmen from Weirton, Steubenville and Toronto, O.

The Y. M. H. A. boxing team will meet a team from the Pittsburgh Boys' Club of Lawrenceville, in the Y. M. H. A. ring Thursday night of next week.

The Pastorious A. C. will hold an amateur boxing show in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tomorrow night.

Announcement is made that the Greater Pittsburgh amateur boxing championships will be held in the Palisades rink, McKeesport, April 29 and 30.

PIN TOURNEY ENTRIES CLOSE

Promptly at midnight tonight, and not a second later, the entry list for the Greater Pittsburgh Bowling Alleys Owners' Association first annual duckpin tourney will be closed. Entries not filed or mailed by midnight will not be accepted.

The tourney will get under way Monday on the Haus Alleys, North Side, and will continue for one week. Competition will be for both men and women. Entries received up until last night gave indications of a total entry of more than 100 five-men teams, with 75 or more duos set for the doubles and at least 150 in the singles. Fifteen women's teams have been enrolled.

EXPERT BASEBALL LESSONS FOR FANS AND SANDLOT PLAYERS
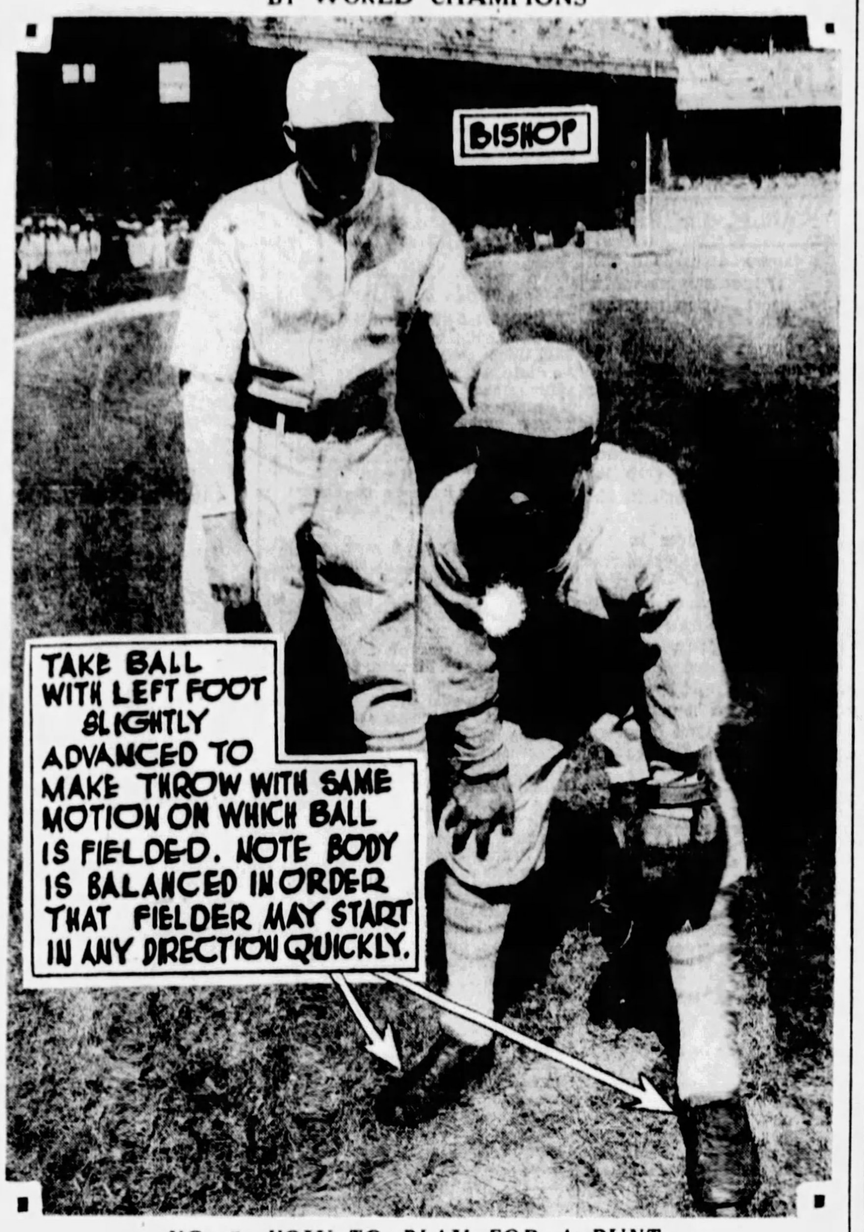
BY WORLD CHAMPIONS



BISHOP
TAKE BALL WITH LEFT FOOT SLIGHTLY ADVANCED TO MAKE THROW WITH SAME MOTION ON WHICH BALL IS FIELDED. NOTE BODY IS BALANCED IN ORDER THAT FIELDER MAY START IN ANY DIRECTION QUICKLY.

NO. 5—HOW TO PLAY FOR A BUNT

By Max Bishop

WORLD CHAMPION SECOND BASEMAN

The first thing for the kid infielder to remember is that fielding the ball is only half of an infielder's job. Getting the ball safely in his glove is just the start of his work. Always there's more to do. Either he must make a throw to complete the putout, or he must be in position to tag his man to complete the play.

In other words, he must have "balance."

In this picture, I've tried to show this youngster the proper stance for an infielder. You've got to be set with the left foot slightly advanced and the body balanced on the ball of the foot in order that you may go in any direction with equal ease. And you've got to remember, too, to take the ball, whenever possible, in a position that makes it easy to throw. Of course, this is not always possible. On hard chances, the infielder has to take the ball when and as he can, and, in that instance, you've got to be able to throw while off balance.

One thing I want to emphasize, however. A good, strong arm is important, but it isn't absolutely necessary. Ability to get the ball away quickly and with the same motion that it is fielded will make up for a lot of arm weakness. Rule 1 for infielders is, "Don't hang on to that ball. Get it away fast and with snap. No matter where your play is, just remember that no fielder ever got his man by holding on to the ball.

One other thing about infielders. If you're a shortstop or a second baseman, remember a lot depends on the man playing alongside of you. No two men on a field (not even the pitcher and catcher) have to work together more than the shortstop and second baseman. You can't go out there cold and play a good game. You've got to understand and know each other. You've got to have an agreement about covering the bag on every play.

And this is important, too. Don't try to do two things at once. Remember you've got to field a ball before you can throw it. Lots of infielders go bad because they try to make their throw before they have the ball. Get set—field the ball—make the throw. That's the order. Smoothly, carefully, quickly, yet without hurry.

Rockne Estate Goes To Wife, Children

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 8.—(AP.)—Value of Knute K. Rockne's estate will not be known for several weeks.

Vitus G. Jones, attorney for the dead football coach, said the will would be filed today and that it contained no valuation of his real and personal property. Jones said he and Fred G. Rockstroh, assessor of St. Joseph County, will need "from two weeks to a month" to complete the appraisal.

The estate was bequeathed to the widow and four children.

Officials of the University of Notre Dame reiterated that no early consideration will be given to a successor to Rockne.

CHICAGO, April 8.—(AP.)—Marietta College, of Marietta, O., will receive the bulk of the estate of Byron Bancroft Johnson, late baseball chief, under terms of his will.

The size of Johnson's estate was not revealed, but it was said to be well over $250,000.

BULLDOGS TIE BISONS IN FINALE

FORT ERIE, Ont., April 8.—(AP.)—Playing strictly defensive hockey, with the exception of 10 minutes in the second period, the Windsor Bulldogs last night won the championship of the International Hockey League as they held the Buffalo Bisons to a scoreless tie in an overtime game. The Bulldogs needed either a victory or tie to capture the Teddy Oke Trophy, while Buffalo needed to win the game to carry off the honors. The lineup:

Buffalo—0.		Windsor—0.
Taugher	G	Smith
Lederman	D	Arbour
Murray	D	Rellemer
Voss	C	Haynes
Martin	W	Robinson
Bogardis	W	Duguid

Spares—Buffalo, Cain, Jackson, Roth, Cahill, Lauder, Gross, Godin, Gauthier; Windsor, Brown, Hinsperger, Roche, Lever, Phillips, Duncan, Huggins.
Referees—Rodden and Smith.

Knockout Features Amateur Bouts

Only one knockout was registered in the amateur boxing show staged by Allegheny Post No. 41 Drum and Bugle Corps in the Moose Temple last night. The summary:

118-pound class—Andy Kosel, Valley Boxing Club, defeated Kid Mawhinney, Hogan A. C., in three rounds.

126-pound class—Johnny Sheplar, Hogan A. C., defeated Kid Sterling, Valley Boxing Club, in three rounds.

135-pound class—Johnny Birek, Pittsburgh Lyceum, won over Herdie Chickos, Hogan A. C., in three rounds. Eddie Shenn, Valley Boxing Club, won over Joe Malco, Pittsburgh Lyceum, in three rounds. Fighting Dick Pritchard, Pittsburgh Lyceum, knocked out Anthony Zelin, Ninth Ward Republican Club, in the third round.

175-pound class—Tarzan Lelben, St. Boniface Lyceum, won over Dutch Weir, Duke O'Hara Club, in four rounds.

A Vacation Well Deserved

The first people who bought India Tires from Charlie Clausner are coming back—not to buy more tires, for they won't need new rubber on their cars for many, many thousand miles yet. But they are coming back of their own volition to tell Charlie about friends of theirs who ought to buy India Tires—people who have been having tire trouble all their motoring lives and who really deserve a vacation from trouble with carefree India Tires. Charlie believes that these voluntary salesmen of his are paying him the greatest tribute possible in mentioning his product to their friends—but then, one satisfied customer is the greatest ally of any merchant. Drop in at Charlie Clausner's and become a satisfied customer yourself.

British Refuses Foch Reserves After High Command Decision of the vital points of the Allied communications.

Knew Enemy's Plans

Behind the Allies and stretching to Amiens, the ground was like a desert, having been devastated by the systematic destruction carried out by the enemy in the spring of 1917 or torn to pieces during the battle of the Somme in the summer of 1916.

The German high command believed, therefore, that all the trumps were in their hands.

However, neither British nor French general headquarters was unaware of the enemy's intentions. Ever since February reports had indicated that the Germans had settled upon the region between the Oise and the Scarpe and the Champagne country lying on either side of Rheims, as their principal zones of attack.

But, whereas, the British judged that the enemy's main blow would fall in Champagne, Gen. Petain thought it would be directed against the British front north of the Oise. In this latter case, the point of junction between the British and French forces seemed to him to be inevitably the point of least resistance and one where it would be "more difficult to fight a battle than anywhere else."

The chief of the French general staff (Gen. Foch) and the military representatives at Versailles had done their best during the winter to remedy this weakness, but their endeavors had been practically fruitless.

On March 13, 14 and 15, the allied governments had met in conference in London in order, more particularly, to decide the question of forming the Allied general reserve, which fell to my charge as president of the Versailles Executive Committee.

At the meeting on March 14, Marshal Haig, who took part in the conference, declared that he was unable to assure to the formation of this reserve the participation requested of him and furnish the number of divisions which it would require. In spite of my protest, the British government supported him in this stand, and the French government accepted without qualification the British view.

Cites Value of Unity

At the meeting on the 15th, since this solution on the part of the two governments was still causing me much anxiety, I asked to be heard and I pointed out the defects existing in the organization of the allied command at the very moment the coalition was about to engage in a defensive battle of the utmost importance and which all agreed could not be far off.

Experience justified me in saying what I did. From the beginning of the war we had fought in numerous battles in which the various Allied armies had taken a share. In 1914, on the Marne and at Arras, French and British; on the Yser and at Ypres, French, British and Belgians; on the Piave in 1917, Italians, French and British.

None of these battles could have succeeded without a centralizing organ which made it possible to obtain concerted action amongst the various Allied forces. Without it, our efforts, instead of concording, would have been dispersed and the common cause would have suffered.

Under the circumstances now existing, this organ would have been the commanding officer of the Allied general reserve, had it been formed. In the absence, however, of this allied instrument, it was much to be feared that the French and British armies, on which the enemy's blows were about to fall, would each be governed by considerations of its own particular interests and dangers, and would each lose sight of the common weal, although that was more important than anything else. In a word, the Allied battle might be seriously compromised under existing conditions, because unity of view and of action would be lacking.

My remarks and predictions are contained in the minutes of the London Conference of March 15. They greatly impressed the head of one Government, Mr. Lloyd George, though without causing the conference to modify the decision it had taken on the 14th. Six days later they were to receive ample justification on the field of battle.

A Menacing Situation

Be that as it may, on the eve of the great German offensive, the Allied Governments had decided to depend solely upon the understanding between Marshal Haig and General Petain for meeting a situation which loomed dark with peril. As a matter of fact, the two commanders-in-chief had taken special measures to meet the threatened danger.

The arrangements, however excellent they were, nevertheless presented grave imperfections and ommissions if they were to meet the threat of an offensive capable of striking at several points and of following up a success in some one direction previously fixed upon.

The promises of mutual support by the two commanders-in-chief, moreover, were hedged around with reservations, avowed by Field Marshal Haig, but equally present in the mind of Gen. Petain. The latter, although taking the British front into consideration, contemplated "the ever-increasing possibility of a German offensive directed at one and the same time against our front in Champagne and against the British front."

Under these circumstances, where the thick and menacing fog of battle arose and spread across to a limitless horizon, which of the two commanders would dare to part with the reserves he had promised?

Of what value would be these engagements in the presence of those unforseenable happenings which inevitably accompany, in their form or in their execution, the development of a great hostile operation, and which might exceed or modify the conditions which dictated the arrangements between the two Allied commanders?

Agreement Inadequate

Would either of them have the temerity to look beyond the limited field of action of his own army, when each was responsible to his government for the proper interests of his own country and regardful as he must be of the sacrifices entailed and the reinforcements he might be forced to call for?

When the time arrived to make vital decisions, would either be able to shake off this sense of responsibility in order to bring to his threatened neighbor succor that would be appropriate, rapid and sufficient, and which might have to be sent to a considerable distance?

Even if he should be willing to do all this—and it must be remembered that it was here a question of fighting a decisive battle whose violence was sure to be as great as its extent was undetermined—would he be able to bring his reinforcements into action rapidly when staffs and line officers were still strangers to each other, ignorant each of the other's needs, means and methods, and whose intercourse was based on conventions and protocols, naturally rigid and inevitably slow?

For these reasons the agreement between the commanders-in-chief, when they were discussed in London, had seemed to me full of weaknesses and absolutely inadequate. Events were soon to prove it. The Allied governments assumed a heavy responsibility in so readily placing their trust and risking their tranquillity upon this simple agreement between two chiefs, each having his own interests to guard.

In tomorrow's instalment Marshal Foch tells of the serious crisis caused by the great German offensive in March, 1918.

From the early part of 1915, when he was recalled to the French War Office from active command in the field, until the spring of 1918, when he was chosen Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the Allies, Ferdinand Foch was a military adviser to the French government.

That he was kept away from the front has been attributed to politics. At any rate, he was not sufficiently popular with the powers of government to stay on the field of battle. Perhaps it was just as well that his talents were utilized behind the lines. After having been sent to Italy and having performed various advisory functions, he eventually emerged as the one man upon whom the Allies could agree as Commander-in-Chief.

In writing his memoirs, Marshal Foch decided not to deal with his services in the War Office, but to confine the narrative to his active commands. He was a sick man and probably realized that, with his time limited, he should devote his literary efforts only to the periods during which he directed the battle plans of the Allied armies. His manuscript skips to 1918 and his narrative today starts with the opening of the great German offensive in March of that year.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, April 8.

IN THE EARLY PART of 1929 George was a hack driver in the city of New York. Unmarried and with no one to support but himself, he managed to get along in a fairly comfortable manner. He worked at night, and his routine was pretty much the same as all the other cab drivers he knew. A few calls here. A few calls there. An hour in the coffee pot on the corner. A few more calls. And work was over.

But George was far from satisfied with his existence. As a matter of fact, he hated the work he was in. He told the other drivers about his feelings at every opportunity. When the boys sat around in that coffee pot at 3 in the morning, George generally went into his little speech.

"What have I got?" he would cry. "What have any of us got in this bum racket? To make anything at all, we've got to work our brains out. And then, when the week is over, we're just where we started from—if we're lucky."

Another hackie would be sure to urge George on. It helped to pass the time.

"Aw, George," the other man would say. "You're always kickin'. What's the use of beefin', anyhow? It don't get you nowhere. Besides, here you are a hackie, and you might as well make the best of it. You'll probably stay a hackie as long as you live."

This would infuriate our friend. Which was just what the other men were looking for.

"I'm going to stay a hackie, am I?" he would shout. "Well, if you guys think so, you got one big surprise coming your way. Just you wait. I'll get the breaks some day. And when I come riding past this joint with my chauffeur and Rolls Royce, you'll all know that George was a pretty smart guy."

And his answer was hearty laughter . . .

In common with cab drivers the world over, George had a habit he never failed to employ. After each fare had been driven to a destination, George would look into the back of his cab to see if anything had been left behind.

George went along for a long time without finding anything more than a couple of powder puffs, plenty of hairpins and a great many chewing gum wrappers. Still he kept looking. And one early morning he was rewarded.

A drunk paid him off and staggered into a hotel. When he had gone a block or so, George peered into the back. And there, on the floor, was a brand new $20 bill.

The driver stopped his cab and plucked the bill from the floor. He grinned happily. Twenty bucks was a great find.

Suddenly a thought struck him. This was obviously his lucky night. Maybe the $20 he held in his hand was the beginning of big things. Maybe it was the one break he had always been talking about. Maybe this was the time to force his luck. Maybe—

Some 15 minutes later George's cab was parked near a garage in the West Twenties. Inside, surrounded by some 30 other men, George was shaking a pair of dice and blowing upon them as though they were plates of hot noodle soup.

"Babies," he muttered, "you gotta make good for me tonight. This is little Georgie talking to you, honies. Roll out for papa. Roll as you never rolled before."

At 8 o'clock in the morning the game came to a halt. George stepped into his cab with almost $5,000 in his pocket . . .

* * *

An hour later George had placed the cab in his garage and was telling the boss exactly what he had been waiting to tell him for a long, long time.

"I'm through," he announced. "Absolutely finished with the cab racket. I'm going to take this money of mine and ride high, wide and handsome. Money always makes more money. And little Georgie's the boy who'll show you how it should be done. "Only one thing I'm going to do. I'm going to keep my hack badge with me as long as I live. It will serve as a reminder of the days when I was slaving for a living. No matter how wealthy I get, that hack badge will stay with me. It will be a memory of the one thing I hate."

You know where George was the following morning, don't you? Right you are. He was in the old coffee pot and talking to the boys. Outside was a little sport car he had picked up in the afternoon at a great bargain. And he was crowing as only a newly rich man can crow.

"Told you I'd do it, didn't I?" he cried. "Well, take a look at me. I've made the grade. And what's more important, I'm going to stay on top. George's money is going to make money for him."

They asked George what he had in mind. The ex-hackman shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't know," he said easily. "Get into the bootleg racket, or something. I haven't had a chance to think about it yet."

One of his old friends led him aside.

"Don't be a foolish feller, George," he advised. "After all, you ain't got as much dough as you think you have. Why don't you stick to a racket you know best?

"I know a guy who'd be willing to go in with you on a couple of cabs. You can own 'em instead of drivin' 'em. Soon you'll be buyin' other cabs. And before you know it—"

George shook his head vigorously.

"You can stop that hooey," he interrupted. "I'm through with everything that has to do with cabs. I'm sick of the word. I'm getting into something else entirely."

He reached into his pocket and drew out his hack badge.

"This is the one thing I'm keeping," he went on, "and I'm keeping it for a reason. I want to remember these terrible days. And I'll never get swell-headed after I make millions because I'll always have this to bring me back to earth."

"Yeah?" said the cab driver.

"Yeah," said George . . .

* * *

George kept gambling. He had an idea that he must win now. He had always liked the ponies and he went in for the nags in fine fashion. Strangely enough, he won at first. He put his original money away and began to play on his profits. All of which is very nice when it lasts.

It didn't last, of course. George held out longer than most, but the end came eventually. He was absolutely flat. His good times were over. He could have gone back to the old stand at the coffee pot and the boys would have been glad to help out. But George wouldn't do it. He knew he had boasted too much.

On a bitter cold night a few months ago, one of the boys saw George pass the coffee pot. His head lowered, he walked hurriedly past the old, familiar spot. He didn't want to be seen.

George didn't even have an overcoat. And the lapels of his thin suit were held across his chest by the one thing he was never going to need.

His hack badge. . .

Twelve Magic Beans: Recipe for Success

By B. C. FORBES

IF YOU are not interested in attaining success, don't read today's column. It is all about 12 magic beans—but it isn't a fairy story. It is the simplest, least costly success recipe you have ever heard.

Mr. Forbes

VERY APPROPRIATELY, it deals primarily with selling.

After all, isn't the world's main economic trouble today the lack of sufficient buying and selling to keep everybody reasonably busy? The world's best business and financial brains have sadly failed to devise a cure.

Just as in the World War no Napoleonic genius emerged capable of solving the problem of how to break the long-continued deadlock, so no business genius has come forward with any effective plan to overcome the economic stalemate in this country and throughout the world.

Is it that in the modern world things are now done on such a colossal scale that, when something goes wrong, there is no brain big enough to originate a remedy?

OUR TWELVE magic beans won't cure the ills of the business world. But, properly used, they may at least turn many salesmen into successes, fatten the order books of many concerns, set additional machinery in motion, and—who knows?—pry business off its dead center.

JACK KLEIN, successful sales manager, has sent to his sales force throughout the country a little box, labeled "The Twelve Magic Success Beans." In an accompanying letter, he says to each salesman:

"I can see you laughing when you receive them. Go ahead, have a good hearty laugh. Now look again. What do you see? Twelve little beans? Listen to this story:

"I know a man—a wealthy man—who made all his money as a salesman. When approached with the question: 'To what do you owe your success as a salesman?' he reached into his vest pocket, and what do you think he pulled out? A handful of what looked like ordinary kidney beans!

"'I owe my success to those TWELVE MAGIC BEANS,' he said simply.

"'WHAT DO you mean?' I asked. 'You surely don't believe that carrying those beans around in your pocket brings you good luck?'

"He replied: 'When I carry them in the left hand vest pocket they are just ordinary kidney beans, but when I carry them in my right hand vest pocket, they are worth their weight in gold many times over.' (By this time I just knew he was cuckoo.)

"Without appearing to notice by look of pity, he continued: 'When I start out in the morning I place these 12 ordinary kidney beans in my left-hand vest pocket. Then I WALK and TALK, until I make my first full sales presentation. Then I take one of the beans from my left-hand pocket and place it in my right-hand vest pocket. All through the day each time I make a complete sales presentation, whether I sell Mr. Prospect or not, I transfer ONE bean from the LEFT to the RIGHT pocket.

"'FOR YEARS I HAVE BEEN DOING THIS, AND THOSE 12 FULL TALKS EACH DAY HAVE MADE ME INDEPENDENTLY WEALTHY. IS IT ANY WONDER THAT I CALL THESE BEANS 'THE 12 MAGIC SUCCESS BEANS?'"

"TOMORROW MORNING I want you to take the little box and place it in your left vest pocket. They will still be common kidney beans if they stay in your left pocket—but IF YOU ARE AS WISE AS I THINK YOU ARE they will not long remain common kidney beans.

"They want only YOUR MAGIC TOUCH to transform them into MAGIC SUCCESS BEANS!"

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Advance | Local Market Steady

MARKET GIVEN SUBSTANTIAL BOOST

Volume of Trading Light; Up-Trend Temporarily Reverses in Morning

NEW YORK, April 8 (AP.)—The crowded bear following found elbow room at a premium in today's stock market, and share prices were given a substantial boost as stock was bought to retire short contracts.

On the whole the mid-week business statistics seemed to be less gloomy than the bearish inclined had expected. A moderate recovery in Brazilian bonds was an encouraging development in that quarter. Trading in stocks was in light volume however and the upward trend was temporarily reversed for a time in the morning.

The weekly steel trade report reported the expected slowing up of ingot output. Iron Age places production at 52 per cent of capacity, against 57 a fortnight ago. While no major upturn seems to be in prospect before the seasonal impulse is felt in August, the reviews indicate that the situation is too mixed to show a conclusive trend, and suggest that uncertainty over price schedules may have imposed a damper for the moment.

The weekly report of freight carloadings show the small decline of 1,863 cars from the previous week, but if was notable that miscellaneous freight and less than carload lots, the more important barometers of industrial activity in this tabulation, were higher than in the preceding week.

The weekly petroleum statistics were gratifying, showing substantial reductions in both crude output and in gasoline stocks in storage. This was scarcely reflected in the oil stocks, however, in view of estimates of gasoline consumption this summer which can scarcely be regarded as encouraging.

Electric power production last week showed about a normal seasonal decline from the previous week, and was 1.6 per cent under the like week of last year, against a decline of 1½ per cent from 1930 in the previous week.

Call money was back on a 1½ per cent basis, and was in fair supply.

Electric Power Output Declines

NEW YORK, April 8.—Production of electricity by the electric light and power industry for the week ended April 4 showed a slight decrease from the previous week. The week, which included the Good Friday holiday, showed total output of 1,672,405,000 kilowatt hours. The total was 1.6 per cent below the figure for the corresponding week of last year.

Sulphur Price Cut Officially Denied

NEW YORK, April 8.—Rumors that there is to be a cut in sulphur prices is officially denied and no change in the Texas Gulf Sulphur Company's dividend is contemplated at the meeting of directors next month.

The report of Texas Gulf for the first quarter, to be issued this month, will show the 81 quarterly dividend about earned in this period.

Bond Issue Planned By National Steel

NEW YORK, April 8.—An issue of $40,000,000 in first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds of the National Steel Corporation will be publicly offered shortly, it was learned in Wall street. The issue will be a 5 per cent series, and will be due April 1, 1956. The offering price is expected to be slightly under par.

U. S. Steel Acquires Edgar Zinc Company

CHICAGO, April 8.—(AP.)—The American Steel and Wire Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation has purchased the business and smelting plant of the Edgar Zinc Company. The Edgar company is one of the largest zinc smelters in southwest territory.

Pennsy Loadings Higher for Week

Pennsylvania Railroad System during the week ended April 4 handled 120,494 revenue cars, compared to 118,807 in the preceding week, and 146,290 a year ago. From January 1 loadings totaled 1,591,938 cars, against 1,932,632 a year previous.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Rubber futures opened barely steady: May 6.50c; July 6.70c; September, 6.90c. New contracts: May, 6.58c; July, 6.78c; September, 6.98c. Spot smoked ribbed, 6¾.

Texas Proration Temporarily Enjoined

AUSTIN, April 8.—On petition of Carl Estes, of Tyler, Judge J. D. Moore, of District Court here late yesterday, granted a temporary injunction restraining the railroad commission from enforcing its recent proration order as to the East Texas district. No date was fixed for trying the case.

Grounds for the injunction as set forth in the petition, were that proration is in violation of the anti-trust laws, that it is in violation of the interstate commerce act, and that it is based on unreasonable market demands instead of conservation of the oil and gas resources of the state.

Larry Locates Mary Lou, Takes Her to Jenny's

CHAPTER XLVII.

Larry started looking through the hotels. It would have taken longer to find her than it did if it hadn't happened that his paper sent him to cover the visit of a new celebrity, an English novelist reputed to be, as well, the best dressed man in the world. He was speaking one night before a rather large and decidedly mixed audience in a new hotel for women, part club, part hostelry, and because of the man's name and the startling "message" he was bruited to bring to American womanhood, Larry was sent to interview him and listen to the lecture, as his editor scented an amusing story written in Larry's peculiarly entertaining style.

"The Rudy Vallee of literature," said the editor. "Well, listen to his crooning and give us a story. Keep it short of libel, my lad."

But Larry was fated not to hear the lecture; and incidentally lost his job on that account, as the lecture turned out to be what is vulgarly known as hot stuff, and all the other papers carried columns of highly amused print about the languid gentleman in sartorial splendor who lounged onto the platform and spoke of the Inhibiting of American Women, due to their Puritanical Forebears.

Explains to Mary Lou

For, in the corridor of that hotel, he met Mary Lou.

She saw him; tried to turn; to escape. But he had her by the arm.

"Not so fast, my good child!"

He looked about him, espied a deserted library, led her into it and plumped her down in a chair with no ceremony whatever.

"What are you doing here?"

"Living here, Larry," she said.

"And what else, may I ask?" he demanded sternly.

"I'm taking a course in a secretarial school," she replied, with some defiance.

"Do you realize that Jenny, Mrs. Lorrimer and I have been combing the town for you?"

"No, Larry. I promised Jenny I'd let her know where I was. I fully intended to—later," she pleaded.

"We don't believe you. A Mary Lou in the hand is worth two in the bush—" he said.

That made him think of Delight. He said, quickly:

"Before you open your mouth to ask questions or make any more trouble let me tell you this: Delight Harford returned to England. She happens to be married to a gentleman in Australia. That was what she was going to tell you when you were rudely interrupted the other [illegible]."

"Married?" asked Mary Lou, faintly.

She was hatless, and her red gold hair curled as entrancingly as ever. But she was pale, thought Larry, and rather thin, and her eyes were darkly shadowed. He felt a pang of affectionate, impatient compassion for her. He still held her arm, as if he feared she would escape him even now.

"You're going upstairs and pack. And coming to Jenny's with me—tonight!" said Larry magnificently, forgetting his literary errand.

"No, Larry—please. It's awful dear to Jenny to want me, but I can't."

"You're coming, if I have to make a scene . . . right here. I take no chances of your checking out and going somewhere else before tomorrow. And—Lorrimer's not at Westwood. He's in the Adirondacks. He went to see McEwan and is staying at Wynne's camp up there indefinitely. You won't see him. Just come out with me for a few days—hang your secretarial course—and get straightened out. Jenny has been frantic about you, and so has Mrs. Lorrimer. You owe it to her, Mary Lou, to see her again. If only just once. I suppose I understand why you went off like that; I don't much blame you, but I do feel that Mrs. Lorrimer is deeply hurt and terribly worried."

Couldn't Face Travers

"I'll come, Larry," agreed Mary Lou, wretchedly. The tears were pouring unchecked down the small face. She had been so unhappy. The days in New York, strange, lonely, filled with heartbreak. The seeming vastness of the hotel. The feeling herself a stranger, threatened, somehow, on all sides. The cold practicality of the business school. The longing for Lorrimer. The wondering if she had done right. The imagination that wouldn't let her rest, picturing Lorrimer and Delight, happy, reunited.

Larry took out a large handkerchief, something like a sheet, and mopped her face for her in a brotherly fashion. He then helped her to her feet and escorted her to the elevator and took up his position there, waiting determinedly like a detective, until she should come down again. He was taking no chance whatever. When she reappeared he accompanied her to the desk, watched her check out, and, taking her arm, led her to the door, the street, a taxi, the station, and a train for Westmill.

In the train he talked to her severely.

"Why the devil did you run away?" he demanded.

"I couldn't face it—"

"The situation, or Lorrimer?"

"Lorry," she admitted, finally. "It was all so confusing and unexpected. But I had known for ages that I had to get away."

Is Welcomed Back

"You didn't run to save yourself," said Larry; "you ran to save him. It was unnecessary. If you had stayed you might have learned that Delight Harford is really Mrs. Somebody Else, and that Lorrimer didn't want her, never would want her—"

"How was I to know?" asked Mary Lou, reasonably, watching the black landscape slide by, watching the lights of homes shine through the darkness.

"You couldn't know, of course. You and Lorrimer were a precious pair of idealistic babies," Larry grumbled, "you, with your desire to see justice done and Lorrimer with his idiotic proposal to Delight—"

"He did ask her to marry him then!" cried Mary Lou.

"He did. But, as she said, she had a previous engagement," laughed Larry.

Mary Lou said, soberly:

"He must have cared."

"He did not care. He felt under an obligation, that's all. You know him well enough to know that's just what he would do."

"Yes." She was silent, staring out into the night, not as sure as Larry that Lorrimer did not "care."

At the station they picked up a taxi and drove out to the Wynnes' where they found Jenny reading six novels at once and trying to make up her mind to go to bed early for the first time in several years. She rushed to the door as she heard them talking to the servant who opened it, and caught Mary Lou in her strong young arms.

"You found her; you brought her back!" she shrieked to Larry and embraced him shamelessly while still holding on to her recovered friend. Her mother and father strolled into the hall to see what it was all about. They had been told; they knew the entire story, and the way in which they undemonstratively, figuratively and matter-of-factly took Mary Lou to their hearts was very pleasant for the rest of the reception committee to view.

Stays at Jenny's

That night, curled up on Jenny's bed, Mary Lou filled in the gaps, supplied the missing details and ended, anxiously:

"So I came out. What is one to do when Larry sets his mind on anything?"

"Marry him; it's the quickest way to deflate his egotism," answered Jenny promptly, "but, unfortunately, I have a monopoly of that system."

Mary Lou laughed. The color was back in her cheeks, she looked rested, happier. Loneliness is a wasting illness, and if Jenny and Larry were not cures they were, at least, palliatives.

"But I can't stay," she went on. "I have to get back and go on with that course. Nor could I stay on and—keep on avoiding Lorry."

"Well, he isn't here and we won't tell him that you are, and you know he never comes over except on special occasions. We've always had to run after him," Jenny soothed her. "You skip off to your room and get some sleep. I'm telephoning Aunt Margaret in the morning."

DAILY TRUE STORY Doubling for Dorman

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Actor's Wife Divorces Him To Wed His Double

His name is not "Dorman."

A lot of people, especially in Hollywood and others who know the inside dope on life among the picture players, will know his real name, anyway, when they read this.

But because the man still gleams now and then in some "super-super-feature" or other, why get in bad all around by using his name?

Dorman could almost do a number of things, such as sitting on a horse. He could do that, but he couldn't ride half a mile even at a gentle lope.

He could swim well enough to make 40 feet or so, but he couldn't dive, he didn't have the nerve.

With careful training he could hold his "dukes" in the approved pugilistic form, but make just one little feint at him and both arms would go up across his handsome face, leaving his torso as wide open to a heart punch as a barn door is to a hayrick.

There were a great many other things that Dave Dorman couldn't do.

But he could look like the answer to a maiden's prayer, he could make passionate and convincing love, he could go into a clinging screen kiss that would keep many a girl awake all night just imagining.

And so, of course, because of his handsome features and polished screen ways and ability to wear clothes like the pictures in a tailor's catalog, he became a star.

When it came to the things he couldn't do, the old stunt was resorted to—he had a double.

Aleck Hart was his double. Aleck was a mighty clever double. He had doubled for probably a score of screen stars, because he was medium in build and had the art of making up so that he would fool another man's own mother—or wife.

Mrs. Dorman was a non-professional.

She wasn't the first girl to fall in love with a handsome face. Effie Hatton married Dorman because of his good looks. Effie had considerable money. Dorman didn't know how much she had, but he knew that it was quite a fortune.

He didn't intend to work any more at all, but when he had a chance to do a bit he did it more for fun than anything else. He and Effie were on the coast then on their honeymoon. The director was a chap Dorman had known back East.

Popular Actor

When the picture was shown several experts at the studio asked, "Who is the Adonis? Can he act? Let's try him.

The result was that, by much training, Dave Dorman got away with it. To a certain extent he could act. Wise directors gave him parts that fitted him and got Aleck Hart to double for him when it came to the stunt stuff.

Fan mail began to come in. Fan mail is the thermometer of a screen player's popularity.

Dorman was given a good contract. Not because he was liked at the studio—on the contrary. But he was popular and his pictures drew well, which meant that they made big profits.

At the end of the year Dorman considered himself to be at the very top. He wasn't. But he was so popular on the screen that he was able to get a really big salary.

It went to his head.

During the third year he had put aside quite a fortune. He had built a big house that made his wife shudder because it was so rococo. The house looked like Dorman.

"Sure the house looks like Dave," one party said. "It's just a false alarm."

And so Dorman considered himself the biggest thing in the picture game.

"Mind you," he could say to Aleck Hart, "I can do those stunts, but the company would be crazy to let me take the risk—if I were to get hurt, who could take my place?"

"Sure, sure," Aleck would say, gravely.

Aleck was well satisfied with the big money he got for doubling the stunt stuff.

Aleck needed the money. He was sending it back to the old folks to pay for the farm and put them on easy street.

That was why he stood for so much from Dorman.

Effie Unhappy

Dorman had one of the little bungalow type dressing rooms and rest rooms on the lot, as did many other stars. And his wife used to come down to this place at his own urgent request to help him with his make-up. Dorman never admitted it, but his wife could do a better make-up job on him than any expert make-up artists.

But Effie Dorman was far from happy these days. She didn't like the people he had at his house. She didn't like the way he boasted. She didn't like his insufferable treatment of her, as if she were nobody at all.

"My wife can't get over it yet," he would boast, "the way I took her from the dump back east and brought her here and put her in a palace."

One night, after the soused guests had gone, Effie remonstrated with him.

"Dave," she said, "that's not fair to me. You were clerking in an office and living in a hall-room when I married you. My people were socially prominent and had money. From the way you talk anyone would think I came from the slums."

"Aw, shut up," he said.

Aleck Hart was wise to many things, especially to the way Dorman cursed his wife when she was making him up.

"Some day," Aleck said to Chambon, the director, "you are going to lose your man Dorman, because I'm going to slap him so hard he'll never bounce back!"

Dorman Surprised

Now and then at home Effie would excuse herself and disappear during a party because Dorman was so openly crude in disappearing for a while with this or that woman.

They were in the middle of "Coming Through," which was just the mawkish, sentimental sort of picture Dorman liked. This was because there were plenty of stunts all going to his credit while Aleck Hart took the risks and did them. And there was plenty of society stuff, where Dorman was at his silly best.

Aleck was crossing the lot, after being made up exactly like Dorman as to clothes and complexion.

He was passing around Dorman's dressing room bungalow when he almost bumped into Mrs. Dorman.

She screamed and drew back.

"Don't strike me again, Dave!" she whispered.

"What?" Aleck gasped, his eyes popping.

"Oh—Oh, Aleck—I thought—never mind—forget it, won't you? I—I didn't mean"....

She hesitated and stared pleadingly at him.

"Listen, Effie, are you in love with him?"

"Oh! I hate him—but I'm too proud—"

"Hey you, come in here, what th' so-and-so you mean keeping me waiting?" Dorman shouted from inside.

Effie began hurriedly to wipe her eyes.

"What's this, some of your stunt stuff, Dorman?" Aleck asked, coldly.

Dorman jumped in surprise. "Get out and mind your business," he snarled.

Aleck helped Effie up and turned to Dorman.

"I am going to do three things at once to you, Dorman," he said. "I am going to blacken both eyes and flatten your nose!"

Returns to Screen

And before Dorman could duck back Aleck did exactly that with one well-placed sock that had all the power of Aleck's hatred behind it.

"You run home, Effie," Aleck ordered.

She looked at Dorman, unconscious on the ground, and then she looked at Aleck.

"I'll be at a hotel. I won't dare—"

"Oh, stay home, Effie. It's going to be days before he can even swat a fly. I'll see you later—I'll be canned for this but it's worth it."

But Aleck wasn't canned. They had to use him. They had spent a hundred thousand on the picture already and even when Dorman got well he'd have to have an operation to straighten out his nose.

Aleck did pretty well with the rest of the picture and Effie was in Reno during that time.

Aleck did so well that they put him in a new series of pictures.

Dorman got his nose fixed and went back to the pictures. Effie and Aleck were married. Dorman used to sneer about them and say that Aleck was merely a cheap skate, who used to double for him. He finally married again.

A couple years later he was springing it again at a party. Chambon, the director, had a few drinks in and he replied:

"Aleck's a great double and his wife has just doubled for him," he said.

"What do you mean?" Dorman snapped.

"Twins, born this morning!"

SOME ODD FACTS

Snails dig themselves into the ground in winter and remain torpid, cementing up the opening to their shells. They breathe through a small hole in the "cement," too small to allow the entrance of water, but large enough to allow sufficient air for their feeble respiration.

On an acre of land at Rayleigh, on the London-Southend arterial road, there are 50,000 mice which are bred for cancer research work in universities and medical schools. There is a nursery on the farm in which 300 mice are born daily.

The word "sincere" originated from two Latin words, "sine cera," which means without wax. In the days of ancient Rome, cracked and chipped vases were made as good as new by filling up the cracks with wax. A "sincere" vase was a genuine one, which had no wax introduced to make it look better than it was.

May Increase Fares

Railways Company Claims to Be Unable to Pay Amount Due City.

Pittsburghers may be forced to pay a higher rate of fare on street cars or to accept a reduction in service unless business conditions improve, according to statements made to Council by Railways Company officials in explaining their failure to pay $75,000 due the city for licenses and paving costs for the last quarter of 1930.

W. H. Boyce, commercial manager for the street car line, said yesterday that the company's plans are indefinite and that it will defer any such steps until absolutely necessary.

In answering charges of W. G. Negley that the company's financial difficulties are due to excessive rates for power paid to the Duquesne Light Company, Mr. Boyce presented figures showing that the street car company's expenditures for electricity compare favorably with those in other cities.

Naturally any move on the part of the Railways Company either to curtail services or to increase fares will be keenly resented, but it must be realized that no corporation can operate at a deficit for an indefinite period. The street car service in Pittsburgh would not be helped by again forcing the Railways Company into a receivership from which it emerged only seven years ago.

Undoubtedly it would be wise to have a thorough study made of the street car company's operations and its relations to other organizations in the Byllesby group in order to determine the reasonableness of claims made about its operation by officials.

Some other way than higher fares or poorer service must be found.

Manager Bill Urged

Representative Moore Asked To Work For Its Recall From Committee By House.

Representative D. Glenn Moore, of Washington, sponsor of the bill that would provide a way whereby Pittsburgh would have the option of employing a city manager, is being flooded with letters, telegrams and telephone calls, urging him to demand the recall of his bill from the House Elections Committee, to which it was recommitted after second reading.

It will be remembered that the committee smothered it last week on the motion of Representative James Wettach, who explained his action by stating there was no evidence of general interest in it.

This is a measure that has the indorsement of strong organizations locally as well as public spirited individuals. Perhaps, if Mr. Moore is able to show there is strong sentiment in favor of it, he may be able to have the House vote for a recall of the bill.

If the bill is ordered back by the House, it will be interesting to watch the behavior of some other members of the Allegheny delegation besides Mr. Wettach, who says he received no orders from Mayor Kline to kill it in committee.

To Beautify Wharf

Utility and Appearance of Water Front Can Be Greatly Improved.

The promise of Council President John S. Herron to take immediate action on city wharf improvements calls attention to the fact that Pittsburgh has an area of ground which offers advantages possible to only a few large American cities.

Mr. Herron's statement was made in answer to an offer by Attorney Harry I. Miller to obtain a donation of $25,000 from a prominent citizen to add to the improvement fund if the city would cooperate.

At present the wharf is poorly managed. The city gets only a small part of the possible income from parking. In addition the pavement is in such a bad condition that it is dangerous to drive cars on some parts of the wharf.

Waterfronts can be improved and add to a city's beauty or they can be neglected to such an extent that they become unsightly. The latter seems to have been the case in Pittsburgh.

With a city appropriation in addition to the private donation both the utility and the appearance of the wharf can be vastly improved. The help that the work would give to employment conditions adds reason for taking prompt action.

Weight Is Corrected

Potato Seizure Is Followed by Making Up Shortage In Sacks.

Six carloads of potatoes, in sacks stamped as weighing "15 pounds when packed," but weighing less than that "when seized," will not go into Pittsburgh larders shrunken, thanks to prompt action by James P. Bailey, chief inspector in the bureau of weights and measures. Such stamping, Mr. Bailey says, is illegal in Pennsylvania, which will be news to many householders, who find many packed products so labeled.

The result of Mr. Bailey's act was the ripping of the bags and adding potatoes to make up the weight. Thus complaints of members of the Retail Merchants' Association and housewives, which Mr. Bailey says caused him to get busy, were effective in stopping what appears to be a careless general practice.

It is perhaps not intended to be unfair, as commodities do evaporate in transit, but, with the best intention, such marking does open a way to possible fraud.

DEBUNKING SCIENCE

By Archibald Henderson

Science — physics, astrophysics, and mathematics in particular—is passing through a period of transition and uncertainty. Many scientists seriously doubt the validity of the assumption on which relativity rests. The quantum theory is open to suspicion, as raising objections to the conception of continuity. The wave theory of light has run into difficulties, since it presupposes a breakdown in the law of casuality. No entirely satisfactory proof has been found that Achilles will ever catch up with the tortoise. In what sense shall we maintain that such a number as pi exists, if it requires an infinite number of operations to find it; and consequently we shall go on forever without ever actually attaining it?

Lewis Carroll, the author of "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," who amusingly exhibited a thousand absurdities in our conventional habits of thought, nevertheless had the profoundest faith in the validity of mathematical analysis as a self-consistent system of reasoning. "The charm" (of pure mathematics), he avers, "lies chiefly . . . in the absolute certainty of its results: for that is what, beyond all mental treasure, the human intellect craves for. Let us only be sure of something! More light, more light! . . . 'And if our fate be death, give light and let us die!' This is the cry that, through all the ages, is going up from perplexed humanity, and science has little less to offer, that will really meet the demands of its votaries, than the conclusions of pure mathematics."

So long as mathematics is dealing with the finite, it is resting on solid ground. But modern mathematics presumes to deal with the transfinite, with the infinite. As Hadamard, the French savant, says: "Has not science for its object that which is general? And if you say general do you not say infinite?"

E. T. Bell has recently pointed out in a suggestive monograph, happily entitled Debunking Science, that "to make superstition in the name of science impossible is the principal objective of those who would debunk science. Superstition they define as belief against the best evidence available . . . Attempts to read into the conclusions of science more than is given unequivocally by the recognized technique of science lead to superstition, as does also the perpetuation of things once held to be significant but now known to be nonsense."

Great advances have been made through the labors of Weierstrass, Cantor, Dedekind and Kronecker. But new skeptics arise, who set up question marks in the place of periods. For instance, Bronson shows how Aristotle's law of the excluded middle breaks down when we deal with collections consisting of an uncountable on infinite number of things. Thus we see that the doctors of mathematics today—Russell, Whitehead, Hilbert, Brouwer, Kronecker and Van Waerden—disagree over the very foundations of modern mathematical reasoning. How sound are the foundations?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Last Sunday I went back to the house where I had been a girl. I had not gone to it for 25 years. I did not think I could ever go there again.

An old house, deep in roses. A young girl, deep in dreams. And then—the dreams all going wrong. Twenty-five years of dreams going wrong. I did not think that I could ever go there again. But last Sunday it came to me, quite simply, that I must go back . . . that it was weak and wrong to be afraid to go back—

So I went, but as if I were walking in a nightmare. I remembered how the house had stood on a high hill . . . and how hard the hill had been to climb. Looking back over the years, the house seemed all surrounded by cruel, high hills. Hills of poverty and sickness, humiliation and despair. And a grave that lay like a bar across the door. How could I go back—climb those hills again, one by one, with bleeding feet . . . face that grave again, with a breaking heart? Yet, I couldn't go on respecting myself unless I did go back—

So I went back, through the morning. The wind was blowing, gentle as a breath—a child's happy breath that has never caught and snarled. The wild flowers were washing in a bright tide over the brown fields . . . foaming over the broken walls . . . spilling in trickles of rose and blue beside the rutted road. The sunshine clung in a wet, gilt web to rock and trunk and leaf . . . and the air was filled with sudden darts and trills and bubbling bells of song.

A bright morning, but my heart was dark as night. So dark that I came upon the house on the hill before I realized it. And when I looked I could not believe my eyes. For 25 years I had thought of this moment with inexpressible longing and pain. And now, here I was—but surely this could not be the place . . . FOR IT WAS SUCH A LITTLE HILL!

How could it have tired me to climb this little hill? And where were those other shadowy hills which had mou ted around it with the years—those hills of poverty and suffering, of humiliation and despair? They had seemed so real to me, those cruel crags. I had thought I could never be free from their shadow. But they were not here at all! There was only peace here. There stood the old home, warm and content, in the midst of the spring morning. There was no barricade around it, no blight upon it . . . no grave across its sunny sill—

And the steep hill I had dreaded was only a little slope that but lifted me higher, in the wide, sweet air.

And it came to me that for 25 years I had been dreading a dream . . . A DREAM THAT HAD NO REALITY. I had made real hills of sad experiences—but they had only been shadows, weaving brief webs across the winding trail. And all the time I had been agonizing in my darkness, the old house and life had gone on together, strongly, serenely—with the springtime coming, surely, after every winter rain.

And suddenly I saw that that is the way it is with us all. Fighting nightmares . . . building shadows . . . believing it all is real—

But some day, perhaps, we will come back—

We will come back . . . although people may not see us, even when we pass them closely—

We will come back and go strolling up and down the places where we'd lived a while . . . down the streets that seemed so narrow and so dark . . . up the hill that seemed so high and so cruel . . . to an old house where once we dreamed and wept—

And, smiling, we will say, "What fools we were to suffer so! See—it is such a little hill! And there is no grave . . . ONLY A SUNNY SILL . . ."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Debts I Owe!

The debts I owe are many.
I can not count them all;
Were prisons still for debtors,
For me, a prison wall.

And not alone in money
My obligations lie,
My debts are for strange values,
Sea song and April sky.

That one who came in gaily
To share a cup of tea,
When all my life lay shattered
Brought courage back to me!

The friend who brought red roses
One day of wintry dearth,
Gave more than any flowers
That ever bloomed on earth.

I can not half repay them,
The countless debts I owe,
With some among them greatest
To those who do not know!

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Mrs. Solomon Says—

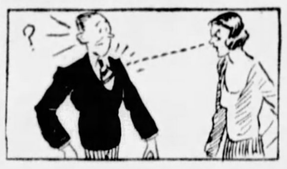
Consider, my Daughter, how a woman "back-seat-driveth" her husband all the days of his life.

* * *

For the sins and follies of men may be many, but their PATIENCE passeth understanding.

* * *

Behold, upon the day of her marriage, the bride electeth herself a Vigilance-Committee-of-One, with full power of attorney, food censor, conscience, curfew, banker and jailer.



She calleth her Beloved to his shower and his breakfast in the morning, and setteth the hour of his dinner, and the time for his retiring.

* * *

She chooseth the house wherein he shall live and selecteth the wallpaper for his den.

* * *

She giveth away his clothes, when they offend her sight, and weedeth out his wild cravats.

* * *

She telleth him what to wear and overseeth his haircuts.

* * *

She censoreth his friends, counteth his smokes, deleteth his drinks, and curtaileth the lumps of sugar in his coffee and the butter upon his waffles.

* * *

She coaxeth him into a dinner-coat and bullyeth him into evening clothes. She superintendeth his dressing and directeth the tying of his cravat and the smoothing of his hair.

* * *

She shooeth any blondes and vamps, at dinner parties, and causeth him to devote himself to rich dowagers.

She criticizeth his dancing and seeketh to put a high polish upon his manners.

* * *

She remindeth him to take his tonic, and runneth for the aspirin when he sneezeth. She cross-questioneth him concerning where he hath been, whom he hath seen and what he hath eaten for luncheon. She passeth decision on the height of his collars, the length of his back-hair, and the cut of his coat.

* * *

She droppeth in at his office, and appraiseth his stenographer.

* * *

Wherefore, then, do ye wonder that the Golf Clubs are full of Married Men, and the world is full of Golf-Widows?

* * *

For, there cometh a time, when man MUST strike something and swear at it—and a golf ball is safer than a woman!

Becher's Brook

The Most Famous Steeplechase Jump.

OVER THEY GO, IN THE GRAND NATIONAL.

Millions of Americans have talked about the Grand National Steeplechase. Some, foolishly, have lost money betting on it, buying lottery tickets, in spite of the fact that the laws of the United States forbid lotteries. Having talked about it, you may be interested in this striking picture showing horses going over Becher's Brook, difficult obstacle in the long steeplechase course, which is the most famous on earth.

This jump was named for Capt. Becher, who rode in the Grand National when it started many years ago, fell twice at this jump, remounted, and went on.

The power of the horses and the admirable horsemanship of riders shown here are impressive. The horses look as though they were flying. Pegasus, the winged horse, with his feathery supports, was not more graceful. The riders, leaning far back, that they may not be thrown over their horses' heads on landing, show great skill in handling the reins.

You observe no weight put on the horse's mouth, pulling it open and interfering with the animal's jumping.

In this jump pressure at the wrong time may mean disaster for horse and rider.

It is a fine thing to develop a beautiful horse, and man has done his share of the work admirably, in breeding thoroughbreds. Credit, of course, belongs primarily to nature. According to scientists, the modern horse is a product of evolution. Millions of years ago, the only horses on earth were small animals the size of a collie dog, with several toes on each foot, that changed by evolution into one hoof.

Now, the automobile runabout, heavy truck, tractor and flying machine have come. The horse will soon be only a plaything like the greyhound, once important because it could catch deer before men had guns to shoot the deer.

Useful or less useful, men will love and admire the horse.

But they ought to be able to enjoy that noble animal without wasting money and ambition on gambling.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 8.—The telephone company is arranging to have all its time-of-day queries broadcast by one person from a glass booth. This caller will merely announce the precise time every 10 seconds. Those who call in for the exact o'clock will not have to wait any longer than that at most.

Correct time appears to mean more to hurrying New Yorkers than people anywhere in the world. It is estimated that 300,000 persons daily either ask their own switchboard operators or those attached to the telephone company for the time of day or night.

Most of the newer hotels and many modern office buildings have an electrical clock in each room and in elevators. In one square on Broadway there are nine curb clocks. In Times Square are 18 horological devices. Fifth avenue averages a sidewalk clock to every three blocks.

In mid-town one may look out almost any window and see a clock. There are in the greater city 112 large electrically lighted clocks. Electric beacons flash quarter hours from several towers. And the largest clock in the world is on the Jersey side of the Hudson River.

Big jewelry establishments say they will average 50 people a day who drop in to find out the exact time. Of course, the large number of commuters who arrive and depart daily for their suburban homes play a big part in this clock consciousness.

The telephone company has for years maintained a Time Service Department. By dropping a nickel in the slot and asking for Meridian 7-1212 one may learn not only the exact hour but the exact minute. The average number of calls here is about 50,000.

In this department are 20 operators by day and four after 2 a. m. Oddly enough, gamblers are the most insistent in demands for the exact hour. Around 7 in the evening women lead in inquiring the time. It is the hour when husbands begin showing up late for dinner.

* * *

New York telephones, incidentally, will be completely dialed in seven years. Thus will a public lose contact with about the cheeriest of all employes—the telephone operators. There may be grouchy ones but I have yet to run across one. And while it has nothing to do with telephone service I just happened to think anyone wanting my cement stock is welcome.

Charles Hanson Towne is not a believer in the occult. Yet in his recent book he tells of dropping in at a vaudeville theater on a sweltering evening years ago. He was worried about the illness of a friend. No sooner had he taken his seat than a blindfolded lady on the stage suddenly announced: "Tell the gentleman in the Palm Beach suit his friend will not recover. His name is Hale." Two days later Towne's friend, Walter Hale, about whom he had been worrying passed away. Towne was wearing a Palm Beach suit. And that's why he still looks startled.

And then there was Arthur Moss, once editor of the Greenwich Village Quill, who was told by a chrystal gazer that within a month he would take a train trip and be away two months. In 10 days he sailed for Europe and has been gone nine years. "The chrystal was a bit foggy that day," explains Moss.

* * *

Gilbert Miller staged a fragile, artistic little play called "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" expecting it to last a week or so and sailed off to Europe. He returned six weeks later to find a hit on his hands. Miller is New York's most indefatigable ocean voyageur. He divides his time flitting between London and New York and seldom remains in either city more than six weeks. In 16 Atlantic crossings I have run into him aboard nine different ships. For awhile I thought he was a trans-Atlantic house detective.

For no reason whatever, save to putter, I reached around just now and twisted a little gadget I had never seen before in the back of my typewriter. And the letter that should come next to t. in typewriter won't budge. So I have to use the letter u. I'll keep kidding around until I get the letter I out of whack. And that will be mu finish.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You have begun to realize that for years you have been imposed on because you desire to be known as a good fellow.

Small outlays mean little to you and your car has been at the service of those who might wish to ride with you.

In such matters as dinner checks, coat tickets, taxi or carfare you can see now that you have been an easy mark.

As you recall it, certain persons have always allowed you to pay these.

You can bring to mind occasions when others have suggested Dutch treat when it was their turn to pay all of certain expenses.

You have never made such proposals—you have always paid without words.

But isn't it true that those for whom you have paid are not so much to blame after all?

You wanted to pay and be thought a good fellow.

You wanted your friends and acquaintances to consider you such.

Your whole attitude told this; you are to blame for this foolishness.

If you want to be known as a liberal spender, some one must accept your generosity and you should not complain if you find yourself surrounded by that kind of persons.
